J. T. LINDSEY, Business Manager.

JULY 5, 1884.

The tide really seems to have turned. Business is certainly looking up. The extreme depression of the stock market is to all appearances over, and everything points to a higher range of values as compared with May and June. There may, it is true, be some unexpected disaster in store for us, but there is no indication of it on this, the anniversary of the great national holiday. The defaults on the first of July were less than were feared, and none of the great houses whose credit was questioned showed any indications of weakness. Our farmers are gathering the largest wheat and small grain crop ever grown in the United States. The cotton crop promises to be a good one, and so far no disaster has threatened the largest corn crop so far as acreage is concerned in the history of the agriculture of this country. It will be surprising if the operators in railway stocks should not during the present month discount the large business which the heavy crops will give our railway system after the harvest. The new crop and fiscal year open well.

If New York has not a sufficiency of surface railway lines before five years are over it will not be because of any lack of desire on the part of capitalists to lay new tracks. Every street that ought to have horse-cars and a good many that ought not is now made the subject of schemes to be presented to property owners, the Aldermen and the courts which grant these privileges. The Cable Company, it seems, have not given up its plan for gridironing the city. It must be said in their favor that their programme is a complete one, and it has two advantages over the ordinary horse-car. It can use elevated tracks where needed, and would thus become a competitor to the monopoly of the elevated roads. Cable propulsion on the surface has many advantages, including better time, over horse-power. Then the cable scheme involves the taking of a passenger from one part to any other part for five cents, in other words it would involve the introduction of transfer tickets such as prevail in Philadelphia and Brooklyn, and which we ought to have in this city. But while the promoters of the cable system have an excellent programme, they do not understand the business of commending themselves to the public. They spent lots of money at Albany on a very stupid lobby, and were beaten at every point by the horse-car companies. Then they tried to arouse public enthusiasm among New York property holders by getting up concerts, a feature of which was harp solos. If, as it is said, the Standard Oil people are back of this enterprise, they showed poor judgment in the choice of their agents to commend this scheme to the Legislature and the public. But after the city has been gridironed with surface tracks the cable may come into use if more economical and expeditious than horse-power.

One of our daily papers mildly rebukes Congress for neglecting New York Harbor, and especially for not voting sufficient money for completing the unfinished works at Hell Gate. But are the New York journals without blame in this matter? Our papers are bitterly opposed to improvements in any part of the country. It objects to any appropriations for that "great inland sea," the Mississippi River. The project for joining the Mississippi with the lakes by the Hennepen Ship Canal is denounced unsparingly. The River and Harbor bills are violently and loosely declared to be a collection of scandalous jobs, although it is notorious that nineteen-twentieths of the money is for objects quite as necessary as the completion of the work at Hell Gate. In discussing these improvements and the projects to erect public buildings the entire New York press exhibits an exasperating, petty and jealous temper. Why should the sections which it offends be expected to supply Congressional votes for improvements in this harbor in view of the opposition to all improvements shown by the New York journals. The government engineers have shown that several million of dollars could be spent with great advantage in the immediate neighborhood of New York. It would above all things benefit this port, but any expenditure of government money for a public improvement, no matter how necessary, is denounced by the New York press.

The Manhattan-Metropolitan settlement was postponed because, according to Mr. Cyrus W. Field, General Barlow borrowed the original documents that were to be signed, locked them up in his safe and then left for the country. He adopted this extraordinary course, as was insinuated by Mr. Field in the newspapers, because a little bill of his for $97,000 was questioned. If this allegation is true, and it seems incredible, then why is not General Barlow arrested and sent to the penitentiary as a blackmailer and presumptive thief? Any ordinary person who would make what is regarded as an illegitimate demand for money, and then get possession of property not his own in order to enforce his fictitious claim, would soon find himself in the clutches of the law. We judge there is something behind this matter, however, and that Barlow has been made a scapegoat or that he has an understanding with some of the principals, for there was nothing to prevent Gould, Field, Souter, Slayback, Stout, and the other signers of the original agreement from drawing up a new paper, which would be just as valid as the one alleged to be put out of the way. Clearly these statements in the daily press do a gross injustice to lawyer Barlow.

The Past Six Months.

The following tables tell their own story of the large real estate business of the past six months compared with the first six months of 1883:

CONVEYANCES.

1883.	No. Conveys.	Amount.	Nom.	23d & 24th W.	Amount.	Nom.
January	929	$11,275,766	259	85	$147,895	23

June	1,070	17,400,282	274	113	424,686	23
Total	7,044	$115,465,488	1,580	831	$2,177,532	214

From the above it will be seen that there were nearly a thousand more transactions, and more than $23,000,000 more money invested so far this year than in a corresponding period of last year. The increase in the annexed district will be greater in the coming six months than in those just past.

The following table of mortgages shows how wholesome is the real estate movement at present under way. While the increased investment is $23,000,000, the added mortgage indebtedness is less than three million dollars, showing how large have been cash payments:

MORTGAGES.

1883.	No. Morts.	Amount.	No. at 5 p. c.	Amount.	No. to Banks & Ins. Cos.	Amount.

Total	5,638	$66,481,028	2,210	$25,477,349	1,016	$22,575,570

* Does not include one mortgage for $10,000,000 on property of Postal Telegraph Co.

The sales at the Exchange for the first six months of this year and last compare as follows:

1884	$18,304,674
Increase	$1,352,746

The following gives the totals of new building plans and their cost for the last three years:

	1882.		1883.		1884.
	No.	Cost.	No.	Cost.	No.	Cost.
January	127	$1,749,885	180	$4,069,075	103	$1,362,681
February	168	2,313,050	169	2,741,825	243	3,039,093

May	228	3,917,350	250	4,870,747	423	8,688,025
June	285	8,616,935	282	4,947,250	349	4,893,705
Total	1,364	$26,443,205	1,502	$26,695,619	1,739	$29,308,756

It will be seen from this that 1884 so far is ahead of the two previous years, not only in the number of buildings, but in the amount invested in their construction.

The following table gives a comparison between the three last Junes. It will be seen that the building movement continues, but the number of plans filed may give rise to an erroneous impression as many architects and builders placed their projects on record so as to escape the provisions of the proposed new building law, which the Governor did not veto till the close of the month. A number of the houses for which plans were filed will never be built. The large figure of the estimated cost of new buildings in June, 1882, was due to the filing of plans for the Field and Navarro buildings, as well as for the buildings of the Clark estate on the west side. It will be noticed how large has been the building movement west of the Central Park as well as north, between One Hundred and Tenth street and the Harlem River, and Fifth and Eighth avenues. The following are the figures:

Government and Party Folly.

"Go forth, my son," said the famous prime minister of Sweden, Oxenstern, "and see with how little wisdom the world is governed." A striking illustration of this national lack of sagacity is furnished by the United States and by the parties which from time to time control its destinies. When it was proposed to build a Pacific railroad the national treasury supplied the larger part of the money needed, but it was voted away as a gratuity to two private corporations. To further help the enterprise a land grant was given sufficient to build the roads three times over. But the government made no effort to protect either the business or the traveling public. These were handed over to the tender mercies of the Union and Central Pacific Railroad Companies, which squeezed every cent they could out of the travelers and merchants who were forced to cross the continent by rail. All this time the United States had unemployed army engineers of its own who could have constructed the road for one-quarter the capital represented by the stocks and bonds of these private corporations. As the government did not care for dividends railway travel and traffic to the Pacific coast would have been cheaper or certainly as cheap as any railway service in the country. But the government created two vast monopolies, which not only plundered the public but corrupted Congress itself. Nor has there been any attempt at rectifying this mistake. The Thurman act gave no relief to the business public. By taxing the roads and persisting upon payments at a certain time it gave the corporations a still further excuse for further plundering the traveling and business community. These monopolies became so hateful that they called into existence rival roads which were no sooner built than all the business was transferred away from the Union and Central Pacific lines. The great falling off in their traffic is because of the bitter animosity which their exactions created among people who had done business with them. Hence the depression in the price of the stocks, the demoralization of the market, which has been aggraved by the attempt in Congress to make the Thurman act still more onerous to the Pacific railroad companies. Instead of acting for the people the government created the monopoly with its own money and land, and did everything it could to help the exploitation of the traveling and business public.

Then take the case of the Democratic majority in Congress. When it got into power in 1876 the country was in the greatest distress, due to the collapse of 1873. Business was depressed, labor unemployed, and the price of everything brought down to the lowest point. The Baltimore & Ohio road wisely took advantage of the cheap labor and material market and built its road to Chicago for 60 per cent. of what it would have cost in ordinary times. But what did Mr. Randall do with his Democratic majority in the House? Why, he deliberately added to the public distress by stopping all public work, cutting down the appropriations to the lowest point, and doing all he could to distress the labor market. He thought to commend himself to the public for his economy, but the succeeding presidential election was carried by the Republican party, and the Democrats lost their majority in the House. But Mr. Randall and his followers have learned no wisdom from the past. They are again at work cutting down appropriations and opposing every bill which will increase the commerce of the country or protect it in the event of war. We are at the mercy of any third-rate power on the ocean, but the "penny wise and pound foolish" policy of Mr. Randall objects to all appropriations, for either guns, batteries or war vessels.

Nor is the Republican party any wiser. It clings to a high tariff when the demand of the times is for a reform of customs duties which will give us a chance for a portion of the commerce of the world. The Republicans of this State are trying to commit the party to the single gold unit of value in spite of the fact that we are necessarily a bi-metallic nation. It would be certain death to any presidential candidate who would declare in favor of either gold or silver as the exclusive currency of the country.

The times are rife for a re-organization of parties. The old ones are moribund. Their brains being gone, they ought to die. The party of the future will accept the tendency of the age, which is in the direction of centralization. We need a government which will do something to help business, which will give us a merchant marine, a navy sufficient to protect our shores, which will improve our harbors and make our rivers navigable. We want a government with the civil service so perfect that it can do necessary work and save us from the exactions of the monopolies. We need a government telegraph and a supervision by the nation of our transportation system. But where is the party with the boldness to formulate this programme?

The Mercantile Exchange.

At the present quarters of the Mercantile Exchange in Reade street are to be seen four colored perspectives of the designs made in competition for the new building of the corporation at Hudson and Harrison streets. The plans, sections and elevations have been returned to the competitors. This is unfortunate for the person who visits the Exchange for the purpose of arriving at a just estimate of the architectural merits, absolute and comparative, of the several designs. A colored perspective made for a competition is tolerably well recognized among architects as a means not so much for arriving at a judgment of a design as for pulling the wool over the eyes of a committee of laymen, and is believed to come under the statute in relation to "trick and device." Even with more experienced scrutiny than that of an ordinary building committee there is an appreciable chance that the student may be misled by a colored perspective, which does not always make a truthful declaration in regard to material, which never shows satisfactorily the character of the detail upon which the success of the actual building so largely depends, and in which the pictorial rendering, which has nothing whatever to do with the architectural merits of the design, unjustly counts for so much. With these reserves we proceed to remark upon the perspectives.

These are numbered 1, 2, 3 and 4, this being the order of merit as fixed by the committee, taking into consideration, it is to be presumed, convenience and economy as well as architecture. We shall notice them in that order, first observing that a committee of educated architects, looking to architectural merit alone, would probably, without much hesitation, renumber them in this order: 2, 3, 4, 1.

No. 1 is shown in a large and vividly colored picture, the most conspicuous of all the pictures, unless that of No. 4 be excepted. The basement piers are washed in with a bluish tint, which might represent blue stone but probably indicates granite. Above, the walls are of red brick with "trimmings" of brown sandstone nearer in tint to the Corsehill stone than to any other in common use. The piers of the basement are thinned out to the smallest area that will carry the load. The second division is given to one huge story containing the Exchange itself. The openings of this story are wide and high and with shallow jambs, connected by big unmoulded unmodelled arches, with nothing to mark the springing and a keystone in granite at the apex. The lack of any emphasis of the impost gives the holes an indeterminate and vague appearance, and deprives the arches of any expression of power, while the keystone in a field of brickwork is simply spotty and uneasy. There are pilasters between the arches with sandstone capitals and bases running through the story, but they are meaningless and confusing. Over this division is a heavy cornice, ostensibly of sandstone, but possibly of sheet metal painted to that effect, then another division of two stories with more pilasters and then a story of openings doubled over those below. The building has a visible roof of moderate pitch. The features are a tower at the inner angle of the long front over the entrance, which is itself pretentious, a pediment at the opposite end, and a pediment in the centre of the short front obviously without meaning. The angles of these gables are supported by pairs of polished granite columns. The absence of detail drawings is not in this case to be regretted. One can infer with infallible accuracy the character of the detail from the general drawing. It is the worst kind of current architecture, crude, obstreperous and vulgar, and with nothing in it for all its swagger.

It is a great relief to turn from this to No. 2, a sober and workmanlike piece of work, by much the best design of the series. The designer made the mistake, speaking after the manner of competitions, of showing his design in a modest perspective, much the smallest of all, but there is far more thought in it than in the bigger ones, and it is pictorially a very good piece of work. In general the composition recalls that of the new Produce Exchange, but it avoids the monotony while securing the repose of that huge box. The basement is a series of visibly sufficient piers in granite, not mere stone stilts, and the Exchange appears in three great windows on each front of the brick wall above, with wrought work in sandstone. The walls are belted with occasional courses of sandstone up to the springing arches. The arches themselves are deep, well proportioned and well modelled, with a heavy roll moulding at the intrados and a light label at the extrados, both in sandstone, though the arches themselves are in brick. Over the Exchange, the top of which is marked by a cornice, two stories are thrown into one, the openings doubled over the single great arches below, and groups of four openings each are arranged over these. The building is completed by a heavy balustrade. So far this is a description of the Produce Exchange, but a very successful variation is made by an additional bay at the inner angle of the long front, where is the main entrance. This entrance is a deep and effective granite arch and above it, in the Exchange story, is a lofty square-headed opening, mullioned in stone, a very happy feature, giving the needful variety without any look of being forced or capricious. The whole is a very sober and educated piece of architecture, and with good detail the building it represents would be an ornament to the city.

No. 3 has very good points, though the drawing is rough and does not do it justice. The basement is of white granite, the superstructure of granite, brick and terra cotta. The openings of the basement are covered with strong flat arches, the voussoirs rock faced. The openings of the principal story are round arches composed of rough granite voussoirs, while the jambs are heavily quoined with the same material. Above are two stories of openings lintelled with granite and the crowning story is of brick, enriched with terra cotta. At the outer angle a tower rises one stage above the building, where it is covered with a low roof. Its openings are an elliptical window in each face, and it carries a little balcony at the angle. There is a comfortable sense of reality and straightforwardness about the whole design, but it has also obvious faults. The arched openings in the principal story are of different sizes without any apparent reason for the differences and their relation is not harmonious. The tower is not predicted, in the thickening of the piers which carry it or otherwise. Its partly monumental treatment is inconsistent with the utilitarian character of the rest of the work, and an angle balcony is an unsuitable feature for a commercial building. The upper stage may be utilized as a quarter for the janitor, and a janitor's Juliet may be considered as entitled to a balcony, but the fenestration of the tower does not suggest nor is it consistent with that use.

No. 4 is the largest of the four designs—that is, it appears to represent the largest building—having a story of offices more, unless the transom in the principal story represents merely a gallery in the Exchange. Its principal features are a large dome-like roof in slate and metal over the outer angle, and a similar but smaller roof at each of the other corners, with a steep mansard between. The treatment is frankly utilitarian and commercial, a skeleton of brick piers enclosing great sash frames of iron—a very sensible arrangement where iron is used.

Nobody who knows much of competitions decided by laymen will be surprised after this elucidation to learn that No. 1, architecturally the least respectable of the four, is the accepted design. Of course the Exchange may have been decided by other considerations. We have only the information given by the perspectives. But architecturally they have made a huge blunder. They might have saved themselves if they had remembered that Sir George Lewis once wrote a book "Upon the Influence of Authority upon Matters of Opinion," which work was described as "a book to prove that when you wanted to know anything you asked somebody who knew something about it." If the Mercantile Exchange had taken that course they would have had a better building, for they would have looked out for Number One—instead of adopting it. Meanwhile educated architects have only themselves to thank if they submit their thoughtful designs to the judgment of people who know nothing about it, in competition with the thoughtless work of uneducated architects.

Our Prophetic Department.

MR. KNICKERBOCKER—I see THE RECORD AND GUIDE has been discussing the relative growth of Chicago and New York, and the figures, if correct, would seem to show that the inland city will, before half a century, overtake the present metropolis in population. Surely you do not share in this view? Must not New York from its situation always remain the imperial city?

SIR ORACLE—Not necessarily. Seaboard cities which depend on commerce have not so far been the great cities of the world. Population, wealth and commercial importance usually accrue to the seats of power; it is the capitals which become the chief cities.

MR. K.—Are you not putting the cart before the horse? Are not the chief cities selected as the seats of power?

SIR O.—No; for in that case some capitals at least would be on the seacoast, whereas they are all inland and generally located in places that are not necessarily good trading places. If commerce was the chief builder up of great cities then the capital of England should be Liverpool; of France, Havre or Bordeaux; of Spain, Cadiz, and so on; but the great historic cities of the world, both in ancient and modern times, have not been on the seacoast but inland. St. Petersburg would never have amounted to much were it not made the capital of all the Russias. The old and the natural capital was Moscow.

MR. K.—From your reasoning, then, it should be Washington, not Chicago, which will be the great city of the nation?

SIR O.—The conditions and inventions of our modern era have produced such changes that a mere seat of government is not so important a factor to the greatness of a city as it was formally. Without the presence of reigning authorities Washington would be erased from the map and its buildings would be as deserted as those of Nineveh and Babylon. It is the railroad which is becoming the great factor in building up the great centres of population.

MR. K.—If that is true, then New York is destined to remain the imperial city of the great American nation. Every trunk line terminates at this port of entry and egress. As in the ancient world all roads led to Rome, so in modern North America every railway line ends at the depots in the localities which surround New York Harbor. The making of the Erie Canal free helped the commerce of this city. The Delaware & Lackawanna extension, the West Shore & Buffalo, the South Pennsylvania, the Lehigh Valley and the near completion of the Baltimore & Ohio are among the new improvements destined to add largely to the trade and population of this mighty city. New York has grown rapidly. Although since the Civil War we have had no mercantile marine of our own, the change must come before long. I venture to predict that before the close of this century that more than half the ships that enter this harbor will be owned by American proprietors. We shall develop a race of merchant princes whose wealth will increase the importance of the metropolis.

SIR O.—All of that may be true enough, and you might make your case still stronger by showing that Brooklyn and the surrounding populous suburbs must in time form a part of New York.

MR. K.—There is still another consideration. Chicago has no suburbs while New York has the most varied rural surroundings of any city in the world. See its splendid coast, nearly every part of which can be reached in a couple of hours. It has the ocean and the finest bathing beach to be found anywhere. The spurs of the Alleghanies can be reached in an hour and a half. Then look at the noble Hudson and the magnificent sound. New York to-day is one of the most attractive cities in the world for pleasure and amusement as well as business. We ought to have great conservatories and technical schools, and a first-class woman's college. All of these will come doubtless in time. How is Chicago ever to compare in attractiveness with a city like this?

SIR O.—All true enough, but then it has had some drawbacks for the last twenty years. We have been badly and expensively governed. The cost of living is very great. We have been without proper terminal facilities for transportation. Then our citizens have lacked public spirit. This has been largely due to the mixed character of our population. There have been too many foreigners to assure good government with universal suffrage.

MR. K.—We have indeed had pretty bad government; but when New York comes into possession of her own, that is to say, when it includes Brooklyn, Staten Island and Westchester County, I expect to see changes which will give us a responsible and a reasonably economical local government. Terminal facilities equal to those of Boston and Baltimore will also soon be ours. No; I cannot be pursuaded that Chicago will ever be a large or a finer city than the vast centre of population that surrounds New York Bay.

SIR O.—There is another consideration that may retard the growth of the Chicago and of all the western centres of population. This is the formation of railway pools. These are really contrivances to convey grain and cotton from the West and South to the East and imported and manufactured articles from the seacoast to the interior at a minimum of cost to the railroads, as well as the greatest profit to them. Now the railway systems don't care about Chicago, or New York for that matter, but they must come to the latter city, while there is no obligation to inconvenience themselves for the benefit of Chicago. Hence pools are forming, such as the Peoria one for instance, for sending cattle and grain direct to the metropolis without paying tribute to Chicago. Our railway system is becoming unified. The surplus of grain, cattle and cotton must be shipped direct to New York from all the local points of supply. The neighborhoods of Chicago, St. Louis and Milwaukee will always demand a large supply of the cereals, but all the grain above this local demand will be shipped direct to the Atlantic ports. When this revolution is accomplished it will deprive the western centres of much of their present importance. The hog and cattle killing now almost monopolized in that city will, I think, be divided with other places in the West more accessible to the cattle ranges and pork supplies. Set me down for a believer in New York as against any city in the interior, although it is quite true that so far in the history of the world it has been inland cities and the capitals of nations which have finally become the most populous and powerful.

Home Decorative Notes.

—An effective mantel lambrequin, and especially appropriate for an open fire-place, has for a foundation olive green felt with the words "Fire and heat, praise ye the Lord," outlined with red embroidery silk in Old English lettering; finish the edge with plush balls.

—Pink seine twine makes a very pretty tidy; run black velvet through the spaces, point the ends of the velvet and fasten upon each one a ball of silk or plush.

—A table may be brightened by running scarlet ribbons through the linen doilies and table mats.

—Sandpaper will whiten ivory knife handles that may have become yellow with use or age.

—The popularity of ornamentation by means of marqueterie, so firmly established in Europe during the seventeenth century, is being revived.

—Most exquisite fire-screens are imported from France and are made of very fine brass wire, closely interwoven, and mounted on frames of hammered metal.

—Matting is preferable to oil-cloth as a protection near an outside door; it should be neatly tacked down.

—Tidies have been replaced by a bow of broad ribbon; surah silk, which is soft and clinging, forms a pleasing decoration for the back of a chair or sofa.

—The South Kensington borders are suitable for window shades, worked in outline in a single color, as, for example, brown, olive or ecru; a border of upright marguerites is especially appropriate. White and ecru shades are also ornamented with open work embroidery in the same color.

—Red, olive and yellow mattings are popular for summer cottages.

—Oriental embroidery is very effective on plain Swiss muslin curtains. Select quaint patterns and finish off the edge with a ruffle of the same goods or soft lace.

—A mantel lambrequin made of sky blue satin with banded water lilies on the sides and centre, and having an edging of blue and white floss balls is particularly attractive and delicate.

—Curtains of cardinal velours, ornamented with arabesques in gold and silver and a dado of some antique design, are very elegant.

—Friezes or borders of fanciful Japanese fans are very pretty.

—Doilies intended for fruit are ornamented by having one corner turned down and bunches of currants or other pieces of fruit worked upon it.

—Lace curtains may be laid over a colored quilt and serve as lace bed-spreads.

—A tasteful dining-room has the ceiling and the high wainscoting of wood, leather for the walls, and upholstery and furniture of oak highly carved.

—Brass work is a conspicuous ornament of rich modern furniture, and there is a new and perhaps passing fancy for metallic leaves and plants of natural size applied as ornaments to frames, screens, friezes, etc.

—Pavements of Italian mosaics are used for vestibules and for hearths and for bordering floors of large rooms like picture galleries.

—The marble tops for buffets, cabinets and bureaus that had fallen into disuse of late years are now revived, and are especially liked in dark colors showing rich veins.

—Formerly none but the rich could think of giving the measure of their refinement and intellectual delicacy of the splendor and exquisite perfection of their homes, now-a-day's the conditions are modified and it is no longer necessary to be a millionaire in order to decorate one's home with tact and taste.

—Superb reading lamps are mounted on hammered copper, a branch of foliage and apples cling to the side free in bright metallic natural colors.

—Pretty bon-bon boxes of ivory are decorated with etchings in color and have silver tops.

—The craze for Japanese and Chinese goods is on the wane, the Turkish and Russian designs and colors are preferred.

—Embroidery done on plush or on satin and the costly Gobelin tapestries are used both on the furniture and on the walls of richly furnished rooms, there are also many wall hangings of silk and unique English woollen fabrics.

—Strong and very pretty lines for the children to play horse with are crocheted of the seine twine, across the front put a band with little brass bells on it, tie the bells to the band with red and blue ribbons.

—Never use soap in the water with which you clean the looking glass, it is almost impossible to polish the glass if soap is used.

—A new outdoor game, similar to ring-toss, and called "enchantment," is coming in vogue; it is played with wands and hoops and red and white striped stakes on a square of lawn marked off and staked with flags.

—Covers for small tea-trays are scalloped around the edge and then button-holed with scarlet or blue, with little figures in the centre or corners are worked in the same color that is chosen for the border.

—Slender brass rods are much prettier to hang the book-case curtains on than rods made of wood; have the rings small, although loose enough to slip easily along; one curtain is considered in a little better taste than two; it can be drawn to one side and caught back and so expose all of the books to view with better effect than if there were two curtains.

—The latest high novelty productions of the Glenham carpet mills offered by E. J. Denning, of Broadway and Tenth street, are fire-frame body Brussels carpets with tinsel effects thrown up in the pile by the introduction of strong metallic threads in the woof; these have a peculiarly happy effect when used with the Oriental colors and designs in which most of these carpets are produced.

The Deane Estate to be Positively Sold.

After several adjournments the Deane property is now to be brought to the block. The days fixed are the 15th and 16th of July. The time is well chosen. The Democratic convention at Chicago on the 8th will have presented its candidate for the Presidency. The political atmosphere will be serene, and each can be content with his own anticipations.

When Mr. Chamberlin, the assignee, assumed his trust, his decision was for an immediate sale of the trust estate, and immediate payment of the debts. The sale was advertised of the whole estate for the first week in June, but the legal proceedings were not up to his rapidity of decision, and on the day named his title was not so fully completed as to justify a sale, and an adjournment became necessary.

In the meantime Mr. Deane's creditors, agreeably surprised by the large amount of his assets, began negotiations for a settlement. These Mr. Deane met with the confidence of a man who believed in the value of his property, with the courage of one who had never encountered disaster, and with the pride of one who had determined to pay in full at all cost to himself. But, like many plans which require general assent, they fell through at the last moment, and with great disappointment his plan of resumption has been abandoned. As often happens the last state is found to be worse than the first, and the decision has been reached that the sales must take place and the estate be wound up by legal proceedings whatever be the result. Indeed, from this there is no escape, for differences of view have become so emphatic that they cannot be reconciled, and the availability of assets in such times as these does not increase on examination.

In a personal interview Mr. Chamberlin states that the sale will now positively be made by Mr. Harnett as now advertised; that every interest he represents will be prejudiced by any more delay, and he very much regrets the time that has already been lost.

Concerning Men and Things.

It is the pugilists who ruin their own business. Man is a fighting animal, and a contest between horses, bulls, armies, political parties or individual men always excites the keenest interest because it stimulates the animal nature of our imperfect humanity. Books and newspapers that tell of battles of any kind have the largest sales. An account of a prize fight will double the circulation of the paper which contains it. But ring encounters were outside the pale of the law, notwithstanding their popularity, and the ruffians most interested took advantage of the absence of the police to coerce the fighters so as to win wagers. The prize ring for this reason has been in discredit both in England and America for years past. But the "slugging" matches at Madison Square Garden restored the ring to popular favor. These were prize fights under the protection of the police. The gamblers could not come within the ropes pistol in hand and force the referee to give a decision in their favor. The mighty crowds which have attended these displays of fistic science is an attestation to its popularity. The audiences were not composed exclusively of the rough element. The so-called better classes predominated, men who could afford and were willing to pay from two to twenty dollars to satisfy their lust for a fight. The moralizing in the papers has been the merest cant. The average man to-day in that respect differs but little from the Roman who took a savage delight in the bloody contests of the gladiators, or the Spaniard who ministers to his own murderous instincts over the horrors of a bull fight. But the Boston Irish slugger has killed the goose which was laying the golden eggs for the pugilist. His passion for drink knocked him out of time last Monday evening. So we must content ourselves with a set-to between John Kelly and James Gordon Bennett or with the great fight about to come off between the Man from Maine and the Unknown to be nominated at Chicago next week. But the fact remains that nothing so delights the average American as a fight, especially when it is between two men and there is an element of danger connected with it.

The New Mercantile Exchange.

Editor Record and Guide:

Critics with artistic taste never hesitate to blame architects for the shortcomings of conspicuous buildings erected in this city. In nine cases out of ten, however, as any architect will tell you, the blame attaches to the building committees of the various corporate bodies that pay for the work, or with the individual owners of the property to be improved. These are generally business men who know a good deal about stocks, grain, cotton or commercial operations, but who are not educated in art or architecture. They never think of consulting with a disinterested artist to guide their judgment, and hence the abortions in the way of public buildings which so offend the critical taste.

A case in point is the proposed building for the Mercantile Exchange. One or two of our cleverest architects were induced to compete, with the understanding that the object was to have a really fine building, one that would be creditable to the architecture of the city, but in the final selection it appears that the element of cost was alone considered. If what the members of the Exchange finally decided upon was what they wanted in the first place, there was no need of an architect at all; any ordinary builder would have done quite as well. From the plans on exhibition at the Exchange at the Erie building one marvels what could have induced the committee to have selected the common-place design over the admirable plans sent in by architects of reputation. If cost was the only consideration, the committee would have done well to consult the officers of the Park Bank, who had an experience with the late Mr. Thomas which it would be well to recall. A well-known architect presented plans for a building which would have cost $600,000. Mr. Thomas sent in sketches which he said would cost $225,000. He was given the contract, but as the work was in a hurry, he gave the studied-out plans only for the cellar, basement and walls, saying that later on he would send in the rest of the design. The work was commenced, but it cost, when completed, $800,000. Now the Park Bank is an admirable piece of architecture and a credit to its designer. It is worth all the money spent on it, but my point is that even sharp business men are sometimes deceived, and find that cheap plans don't always mean a cheap building.

Perhaps your architectural critic will find something worthy of note in the plans now on view at the Erie building. DRAUGHTSMAN.

More About the Building Law.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

Referring to a communication printed in your issue of May 31, signed by Wm. J. Fryer, Jr., and purporting to be an account of the genesis of the late lamented building law, will you kindly permit me, even at this late day, to correct some misstatements and supply some omissions contained therein. I have delayed in the hope that the task would be taken up by an abler hand than mine, but as the failure of the bill this year will doubtless bring the entire subject up again for discussion at the next session, it is important that the large and intelligent constituency of THE RECORD should be informed as to the true state of the case, and of the real questions involved.

Mr. Fryer severly deplores the action of one of the societies which after having taken part in the preparation of the bill, nevertheless declined to endorse it when completed, and a vein of complaint against this society runs through his entire communication. He does not mention the name, but his insinuations are unmistakable, and I will supply the omission. It is the Real Estate Owners' and Builders' Association of which he complains, a society which is at all times prepared to avow and defend its actions.

Now what are the facts?

The sub-committee of this association entered the conference called by Mr. Esterbrook with the express reservation, of which no secret was made and of which Mr. Fryer in particular was distinctly informed, that no action there taken would be binding upon the association without its subsequent approval. If its suggestions were in many cases adopted in whole or in part it was only because they commended themselves to the good sense and judgment of the conference, but no obligation was incurred thereby. It is therefore, to say the least, disingenuous in the extreme for Mr. Fryer to pretend that there was any want of good faith when, the result being unsatisfactory, the association resumed its liberty of action. But this society did not stand alone in its refusal. One of the oldest and most important of the four other societies taking part, the Mechanics' and Traders' Exchange, sided with us, withdrew from the conference and likewise declined to approve the result.

Nor was this disagreement a question of construction, thickness of walls, or beams, &c., as Mr. Fryer and others very unfairly attempt to convey the impression. It was simply and solely as to the powers to be conferred upon a board of appeal provided for in the act, and which nearly all agreed was a necessity, both to guard against abuse of the large discretion necessarily entrusted to the Superintendent, and also to give a certain amount of elasticity to the rigid provisions of the law. Our association, advised by counsel that the wording of this section as adopted was of no value in law, drew up and submitted a substitute, enlarging and specifying more particularly the right of appeal, and offered if the same were adopted to endorse and support the entire bill. It was refused, and the two societies withdrew only, however, to refer the question to the Legislature, where it was ably argued before the Senate Committee by Mr. Robert J. Darragh on behalf of the Mechanics' and Traders' Exchange, and warmly supported by Sen. Robb, Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Howe and others, and was finally incorporated in the bill as passed. How little Mr. Fryer valued the right of appeal as provided in his own bill is evidenced by the fact that he very complaisantly struck it out entire when requested to do so by the Fire Commissioners.

But in view of these facts how false the assertion that we were only striving after cheap building.

It may not be out of place to mention here that the committee of this association also strongly urged that the entire bill, being in fact hardly more than a rough draft, should be referred to a sub-committee, assisted by competent counsel, to revise its wording, eliminate its ambiguities and contradictions, and put its provisions into strictly legal shape, engaging in the name of the association to defray its share of any expense incurred thereby. It was deemed unnecessary and voted down. Had these two fair and public spirited propositions of the Real Estate Owners' and Builders' Association been adopted, our city would now be enjoying the inestimable blessing of a modernized and fairly perfect building law, in place of the jumble of absurdities which now goes by that name. Governor Cleveland has been much censured for failing to sign the bill. It is only just to him to say that being a lawyer, accustomed to weigh the force of words, and not merely to look at the good intentions of their framers, he could hardly have done otherwise, after once having read the bill, a labor which probably very few of his critics have ever undertaken.

If my time and your patience permit, I should like on a future occasion to call attention more in detail to some of the anomalies of the bill.

This notwithstanding, Mr. Fryer is mistaken when he declares that the Real Estate Owners' and Builders' Association placed itself in opposition to the bill. Many letters to and interviews with Senators and members will bear witness to the fact that while we certainly did criticise the language of the act, and endeavored to amend it, we at all times preferred to have it pass even without amendments rather than fail, and after its passage this association formally and urgently requested the Governor to sign it.

Again Mr. Fryer strays from the truth when he says that this society was organized to oppose Mr. Esterbrook. It asks for a reform in methods, not changes of individuals. He cannot point to any utterance of ours one-half as severe upon the present administration of the Building Bureau as his own concluding paragraph, where he says:

> Many of the annoyances and red tape proceedings of filing plans in the past have been remedied for the future. The court proceedings and penalties which were so often used in the past as a means of oppression against those who were unfortunate enough to incur the enmity of the department, has been simplified and restricted, and there will now be less cause for complaints of persecution and tyranny. In the past, builders who valued their reputations, and property owners who invariably desired to have only what was safe and substantial, were sure at times to run counter to the officers of the Building Bureau, who not infrequently put their own construction on the meaning of the law and the powers conferred upon them.

Thus virtually admitting the justice of the gravest complaints. On the contrary, our committees have invariably, when asked at Albany or elsewhere, "Do you want the inspector removed?" answered, "No; give us a clear and sensible law, and he will do as well as any one."

A few words more, Mr. Editor, in regard to the aims and objects of the Real Estate Owners' and Builders' Association. It occupies a peculiar and exceptional position among the building societies, representing, as it does, the consumers as opposed to the producers of and dealers in building material. All the other societies are organized to advocate special distinct interests, not always coincident with those of the public. All find their profit more or less directly in the increased cost of building, and some have not hesitated to use the law to make a market for their goods, levying, as it were, a forced contribution on the entire community.

Our association on the contrary includes and represents all classes of consumers, the great capitalist who builds for investment only, the lawyer or merchant who builds or buys for occupation, and the large and responsible class of architects and builders who build for the market, and whose enterprise and skill have built up three-fourths of the residence portion of the city. Their interests are identical with those of the great and innocent public which knows nothing of and cares nothing for building laws, but only grumbles in a quiet way because rents are so high and building so much more costly in New York than elsewhere.

The members of this society have good building and sound construction as much at heart as anyone, but they are too intelligent not to know and too spirited not to object, when ignorance and cupidity combine to lay entirely unnecessary burdens upon them. They will cordially welcome the assistance of all, individuals or societies, in their efforts to reform the abuses and burdens that now weigh so heavily on building and real estate, and which every year make it harder for men of character and self-respect to continue in the business, while enhancing costs, increasing rents and paralizing enterprise, without adding one iota to the security or health of the city.

CHAS. BUEK,
Presd't. R. E. O. and B. A.

BALTIMORE, 31 Lexington Street, July 2, 1884.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

DEAR SIR—I thank you very cordially for the very complimentary notice of my book on "Ground Rents in Maryland," contained in THE REAL ESTATE RECORD AND BUILDERS' GUIDE of June 28th.

The Legislature of this State passed a law at its session of this year by which leases are now virtually forbidden for over fifteen years.

This law provides "that all leases or sub-leases of land hereafter made in this State for a longer period than fifteen years shall be redeemable at any time after the expiration of fifteen years, at the option of the tenant, for a sum of money equal to the capitalization of the rent reserved at the rate of six per centum in gold coin of the United States or its equivalent, unless some other sum not exceeding four per centum capitalization of said rent in said coin shall be specified in said lease, in which event said rent shall be redeemable for the sum fixed in said lease or sub-lease."

It results from this law that all leases in this State since its passage are drawn for a term of fifteen years, and perpetual rents can no longer be created. The perpetual leases entered into before the passage of this act are, of course, unaffected. Very truly yours, LEWIS MAYER.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE.

DEAR SIR—The Aldermen yesterday authorized the opening of a new street between Forty-second and Forty-fifth streets, between Fourth and Lexington avenues.

Will said street improvement be paid for by the city, or will the adjoining property be assessed for it; also, who pays for the property taken to enlarge the Grand Central Depot? Respectfully yours,

ANDREW LESTER & CO.

The following is the resolution as passed by the Board of Aldermen:

Whereas, Chapter No. 261 of the laws of 1884 authorizes and directs the laying out, opening, regulating, paving, guttering, curbing and flagging the new street, provided for therein, parallel with Fourth avenue, the westerly line of which is eighty (80) feet easterly from the east line of said Fourth avenue, and between said Fourth avenue and Lexington avenue, and running from Forty-second to Forty-fifth street; therefore be it

Resolved, That the said street be regulated, graded, paved, curbed and guttered and the sidewalk on the easterly side thereof be established to the width of ten (10) feet and the same flagged; the work to be done at the expense of the New York & Harlem Railroad Company and under the direction and supervision of the Commissioner of the Department of Public Works.

The property to be used for the enlargement of the Grand Central Depot has for years been owned by the New York & Harlem Railroad Company. EDITOR.

Real Estate Department.

The usual mid-summer dullness prevails in the real estate market, nor can we expect any great activity until towards the last of September. The principal brokers and dealers are more occupied with plans for out-of-town recreation than with schemes to buy or sell property. There is less than usual doing in private sales, as may be seen in our gossip department, while plans for new buildings have also largely fallen off.

It is announced that the Fish property will be disposed of on the 15th of July, but we learn that there are some legal difficulties in the way, and that the sale will have to be postponed.

The Deane estate, however, will positively come under the hammer, on Tuesday, the 15th of July. The efforts to compromise with the creditors have failed, and there is every promise of bargains when that large property is disposed of.

The only sale of note during the past week was that of additional lots belonging to the Fox estate. The morning newspapers claim that this adjourned sale was a failure, but the trustees of the estate claim to be well satisfied. They say the lots averaged $200 a piece, against $180 at the previous sale. They could have sold more lots, but enough were disposed of to guarantee all the money it was originally intended to realize from the sale. Forty-five lots sold for a total of $8,830, on Fox, Simpson, Kelly, One Hundred and Sixty-fifth and One Hundred and Sixty-ninth streets and Intervale avenue.

The following table shows the number of Conveyances and Mortgages recorded during the past week as compared with the corresonding week in 1883:

James L. Wells will sell on Thursday, July 10th, under a decree in foreclosure, the handsome and substantial double apartment houses, Nos. 256 and 258 West Twenty-second street. The buildings are each 37.6x88, five stories and basement in height, and have been in every sense constructed with a due regard for ventilation and light, as well as the health and comfort of their occupants. They were finished but one year ago, and are fitted with every appliance that can be enumerated under the general term of "modern improvements." Being located in one of the most popular sections of the city, convenient of access from all points, the sale should prove a successful one.

Out Among the Builders.

The Metropolitan Museum of Art, Central Park, Fifth avenue and Eighty-second street, is about to receive an addition, in accordance with the act signed by the Governor on the 3d ultimo. The plans are now being drawn by Theodore Weston, and the extension will cover a larger area than the present building, which is 100x130, the former being about 230x112, fronting on the south. The material will be Philadelphia brick, granite and terra cotta. The interior will contain three galleries, roofed over by an immense skylight. The new wing will be more suitable for the uses of a museum and be happier in its exterior treatment, if the elevation forms any criterion. The architect will attempt to harmonize the Gothic in the present structure with the classic in the new. The addition is to contain steam heat, freight elevator and other improvements necessary to a temple of art. The cost is estimated at about $350,000.

Bradley & Currier propose to erect early in the fall five three-story and basement brick and stone private dwellings, about 15x50 each, on the north side of One Hundred and Thirty-first street, 160 feet west of Fifth avenue. They will contain hardwood in the interior, register heat and other improvements, and will cost about $8,000 to build. No architect has hitherto been selected. The same firm intend to complete the flats and stores purchased by them on the northeast corner of Lexington avenue and One Hundred and Seventh street, and the southeast corner of Lexington avenue and One Hundred and Eighth street.

Arthur Crooks has the plans under way for a first-class improved apartment house, 52x107, to be erected on the northwest corner of Second avenue and Eleventh street, for August C. Hassey.

C. F. Ridder, Jr., has the plans on the boards for two three-and-a-half-story brown stone improved flats, 16.8x50 each, on the north side of Thirty-first street, 66.8 feet west of Eighth avenue, and for three one-story extensions to Nos. 421, 423 and 425 Eighth avenue. The owners in both instances are the Pell estate.

A. B. Ogden has the plans under way for a five-story brick and brown stone tenement, 25x85, to be built on the north side of Seventy-seventh street, between Second and Third avenues, for John McCahey, at a cost of $15,000.

The price of the work is $1.00. For sale at this office.

Special Notices.

Two notable examples of the extensive use of White's Keene's cement for interior decoration are the new buildings of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, New York, and the United States Patent Office, Washington, D. C. In the former building the columns have all been finished in this valuable cement, and resemble the most costly marbles, and the clean moulded work has the appearance of carving. The elevator shafts as well as part of the walls are plastered with the cement, as it is harder and more enduring than plaster. The architects for the reconstruction of the United States Patent Office have employed it for the flooring under the model cases as well as for scagliola on pilaster shafts and plastering. Keene's cement is made from selected gypsum rock, and the care taken in its manufacture and the eradication of any foreign substance has made the brand of this cement of world-wide celebrity. As the uses for which it is adapted become better known it will probably be more extensively specified by architects, but it should be remembered that the best work depends much upon the workmen, as the cement can be killed by mixing with plaster and lime, and applying with iron or steel tools. Mr. Howard Fleming, of 23 Liberty street, New York, who is the sole importer of J. B. White & Bros. cement, keeps a list of skilled workers in Keene's for the benefit of those interested in its application.

We take pleasure in calling the attention of architects, builders and owners to the card of John J. Schillinger, which appears in another column. This gentleman is the patentee and manufacturer of fire-proof tiles for arches, partition and furring, and has supplied those materials for some of the largest buildings in the city. He also manufactures fire-proof for wooden beams, as shown in the illustration in his card. His works are at No. 420 East Ninety-second street, where he has constructed a portion of the building fire-proof.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

BRICKS.—The condition of affairs on the market for Common Hards does not differ to any material extent from last week, and there is really little of general interest to advise. Supplies have continued to come in with some freedom from nearly all points but were met by a very good demand and receivers again express gratification at the manner in which they are enabled to place the arrivals though admitting that it would probably have been difficult to keep business in such good shape had any attempt to increase value shown itself. Buyers generally appeared to be in a somewhat indifferent mood but willing to continue operations because they could find no fault with the cost and the quality was keeping up to the high standard so noticeable on most of the product this season. Many sellers also bear in mind the fact that an immense quantity of stock has gone into second hands thus far this season, and especially during the past three or four weeks, and while this is ostensibly for immediate consumption a great many buyers have undoubtedly anticipated their wants to some extent and are likely at any moment to withdraw. There is to be sure some talk about cutting down production during the present month, but doubts are expressed about such a move becoming sufficiently universal to become effective. Our line of quotations remain about as before, though it is likely that where some of the captains were anxious to discharge and get back home to spend the Fourth, their cargoes have been sold at a light shading. About $6.50 per M remains as the top figure in a wholesale way. Sales have continued selling at "all sorts of prices" just as chance favored, but the buyer was, as a rule, obtaining most advantage. We are told that the Brooklyn authorities are preventing the use of lammies in foundations.

CEMENT.—It has been a pretty dull and more or less unsatisfactory market for domestic cement for some time past and especially so on local account. Buyers take a little stock from time to time but are entirely oblivious to any want except such as they can find directly under their eyes and flatly refuse to invest against the future. Some distribution has been made to the interior but hardly up to the average and of late both Eastern and Southern orders have run quite light. Under the above influences it has been a difficult matter to keep the output within control, and with too much of a surplus showing itself, manufacturers are endeavoring to perfect arrangements to curtail production. Rates have been quite irregular and while some of the leading brands are quoted at old figures sales of Rosendale have been made as low as 95c.@1.00 per bbl. Foreign stock, too, is a little slow buyers making few direct calls and efforts to place additional amounts not proving very successful, more especially where goods have failed to establish a reputation. Customers are possibly even more particular than last year regarding quality and unless they know just what the cement offered them is capable of are disinclined to handle it. Considerable amounts have accumulated in store but few of the standard brands are included as about all were placed before arrival. About old rates are ruling and apparently very well sustained, with agents claiming that concession cannot be made, owing to the entire absence of sail freights from London and the high cost of steamer room, with no indications of early relief.

The following shows the movement at this port for the six months ending July 1st in the years named:

	Imports.			Exports.
	Gt. Br.	Cont.	Total.
1880 bbls.	61,123	14,485	75,968	Packages	5,765
1881 "	60,828	27,849	88,677	"	8,512
1882 "	77,865	86,488	164,353	"	7,486
1883 "	80,353	64,856	145,209	"	11,011
1884 "	65,155	86,662	151,817	"	8,165

HARDWARE.—Trade is dull all around but no more so than usual at this time of the year, and could operators feel satisfied with the general outlook they would not complain. Prospects, however, are considered doubtful for a month or two at least, and there is a general inclination to trim close all around. Production is kept as low as circumstances will admit, and placing goods, preference and favors are shown where prompt and positive returns are most likely to follow. No serious difficulties have thus far been shown in settlements, but the feeling of caution is extant. There is evidence of considerable irregularity on values and a probability that efforts will be made to shape up and revise some of the leading lists.

GLASS.—Reports generally continue in good form and dealers make no complaints. Just at the moment trade in some quarters is comparatively light, but a full revival is expected as the month progresses and indeed a little more animation, as buyers make up for lost time. Stocks continue small of both domestic and foreign, of the former almost none at all, and it is probably useless to add that full prices are expected in every instance. About all the factories are now out of blast on the usual shut down for summer.

LATH.—There has not been much of market during the week, but so far as it went sellers rather had the advantage, owing to the light supplies from Maine and the Provinces. A sale was made at $2, and another at $1.95 per M in both cases where the buyer was in want of stock, and these figures still represent receivers' views, but there is no special demand at the moment, and the best average bid does not exceed $1.90 per M. In fact any attempt to sell just at the moment would probably compel the acceptance of the latter rate, while a direct call for stock would have to be accompanied by bids at least 10c. higher. The quantity afloat is said to be extremely small at the moment. The following shows the import of lath at this port from the British Provinces for the six months ending July 1st in the years named:

1880	10,945,000	1883	29,187,000

LIME.—A quiet and firm market covers about the entire situation. The more or less indifferent tone shown among buyers has been fully neutralized by small receipts, present and prospective, and full former rates could be maintained without much difficulty.

LUMBER.—The natural slow character of the demand has been intensified by the midsummer holiday and business since our last was more than ever within the limit of immediate and positive necessity. Indeed buyers have made no move at all beyond a call for some small lots from yard or the continuation of figuring on contracts recently brought under negotiation and matters remain simply nominally unchanged though it is understood that a few offerings were made from first hands at a slight shading from rates that sellers would have felt inclined to stand out for under more favorable indications. Nothing very new is reported from sources of supply, though more recent letters from manufacturers in many instances express a growing determination to reduce the product and if needs be shut down entirely rather than submit to a further modification on the line of values, few of which now show a clear margin.

Eastern Spruce has been plenty enough during the past month to more than satisfy the actual wants of the trade, and at times it was difficult to place the offering even when receivers were willing to make the proper allowance as an attraction. Buyers are, therefore, now more or less indifferent over the amount immediately available, be it great or small, and there is really no open call for stock. Receivers, however, claim that manufacturers have fully determined to reduce the shipments and are talking with a little more confidence regarding the future. The dull condition of the English deal trade has already sent into our market from the Provinces more stock than last year, the import since January 1st showing 20,970,000 feet, against 15,505,000 feet same period of 1883. The current rates are about $13.00@15 00 for random, and $15.00@17.50 for specials.

White Pine remains in a very dull condition and the market is really obtaining no full test "About former rates" are quoted, but they are simply nominal in character and probably higher than could be obtained on any effort to realize. Supplies are abundant, and well assorted, and direct receipts by both small dealers and manufacturers appear to be quite the fashion still. We quote at $17.50@20.00 for West India shipping boards; $25@28 for South American do.; $14@15 for box boards, and $16.00@17.50 for extra do.

Yellow Pine enters into consumption to only a moderate extent and the distribution is correspondingly slow and unimportant, as this market has no dependent points worthy of mention. Prices are in consequence tame and somewhat uncertain, though probably no lower than for a week or so past. We notice, too, that here and there an agent speaks somewhat more hopefully over the prospect for the last six months of the year, and are calculating on larger sales both for home use and shipment, though none are bold enough to predict activity sufficient to stimulate positive buoyancy on values. The receipts of yellow pine at this port during the past six months were 54,820,000 feet against 78,020,000 feet same time 1883, and 83,366,000 feet same time 1882. We quote as follows: Randoms, $18@21.00 per M; Specials, $20@22.00 do.; Green Flooring Boards, $22@23; Dry do., do., $23@24; Siding, $22@23 do.; Cargoes f. o. b. at Atlantic ports, $14@15.00 for rough, and $19@21 for dressed. Cargoes f. o. b. at Gulf ports, $13@14 for rough, and $18@20 for dressed.

Hardwoods have developed no really new features, the majority of the stock having been too poorly selected at the West to attract much attention, but really fine and useful quality securing fair sale at steady rates. The export call is a little slow, but still in odd lots takes off considerable stock and of quite a varied assortment. We quote at wholesale rates by car load as follows: Walnut, $65@110 per M.; ash, $35@40 do.; oak, $30@55 do.; maple, $20@32.50 do.; chestnut, $25@30 do.; cherry, $40@75 do.; whitewood, $27@35 do., do.; elm, $22@25; hickory, $45@52.50 do.

Shingles are not much in favor on either home or export orders, and the sales are confined to small unimportant parcels. Stocks are small and this keeps prices about steady, though holders have no great advantage. We quote Cypress at $8.00@8.50 per M. for 5x20 and $11.00@12.00 do. for 6x20 regularly assorted shipping. Pine shipping stock $2.00@2.50 for 18 inch, and Eastern saw grades at $2.00@2.50 for 16 inch, as to quality and to quantity. Eastern shaved cedar $4.00@4.50 per M. Machine dressed cedar shingles quoted as follows: for 30 inch, $15.00@20.00 for A, and $22@28.50 for No. 1; for 24 inch, $13.00@15 for A and $18.50@20.50 for No. 1; for 20 inch, $8@9.50 for A and $11.00@12.50 for No. 1.

GENERAL LUMBER NOTES.

STATE.

ALBANY MARKET.

The Argus reports for week ending June 30 as follows:

There has been a fair attendance of buyers in market and the sales have been considerable, without any of marked magnitude. The receipts have been fair from all sources of supply, the break in the Erie Canal, at Palmyra, having been quickly repaired, so that boats from behind it commenced to arrive on the 26th of June. The stock and assortment of all kinds and qualities is good and seasoned lumber can be readily obtained. In the manufacturing districts the mills are in successful operation and prices are firmly held, particularly on the better qualities of pine. Spruce and hemlock are in good supply. The receipts are considerable and are being piled to season. The demand is steady and is expected to remain so during the year. Shingles and lath are in good supply. Hardwoods are arriving daily by canals and rail, and are piled to season in the open air. The sales are constant and the wants of builders and manufacturers can be fully supplied.

THE WEST.

Mr. E. S. Hotchkiss, secretary of the Lumber Manufacturers' Association of the Northwest, has made a careful compilation of the comparative condition of the lumber manufacturing industry of the Northwest, and arrives at the following conclusion:

The stock of logs (combining all points) on the first day of May, 1884, was practically the same as at the same date in 1883.

Lumber on hand May 1st is reported at an average below the stock of May 1st, 1883. The railroad mills of Wisconsin reporting 30 per cent. more, while each of the other districts report less, viz.: Michigan, 20 per cent.; Mississippi River points, 10 per cent. less, while the aggregates of Wisconsin proper, and of Duluth and Lake Superior reports, show a slight decrease.

The average starting of the mills was about the same as to date, as in 1883: Wisconsin points, as a whole, reporting "the same;" Duluth and Lake Superior points, "a little later;" Wisconsin railroad mills and Michigan points, "a little earlier;" Mississippi River points "averaging ten days earlier."

The condition of the drives is reported "good" from all points, except the Chippewa River of Wisconsin, where an expected hang-up of 50 to 55 per cent. is reported.

The probable lumber product for the three months, April, May and June, 1884, is reported from Wisconsin at 5 per cent. less than for the same period in 1883; from Duluth and Superior points, as "the same;" Wisconsin railroad mills, "slightly larger;" Michigan, "small increase;" the Mississippi River district, "10 per cent. more."

The total lumber product for 1884 is reported as probable from Wisconsin points, "10 per cent. larger;" Duluth and Superior points, "15 per cent. more;" Wisconsin railroad mills, "10 per cent. more;" Michigan, "same as 1883;" Mississippi points, "25 per cent. more."

The mill capacity remains the same, practically, as one year ago.

The average hours of running mills is reported as follows: Wisconsin, Duluth and railroad mills, 11 hours; Michigan, 11 5-60 hours; Mississippi River, 11 2-60 hours.

In summing up under the question, "Your views as to the outlook of trade for 1884:"

Wisconsin points range, from one who feels "blue decidedly," to a general feeling, that, "with good crops, a fair demand will be realized; but with no advance on present prices."

The Duluth district is unanimous in expecting "a good trade." The railroad mills of Wisconsin generally expect "a good trade," but low prices. Michigan points are nearly unanimous in the belief that "with good crops, good trade may be looked for." If there is not too great a tendency to rapid shipment. The Mississippi River manufacturers are looking for a fair but not animated trade, a steady absorption of lumber, and a large increase if crops prove good.

The key-note to the present situation is, in the opinion of your secretary, to be found in the Michigan statement, "if not too great a tendency to rapid shipment."

Lumber has been absorbed in the Chicago market much more rapidly than one year ago, as is shown in the June report of the secretary of the Lumber Exchange, from which it appears that with receipts 100,867,000 feet of lumber in excess of the same date last year, stocks on hand are but 50,391,154 feet increase over June, 1883. Sales and shipments being thereby shown to aggregate a larger trade than in 1883 by about 8 per cent.

Prices on the dock, at Chicago, have been very steady thus far through the season, and, unless through the folly which, previous to last year, has flooded the Chicago market during the July holidays, thus inviting a decline, there is no reason to look for a lower market, while with a full knowledge of crop realizations, it is the almost universal opinion that an advance in values may be expected during the fall months.

The Northwestern Lumberman says of the Chicago market:

Under the pressure to which the market has been subjected it would be nonsance to assume that there has been no sag in values. Piece stuff can no longer be quoted higher than $9 for ordinary short lengths. It is likely that before the great fleet at the docks on this date is closed out, $9 will be an outside figure for very desirable piece stuff, with a considerable percentage of 18 foot and upwards in the cargo. The buyers are expecting a slump, and will insist on concessions.

No. 2-inch lumber has gone off $1 a thousand on ca goes that are not strictly desirable. Cargoes that run mostly to cull and flat common could probably be bought for less than $10. To be safe we this week drop our quotations on No. 2 stock 50 cents, but it is likely that by the time this issue is in the hands of its readers our figures will be fully as high as they should be.

On nearly all of the streams driving conditions continue extremely favorable. There has been a good deal of talk about low water, justifiable in some instances, but on the whole it is doubtful if the streams have ever been driven clearer that they will be this year.

The Lumberman and Manufacturer, Minneapolis, as follows:

The movement of raft lumber and logs on the Mississippi continues to be very heavy. A few millions going from the St. Croix and Black, but the bulk coming out of the Chippewa. The river is keeping up very well, but an early drop in the water is expected. The log market continues dull and prices very low, especially on low grade logs. It is almost impossible to secure the actual selling figures, all parties seeming to be ashamed to sell or buy for the money.

Collections are reported very hard all over the West, but no failures of consequence are reported.

NAILS.—Business moderate and uncertain on pretty much all outlets and the market generally dull and tame. Stocks are liberal and steadily increasing, the efforts to shut off production having proven a failure, and as a result rates are unsettled, with a general tendency in buyers' favor. The quotations range at $2 40@2 55 per keg for 10d. to 60d., according to quantity, but hints of sales at $2.35 are given.

PAINTS AND OILS.—A generally limited movement reported in pretty much all kinds of stock and nothing of special interest on the market. Supplies are ample and to spare for the outlet offered and values ruling quite easy all around, though no actual decline is admitted. Linseed Oil selling moderately at 56@57c. for domestic and 57@59c. for foreign. Spirits Turpentine somewhat lower, but closes steady at 3 @3½c. per gallon, according to size of invoice, delivery, etc.

PITCH AND TAR.—There has been a limited business on the actual outlets, with plenty of stock to meet the call and rates ruling about as before. We quote: Pitch, $2 2 @2 30 per bbl.; Tar, $2 5 @2.00 do., according to quantity, quality and delivery.

PLASTER PARIS.—In common with many other articles of a kindred character Calcined Plaster has rather a dull, unsatisfactory local trade, but the shipping call is good, and this keeps manufacturers fairly busy and maintains values at full former quotations. Further support is found in the position of Lump Plaster. There is enough of it at present, and the cost laid down here does not greatly vary from $2.75 @3 00 per ton, but advices from the points of supply continue to reiterate former stories regarding the condition of the rock, and while there is no doubt plenty of it to outlast this generation it is yearly becoming more expensive to reach the desirable beds. We annex a table, showing the movement at this port for six months ending July 1st in years named:

REAL ESTATE.

A PROFITABLE INVESTMENT!

Better than Lotteries, than "Margins," than "Futures." Each $5 doubles within 30 days, and loss rendered impossible.

A NEW CITY BEAUTIFULLY LOCATED,

HINSDALE CITY,

LONG ISLAND, NEW YORK.

Near the Atlantic Ocean and Long Island Sound, and midway between both. Situated on the Long Island R. R.; on the Branch R. R. to Garden City, and also on the Branch R. R. to Creedmoor Rifle Range, being a Station nearer to New York than either. No Malaria, Chills, Fevers or Mosquitoes.

Several Thousand Building lots, 25x100 feet each, surrounding Hinsdale Depot.

PRICE, $175 PER LOT.

Selling on Monthly Payments of $5 per Lot. Or four Lots, $10 per month, after the first payment of $5 per Lot has been made.

Cottages built for lot owners and sold on monthly payments of $10, $15 and $20, according to cost, or money advanced for building purposes on same terms, viz: $5 per month for each $500 of cost of building or money advanced. Shanties or nuisances not permitted. Plans of buildings must be approved before erected. Prices of unsold lots advanced $5 per lot monthly, until at least $300 per lot is reached, and the great number of cottages and other buildings to be erected will certainly warrant their gradual increase. Hinsdale is 13 miles from New York, 35 minutes by rail, and 5 minutes additional by Brooklyn Bridge or Ferry, and the commutation is only 10 cents per trip.

J. T. LINDSEY, Business Manager.

JULY 12, 1884.

The nomination of Grover Cleveland after that of James G. Blaine settled the question that the great corporations will be taken care of during the next presidential term. No one has ever charged the Republican nominee with being an anti-monopolist, and Mr. Cleveland, who made his fortune as a railroad lawyer, has never professed to be unfriendly to the corporations. This nomination will make the contest in this State very interesting. A large labor and Irish vote will be cast for Blaine, while some of the most reputable of the old time Republicans will for the first time vote for a Democratic President. The Republican vote in this city will undoubtedly be largely increased, while in New York and the New England States tens of thousands of Republicans will cast their ballots for Mr. Cleveland. Were the election to be held next month we believe that the Democratic nominee would be chosen, but the tide may change before November next. The contest will be an exciting one in any event.

The platforms of the two great parties are sorry reading. They are both evasive, obscure and demagogical. Neither of them really mean anything. They both endorse the monstrous swindling pension appropriations, and deliberately muddle the tariff issue, which ought to have been a matter of distinct dispute between the parties. The Eastern press and foreign banking interests is ignored in the platform of the two parties on the silver question. Both parties announce their belief in bi-metallism as the true policy of this country. The real issue will be the personal character of the two candidates in the field. It is what they and their party associates would be likely to do under a given set of circumstances, which will determine the voters in their choice on election day.

"To-day," says Emerson, "is King." What the sage of Concord meant was that the present epoch was usually as fruitful of great events as any period in the past. There is now going on before our eyes a revolution in political parties of the utmost moment. A very respectable section of the Republican party with some of its leading organs is separating itself from the main body of the organization and marching into the Democratic camp. Then the Irish and some of the laboring vote which formerly could be depended upon for the Democratic nominee will this time cast their ballots for Blaine under the supposition that he will oppose a bolder front to British and other foreign powers than his opponent in case an international difficulty arose. How great the defection will be on either side it is not now possible to say. Accident will have a good deal to do with the final result. Had the last presidential election taken place in September or October, instead of November, Garfield would have been beaten. But Roscoe Conkling entered the field and, with General Grant's help, turned the tide of battle. Were the election to be held next week or next month the Democratic candidate would probably be chosen. But the temper of the voters may change towards the close of the canvass. Should Great Britain be rude, Spain insolent, or Germany show her hand in the matter of Cuba, it might so fire the American heart as to advantage the Republican candidate.

Governor Cleveland has appointed five very competent lawyers on the commission to draft the acts to reform our system of land transfers. Their names are Dwight H. Olmstead, Chas. F. Southmayd, Edwin W. Coggeshall, Chas. E. Strong and J. H. Riker. The last named gentleman has given time, money, thought and study to this very important matter. His associates understand this subject thoroughly. The one doubt in the matter is that they are all lawyers, and, strange as it may seem, lawyers are the last persons in the world to draft laws or amendments thereto which are not ambiguous. The real estate interest will watch this commission closely. Its members will be open to criticism if they are not ready to report to the Legislature early in January next, so that prompt action can be taken. It is the habit of lawyers to potter and procrastinate, and the powerful interest which demands this reform will be impatient if any unnecessary delays occur. What is needed is the ridding of deeds of unnecessary verbiage, the simplification of the indexes, and such changes in the laws as will admit of quick and cheap transfers of property. If the alterations proposed do not aim to accomplish these ends, it will be charged upon the lawyers of this commission that they wish to retain what they can of the to them profitable abuses in the present barbarous system of real estate conveyances.

Value of City Property.

The comparison between the assessed valuation of city realty of the present with the past year is of course in favor of the former. The table itself will be perused with peculiar interest by all who deal in real estate, as it shows what parts of the city are increasing in value and what sections remain stationary. The increase of over $1,500,000 in the First Ward was to have been expected. The Mutual Life Insurance building has just been finished, and the Produce Exchange, with a number of buildings adjoining, have added largely to the value of property in what may be regarded the toe of the island. Next year there will be a still further addition to the valuation of property in this ward, for the assessment lists will cover the Astor office building on Broadway, between Wall and Pine streets, the Mortimer building at the corner of Wall and New streets, the fine Union Bank building on Wall street, near William, the new office building on the corner of Wall and Pearl streets, and the great Standard Oil building on Broadway, adjoining the Welles building. But while these and other improvements are increasing the taxable property of the First Ward it may as well be acknowledged that the older buildings are not any more valuable for business than they were in former years. Outside of the very large structures it is doubtful if the rental of the First Ward improved property will be as large during the present year as it was last year and the year before.

The large increase in the Twelfth, Nineteenth and Twenty-second wards was to have been expected. It is in these localities that the new buildings are being constructed. The assessors have dwelt leniently with property-holders in the Seventh and Tenth wards. Judged by the sales at the Exchanges, property near and below Grand street, on the east side, is more highly appreciated by a certain class of investors than any other part of the city filled with a working population.

The Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth wards show but a relatively small increase. They will do better from this time forth. The region beyond the Harlem is destined to be the scene of very great improvements. It will surpass in building activity and in enhancement of values the Twelfth and Nineteenth wards. But here is the table :

For lack of certain vital amendments to the shipping bill passed by Congress we shall, it seems, lose the Australian, New Zealand and Oceanic trade. This is supposed to be worth altogether $500,000,000. We were getting our share of it, but no provision was made for the mail service which has been maintained by the New South Wales government, which gave a subsidy of $300,000 to the mail steamers and agreed to continue it if the United States supplied one-third of the amount, but our New York press, always on the alert to damage this city, howled "job," and so the provision to do our just share for carrying the letters was stricken from the Dingley bill. About 12,000 letters originate in the United States for the Australian colonies besides an immense quantity of printed matter, samples and parcels of merchandise, the postage on which is retained in the country, but the letters and parcels are distributed free in the British colonies; not only so but New Zealand alone pays $190,000 a year to the United States postoffice for railroad transportation of its enclosed mail, although it exacts none for our letters.

The American government instead of helping the mail steamships carrying its flag has acted the part of the bully and the robber. Under the old law it refused clearance papers to any vessel that would not carry the mail for two cents a letter, a ridiculously inadequate compensation. The Dingley bill repeals this blackmailing enactment, but it leaves the contract open without any legal regulation. As "Bradstreet" points out, the result will be the sending of all letters from this country to Australia by way of London and the Suez Canal, for the Australian colonies have given notice that they will withdraw their subsidies and will no longer consent to pay for the carriage of the American mail. Germany has just subsidized a steamship line to the Australian colonies, just at the time when our ineffably stupid Congress has done what it can to throw away all chance of a trade with the Oceanic dependencies of Great Britain. We buy our coffee and other South American products by way of London, and in a short time, in all probability, our mail to the Pacific Ocean and what little trade we can maintain will be done through the capital of Great Britain. These facts come out only through the trade journals. Our so-called great dailies think it adds to their reputation for honesty by denouncing jobs which in their point of view includes every legitimate appropriation by Congress.

Our Prophetic Department.

MR. KNICKERBOCKER—I do not think we said all that might be said about the future of New York in our last conversation. It seemed to me that there have been certain eras which have marked the progress of our city which it would be well to recall. Perhaps we might find other agencies now at work to give a fresh start to the growth of this great city.

SIR ORACLE—I think the influences to-day which are at work adding to the wealth and population of New York will prove as potent as any of the former agencies which added to the importance of the greatest of American cities. It was our noble harbor which gave New York the pre-eminence in trade before and after the revolutionary war and also after the war of 1812. When lumber was the important material in the construction of ships, New York marched steadily onward in marine supremacy. The civil war put an end to that monopoly, but what injured us most of all was the substitution of iron and steel for wood in the construction of steam vessels. The proximity of the iron and coal mines of England to Glasgow in Scotland has made that the great shipbuilding city of the world. The seats of manufacture everywhere owe their practical monopoly to the fact that they are points where coal and iron are so accessible as to be procured at a minimum of cost. This accounts for Manchester, Birmingham, Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Cleveland and Buffalo.

Mr. K.—Is there then no hope for New York as a great manufacturing city?

SIR O.—It is such now, but only in such manufactures as do not require coal and iron. But I will come to that further on. The Erie Canal was what gave New York its first great start, for by it the productions of the West were drawn to the greatest harbor on the Atlantic coast. Next followed the construction of the railway system, every mile of which in any part of the country has helped to add to the wealth and population of New York. The Pennsylvania Central road was constructed with a view of building up Philadelphia, but that admirable trunk line has been forced to extend its lines to the metropolis, and Philadelphia to-day is practically a way-station on the road it sacrificed so much to construct. The Baltimore & Ohio road was also called into existence to pour the products and the business of the Southwest into Baltimore, but that wealthiest of American corporations is now at work solving the problem of how to reach and make a terminus of this city. The last few years have seen several new corporations constructing great roads and extending others to act as new feeders toward business prosperity. Among these are the West Shore & Buffalo and the extension of the Delaware & Lackawanna.

Mr. K.—Yes, that is all obvious enough, but has not New York itself done something to add to its attractiveness as a place in which to live and do business?

SIR O.—Yes, the improvements in our city travel have helped, first the omnibus, then the horse-car, finally the elevated road. These have all increased the wealth of this city by making intercommunication cheap and easy. We will soon doubtless have the cable system of roads to help, and in the fullness of time the great Arcade Underground Road will give New York a means of intermural travel superior to anything of the kind in the world. I have no patience with Governor Cleveland's veto of that magnificent project. His veto also of the trifling appropriation for correcting the topographical maps of this State was unworthy the successor to Governor Clinton. A Governor who could see no merit in the Arcade plan, no value in a geological and topographical survey, would have been as blind as a bat to the advantages of a vast improvement like the Erie Canal.

MR. K.—But we shall have other improvements in our means of local transit?

SIR O.—Yes, the elevated road must be extended and improved. We must have swifter trains, fewer stoppages, additional tracks; also roads along the river fronts, not only for passengers but also for freight. This will involve warehouses and means of depositing cargoes direct from the West into the holds of steamships, and thus save the absurd taxes on commerce in paying for transportation from one side of the city to the other. I am told it costs more to take a barrel of flour from dock to store than it does to transport it from St. Paul to New York.

MR. K.—What other influences are at work to add to the business and the numbers of people in New York city?

SIR O.—The construction of the Brooklyn Bridge, it was supposed, would help Brooklyn at the expense of New York. Now while it is true that building in the former city has been stimulated it is also a matter of fact that since the construction of the bridge New York has built more and costlier houses than at any time during her past history. The figures in THE RECORD AND GUIDE prove that beyond all peradventure. No sum in arithmetic can be clearer than the demonstration of the fact that the business of New York will be very largely augmented by the construction of this bridge. Whenever the system of railroads on Long Island converges at that bridge it will pour a continuous stream of shoppers into this city who otherwise would have traded in their own localities. Within five years the tunnel under the North River ought to be completed. When it is it will effect a revolution in its way by transferring to New York the best part of the trade now transacted on the Jersey side of the harbor. Then, as the census of 1880 compared with that of 1870 shows, New York is becoming the greatest manufacturing city in the Union. It has outstripped Philadelphia. True we cannot fabricate iron materials as cheaply as at some other points, but in thousands of minor industries our nearness to the consuming markets, and our having the whole railway system of the country at our command, gives us an enormous advantage which is adding steadily to our working population and wealth.

MR. K.—Then surely our parks, theatres, opera houses and other attractions are steadily bringing people into what will be the Paris of America?

SIR O.—Right you are; just think of the new parks in the annexed district where people can roam about at will and in which we are to have our great parades, our shooting matches and outdoor sports.

MR. K.—Suppose you mention briefly the different factors which are now operating or will operate to make New York not only the greatest city of the western world but the possible capital of all the world.

SIR O.—It is scarcely possible to itemize all the factors in the case. First there is our noble harbor, then the Erie Canal, the railway system of the country, the elevated roads, the Brooklyn Bridge, our splendid parks and places of amusement, the growth of our manufacturing establishments, the tunnels under the East and North Rivers that are to be made, and the Arcade road under Broadway which is certain to be built in spite of purblind property-holders and Governor Cleveland. Then when American shipping revives and the commerce of our country is carried under the national flag, New York will become so vast and rich a city that the present generation can have no conception of it. Of course, when I speak of New York, I take it for granted that before many years that name will include Brooklyn, Staten Island and much of the country to the north of us.

MR. K.—You said nothing about the elevator and the tall buildings.

SIR O.—Nor do I intend to to-day; that will be worth a conversation by itself.

The Financial Chronicle argues that bounteous crops all over the world produces prosperous times in every country under the sun. But then evidently there are other factors needed than great crops to give us busy and profitable years. The crops of last year were abundant all over the world. Food, cotton and wool were never so abundant or cheap, yet 1883 was a notoriously unprosperous year in every civilized country. Even in Japan, where there was an over-production of rice, there was great distress because of the impossibility of selling that grain at any remunerative price. The cotton crop of that year was exceptionally large, but cotton growers and cotton manufacturers had a very hard time of it. An abundance of good money, however, always creates what is known as good times. There is generally food enough and to spare in this great world of ours, and if people have money to buy it business is profitable. The prosperous eras in the world's history has been when gold or silver has been discovered in large amounts, but whenever the production of the precious metals has fallen off or legislation has interfered to demonetize gold or silver there has then been a blight upon the business of the world. Good crops are better than poor ones, but abundance of food and the materials for clothing will not give us a profitable market if at the same time money is artificially made scarce. It is the gold unit of value and the demonetizing of silver which is responsible for the world wide depression, and this will continue, no matter what the surplus product of the soil, until the nations come to an agreement to re-establish bi-metalism.

All the crop news is good news. The wheat and small grain harvest is progressing finely, and the barns of the farmers will soon be loaded up with the largest yield ever gathered in this country. Cotton promises to be a full crop and an immense acreage has been devoted to corn. Should we have warm weather (there has been rain enough) and the fall frosts keep off we will have a phenomenal corn crop—over 2,000,000,000 bushels at least.

Prophecy and Its Fulfillment.

Last February and March The Record and Guide frequently pointed out the possibility of a rupture between Germany and the United States. On February 23d the following, in a letter from Washington, was published:

I understand there is real alarm in the State Department at the belligerent attitude of Germany. Although that nation is not seriously in debt, it is a poor country and needs more money than it can raise to support its military establishment. It is an open secret that for years Bismarck has been anxious to extend the naval power of Germany, for he believes that without a foreign commerce Germany will never be able to take the position in Europe which her statesmen are anxious she should occupy. Bismarck would like to conquer Holland and Belgium, at least so much of them as lies upon the east bank of the Rhine. But that would involve a great European war, in which Germany would have no allies. France, Russia, England, Sweden, Norway and Denmark would enter the field against her as well as Holland and Belgium.

Bismarck, it is now alleged, has made up his mind to pick a quarrel with the United States. The exclusion of our pork products was the first step in that direction. The harmless Lasker resolution, which was not worth noticing, has been made the pretext for affronting the United States. Minister Sargent reports that Bismarck snubs him on every occasion. The next step, it is said, will be the annexation of some one of the West India islands, and a recognition of European control over the Panama Canal—in short, a contemptuous defiance of the Monroe Doctrine. The fact is now recalled that German naval officers have recently visited this country incognito, and made a thorough investigation of the harbor defences of the great cities on the Atlantic seacoast. All military and naval authorities here agreed that within six weeks after a declaration of war, by a power as strong in iron-clads as Germany, that Portland, Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and probably Washington, would pass into her possession.

Since the above was written Germany has shown her hand boldly. She has not only established lines of steamships to all parts of the world, but she is trying to secure the crown of Holland so as to have a front on the German Ocean. The Sun of last Wednesday has a long article on the designs of Germany, from which we extract the following:

But the slight importance which the German Chancellor attaches to the ill will of England is impressively attested by the formation of a German syndicate for the immediate settlement of New Guinea. There is no doubt that the great island of Papua is a tempting prize to those who know what Holland has reaped from Java, and its adaptibility to the culture of cotton, sugar, rice and coffee is perfectly appreciated by the planters of Queensland. The acquisition of New Guinea by Germany would be regarded with bitter resentment by all the Australian colonies, whose wish to annex the fertile island on the further side of Torres Straits was loudly proclaimed at the Sydney conference. But Lord Derby refused to sanction the scheme of annexation, and Bismarck would not now permit him to play the ungracious role of the dog in the manger.

It is not, however, with small settlements in South Africa and Oceanica that the German Chancellor will be likely to content himself when he has once brought his countrymen into lively sympathy with his colonial ambitions. Such outlying dependences may be compared to country houses, of which it has been said that fools build them for wise men to live in. There is no lack of colonies, ready made and full grown, which have long passed the stage of troublesome and sickly infancy, and which, if properly administered, could be made extremely profitable to the controlling State. Conspicuous examples of the kind are Java in the East and Cuba in the West. Great Britain once had both of these opulent islands in her possession, and she might at any time regain them in the event of a war with their nominal owners.

Again and again The Record and Guide said that we next would hear of Germany getting possession of some island in the West Indies. Sure enough it now transpires that Bismarck is working upon the Spaniards to secure the "gem of the Antilles." Of course the dose is to be sweetened to suit the American taste. He will take the island of Cuba and hold it in trust for the United States. Here is the scheme as outlined in an Associated Press dispatch:

The plan proposed is similar to that pursued by Austria in 1859, when she ceded Lombardy to Napoleon III., who then transferred it to Italy. It is, in short, a plan to put Cuba temporarily into the hands of a foreign power, which would keep the island in trust. The report of the three commissioners proposes, it is said, to sound the German government—an intimate ally of Spain and one desirous at present of having colonies—to discover whether she would consent to take Cuba for a period of twenty-five years. The island would under this arrangement be nominally Spanish, but her garrisons and administrations would be German. Spain, which cannot borrow in Europe, and which needs money and men to maintain her rights in the Mediterranean, should thus receive annually 100,000,000 marks, and would not be drained for the maintenance in Cuba of an army and an administration which is so costly. At the end of twenty-five years the Spanish people will care nothing for Cuba, and instead of receiving possession of it again the government at Madrid would be able, without danger to its own existence, to cede it to the United States for a good round sum, especially as it would then have been benefited by the twenty-five years of German government.

That Germany would surrender Cuba to this country after occupying it twenty-five years is preposterous. There are stormy times ahead, for if Germany attempts to buy or seize Cuba, there will be a tempest throughout the Union. It will be a day of wrath for Sam. Randall, Holman and Charles A. Dana.

Home Decorative Notes.

—There is no wood visible in the majority of drawing-room chairs; covered with plush or satin they are wrought all over with silken needlework and the pillow is always added, tied with its large brilliant bows of satin; several drawing-room sets are of different shades of chestnut brown satin from the lighest amber to the darkest; the sofas differ from each other, nor are the chairs alike.

—Turkish scarfs with tinsel embroidered ends are tied in sailor knots and fastened on the backs of chairs and sofas.

—For a tea table lay a cream colored Madras muslin over the table cloth, the delicately colored flowers will stand out nicely against the white of the under cloth.

—Bright-colored silk handkerchiefs make very effective curtain bands.

—Pressed leaves and ferns placed between sheets of glass and bordered by a plush frame are used for screens.

—White paint that has become discolored may be nicely cleaned by using a little whitening in the water for washing.

—Brass easels, in imitation of bamboo, are very elegant.

—Very attractive olive dishes, biscuit jars, cream jugs and salad bowls are of amberina glass.

—Brilliant tints and colors are seen in flowers, figures and other decorations in table-ware such as Sevres, Royal Derby, Minton, Wedgewood and others of equal fame.

—In windows, under stained glass, many are using the Mexican onyx, of which whole panes are made; when it is desired to cut off the view without losing light altogether this translucent material is used; through it streams a mellow whitish light agreeable to the eye.

—There is a present fashionable caprice for the white diamond cut-glass with its stalactites breaking into a thousand rays of light; these salad bowls, ice cream sets, bonbon dishes, in shell, cresent, octagon and every possible shape, are all the handiwork of American glass-blowers and equal to the products of the modern glass-blowers of Morano or Salviati.

—There is a greater tendency than ever to Oriental ideas in fabrics of all sorts; carpets, mattings, tapestries, curtains, all show Oriental designs and colors.

—A tasteful way to brighten the table is simply to decorate the white towels which are so frequently placed at the head and foot of the table, on one end of the towel which is to be used at the head of the table have a coffee pot of graceful design worked in outline stitch in scarlet, at the opposite end work a cup and saucer, on the towel intended for the foot of the table have a knife and fork at one end and two spoons crossed at the other.

—Pails of water in which hay has been steeped absorb the smell of fresh paint.

—A very pretty fancy is a Japanese umbrella spread out in front of the fire-place as a mat.

—The old fashioned copper or brass tea urns, wherewith our great grandmothers delighted to adorn the table when their friends assembled to discuss a dish of tea, can easily be transformed into a noble table lamp of striking proportions; the urn proper forms the body, and an ordinary brass receptacle for oil is fitted in the open space, the lid is of course discarded; to complete, a shade is fitted over an octagon shaped wire framework of ordinary construction, this should then be covered with bright colored silk and ruchings of the same material, finish the edge with soft creamy lace or tiny plush balls.

—Ingrain rugs in Oriental colors and designs with tinsel effects are very attractive for the floors of summer cottages, they can be used on the bare boards or on floors covered with Canton mattings.

—As the crazy quilt fever still rages, new ideas in regard to stitches, designs, etc., are eagerly sought after; a book has been recently introduced by Bentley, of 1144 Broadway, which contains numberless ideas concerning this style of work.

—Artificial fruit such as apples, plums, peaches and grapes are in favor for decorating scrap baskets, wall pockets and catch-alls.

—Liquer stands in hammered copper have decoration of oxidized silver, or are carefully worked in silver in vine patterns.

—Very pretty handkerchief cases are made by taking two squares of satin, say of cardinal and of light blue, the exact size of a pocket handkerchief; the edges all around may be pinked and the squares caught together with very delicate feather stitching; fold the squares with all the corners in the centre; catch three of them together with a bow of narrow ribbon, leaving the fourth to open so that the handkerchiefs can be put inside.

—Toilet appointments for gentlemen are luxurious in extreme in the way of hand mirrors and bevelled glass framed in silver, the backs in repousse; hair and other brushes correspond; the silver handles of the shoe horns are equally elaborate.

—In novelties and elegance of table decoration the nineteenth century is not far behind the examples and extravagances of the luxurious age of Francis I.; until a few years ago absence of body color proved to be a defect, now the simplest object for table use or the most elaborate for other purposes is seen glowing in artistic tints; many desirable novelties in silver are exhibited by the Gorham Manufacturing Company, of Broadway and Nineteenth street; a new idea is the "etching" of silver, handsome specimens are shown in pitchers, punch bowls and spoons, fluted work which was used years ago is again brought forward and is in demand, entire tea and coffee sets are shown in this style, a table lamp is in solid silver with fluted work at the top, while the body of the lamp is surrounded with a sort of rustic applique in colored silver.

Improvement at the Ferries.

"I wonder," said Mr. L. U. Todd, of Englewood, to the writer, "that there is not some reform in your New York ferry system. I own property in New Jersey and am naturally desirous of making that State as available as possible for New Yorkers. My plan would be for the ferry-boats to have high upper decks that would abut on the docks upon bridges over the streets and which would continue on the plane of the first stories of the streets leading to the ferries. In other words, I would have matters so arranged that the traveller who left the elevated station of Cortlandt street, for instance, for the ferry would not descend the staircase but would walk upon a sidewalk on a level with the second story and have an uninterrupted passage to the upper deck of the ferry-boat I have indicated. See what a comfortable thing it would be for ladies, aged and sick persons who now are in danger of their lives from horses and carts in crossing West street. Then see what an advantage would accrue to property holders. They could sell their goods on the second as well as ground floor and thus enhance the value of their stores along the route. The pathway might be made of glass, such as now gives light to basements. All this is very practicable and with the increase in the business of our ferries I think it will come some day."

"There is another and larger project," continued Mr. Todd, "which I have long thought feasible, and which I would like you to mention in THE RECORD AND GUIDE. Instead of bridges and tunnels why not run a series of docks all the way across to Jersey City, with drawbridges wide enough to allow the largest vessels to pass through? But for twelve working hours of the day I would not permit any travel through the docks, but cable and steam propelled cars could be kept running between the two cities. The Hudson River commerce proper could be accommodated by the docks, and at intervals during the night the drawbridges could be opened for such shipping as wished to pass up and down the river. Some such plan as this was proposed for the East River, but it would hardly do in view of the money that is being spent to improve the channel of that stream in the neighborhood of Hell Gate."

REMARKS.—Mr. Todd's scheme for closing up the Hudson River, between New York and Jersey City, for the benefit of property holders in New Jersey, will not, we think, be undertaken this generation. It was a French engineer (his name escapes us) who proposed a vast scheme of docks and water basins between New York and Brooklyn. As an engineering feat this could doubtless be accomplished, but would it pay? It would be a very costly enterprise, and would involve the taking down of the bridge as a useless toy.

But Mr. Todd's suggestion respecting the second deck on ferry-boats connecting with a pathway parallel with the second story of the buildings leading to the ferry may become some day not only desirable but also imperative. The street crossings on the East and North Rivers near the ferries are not safe. Indeed something of this kind is already in operation in Stockholm. There is a suburb of that city known as Soedermarlin, in which is a very steep hill. On this hill are elegant gardens and places of recreation laid out. It was once so difficult to get at that few foreigners visited it. An engineer, named Kunt Lindmark, conceived the idea of erecting a tower in Stockholm and building an elevated plateau from its top to Molsebake, as this now famous hill is called. All who have visited Stockholm will remember the elevator, the tower, the plateau and the splendid scenery on the top of the hill after reaching it. Mr. Todd's idea is a modification of that of Engineer Lindmark, and when we have a reformed and efficient city government it is to be hoped some such enterprise would be undertaken. It is said that 120,000 people daily pass over our ferries, and the number is steadily increasing. The ferries are all difficult of approach, and a scheme such as that mentioned by Mr. Todd would be a real and important city improvement. EDITOR RECORD AND GUIDE.

Concerning Men and Things.

The Brooklyn butchers, the Dwyer brothers, who have had such success on the turf in former years are not doing so well this season. Their stable is very popular with the public, as they have the best animals generally, and the best jockey nearly always. But they are not in favor with their gentlemen competitors who also own race horses. It is charged that the Dwyers are inordinately selfish. They strive for and get all the cups and money prizes offered by the Lorillards, Belmonts, etc., but notwithstanding their enormous winnings they never offer prizes themselves. They are on the make every time, and care nothing for the sport except for the profit it brings them. They own interests, it is said, in the two largest gambling firms who make books at the races. Hence it has happened that Barnes and others of their horses have been heavily handicapped this season. No favors are shown them, nor should there be if the reports about them are true. The theory of the turf is that gentlemen should run horses to benefit the breed, but even jockeys have been allowed to compete at the various courses recently.

London sets the price of silver for the world. Last year $46,061,930 worth of silver was sold in that city at an average of about fifty-one pence an ounce; thence it was taken to Bombay or Calcutta, there to be coined into rupees at a valuation three per cent. higher than is given to silver in our standard dollar. In other words, England buys the silver of the world for ten to eleven per cent. less than the American unit of value, and converts it into a coin containing three per cent. less silver and with the same purchasing value as our dollar. In the banks of France, Germany, Austria, Hungary, Netherlands and Belgium there was on store at last accounts $483,788,000 in silver coins which contained three per cent. less silver than the American dollar. Our American standard counts silver as sixteen to one against gold. In India and in bi-metallic countries, such as France and Austria, the proportion is fifteen and a half to one. These facts are given in the Mining Journal, which also calls attention to the other significant fact that during the last twelve months the government of the United States has paid $112,000,000 of bonded debt in gold, while it has $6,798,027 more gold in its Treasury than it had twelve months ago. During the year the amount of standard dollars in the Treasury has fallen off $586,196, yet our journals, which carefully suppress these facts, are constantly deploring the evils of silver coinage and predicting the worst possible results from it, though none have yet occurred.

J. M. Quigley has won in the fight against Corbin and Ballou in the matter of the control of the Toledo & St. Louis road. This is a feather in the cap of this young and energetic financier, for his opponents were strong men and represented powerful interests; but he had the advantage of being in the right. He represented the bona fide bondholders, and had no axe of his own to grind. That promising road will now be reorganized under the best of auspices.

The Land Transfer Reform Commission.

NEW YORK, July 11th, 1884.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

SIR—On behalf of the Real Estate Exchange and Auction Room (Limited), I desire to thank you for your denial in your issue of June 28th of the report that persons representing the Exchange were trying to bulldoze the Governor in appointing certain heretofore unknown lawyers as members of the Real Estate Commission. Permit me to state explicitly that neither the Exchange nor any one authorized to represent it took any action in the matter further than sending to the Governor at his request a list of the names of those lawyers whom they deemed best qualified for appointment upon the commission. The five gentlemen appointed were all upon the list submitted to the Governor by the Exchange, and are all well qualified to fill the position to which they have been appointed.

Yours respectfully,

JAMES M. VARNUM,
Chairman Committee on Legislature, Real Estate Exchange.

"I wish," said a well-known real estate owner to the writer, "that you would urge upon the proper authorities the desirability of planting a great number of trees on the principal streets and avenues of New York. I do not wish my name mentioned in this matter, mind you, but THE RECORD AND GUIDE should particularly favor the planting of a large addition to the trees on Riverside Drive. There does not begin to be enough for the future requirements of that noble avenue. Paris has twenty trees where New York has one, yet our summers are hotter and longer and shade is needed more here than there. Plenty of trees in our streets would practically reduce the temperature three or four degrees. I can see no objection to any tree but the alanthus, which I really believe is poisonous. We had trees once in New York, but they were cut down because infested with the measuring worm, but we have long been rid of that nuisance, thanks to the multiplication of the English sparrow. I am afraid that the Park Commissioners will have so much to do with the new pleasure grounds in the annexed district that they will not attend to this matter. Of course I know they have no control over the streets and sidewalks, and I suppose this matter must be dealt in time by the Legislature, but THE RECORD AND GUIDE should keep on calling attention to this important matter until something is done."

We this week present our subscribers with a sixteen-page supplement containing an Index of all the Conveyances and Projected Buildings given in this publication for the past six months. Those who have files of the paper will find this of the greatest value. It will save the time and labor of wading through the twenty-six numbers, a reference to the Index enabling the searcher to find any conveyance of property or buildings projected during the first six months of the current year. Bound covers or files can be obtained at the office of this paper for one dollar.

Real Estate Department.

The past has been a dull week in real estate circles. There have been no important sales and the attendance of bidders has been light. The apartment houses advertised to be sold were bid in and the apparently large sale of Beekman street property on Thursday was merely to perfect title.

Notice is given by the Commissioners of Taxes and Assessments that the assessment rolls of real and personal estate for the year 1884 have been finally completed and have been delivered to the Board of Aldermen, and that such assessment rolls will remain open to public inspection, in the office of the clerk of said Board of Aldermen, for a period of fifteen days from July 7th.

The mid-summer real estate business shows a large increase over last year, judging from the official transfers of last week, compared with the corresponding week of last year. There were over one hundred more transfers and the sum invested was larger. The mortgage indebtedness was also greater. Here is the table:

Next week the Deane sale comes off, and it promises to be one of the most important held for a long time. Mr. Richard V. Harnett will preside at the auction stand. There has, it seems, been a great inquiry for the books containing a description of the houses. Although this is mid-summer, there is scarcely a doubt but what the Exchange will be as thronged as at any time during the spring. The property will certainly be sold and those who purchase will probably get bargains, for under the circumstances of the sale it is not believed the prices will represent actual values. This sale takes place on Tuesday and Wednesday next, and its success or failure will solve the question as to whether a fair price can be obtained for real property sold in mid-summer.

Mr. Harnett will also sell on Saturday, July 19th, two choice plots on the northwest and southwest corners of Second avenue and One Hundred and Twenty-eighth street.

The maps showing the present and proposed grades can be seen at Room 7, No. 31 Chambers street.

Special Notices.

The Messrs. Folsom Brothers have lately opened a real estate and insurance office on the southeast corner of Broadway and Thirty-first street. This firm is composed of Saml. D. and Thomas W. Folsom, lately of the firm of J. G. & S. D. Folsom & Co., and Wm. H. Folsom, manager of the Improved Dwellings Association, First avenue, Seventy-first and Seventy-second streets. They have had a long experience in handling first-class property, apartment houses and tenements, their father having established the business in 1847. Mr. S. D. Folsom has paid special attention to the management of estates, buying, selling and collecting rents, an experience gained in attending to the large family interests in the eastern part of the city. Mr. Thos. W. Folsom is notary public and commissioner of deeds for all the States and Territories. Under the management of Mr. Wm. H. Folsom, the Association for the Improvement of Dwellings for the Poor has been very successful. By his care and attention he has assured the success of the plan to supply the poorer classes with comfortable dwellings at a rent reasonable to the tenant and paying a fair return on the capital invested. They also have offices at 155 Second street, near Avenue A, and at 364 East Seventy-second street. They will no doubt have a long lease of success in their new quarters.

The attention of architects and others interested in marble work is referred to the card of Messrs. Theis & Trueg in another column. This firm has the best facilities for the execution of work in white and colored marbles, including wainscoting, mantels, flooring, balusters, etc. They have done some very excellent ecclesiastical and monumental work, which has been attested to by the bishops of Little Rock, Buffalo and Providence, and others. Their works are at Nos. 140 to 146 East Forty-second street, where communications will receive prompt attention.

The Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank have just declared a semi-annual dividend at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum, payable on and after July 21.

Potter's Colored Mortar can be purchased from all the principal dealers in masons' materials. It is furnished in red, black, buff and other colors, and is largely used for laying front bricks, etc. It is manufactured by the American Soapstone Finish Company, of Providence, R. I., and is warranted by them not to fade, bleach or stain the bricks. The agent in New York is Mr. Erskine W. Fisher, who can be addressed at the Mechanics' and Traders' Exchange (Box 225), 14 Vesey street.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

BRICKS.—Operators generally were reporting an unchanged market for Common Hards. There has been a first rate business doing, but for all the demand there was in every instance an ample supply, and cost has remained easy on every description of stock, with bids at former rates readily accepted. If there was any advantage at all the buyer had it, as in some instances small fractional shadings were allowed rather than miss the opportunity for concluding a sale. Some little shipping trade to near-by points has been doing, but most of the business was local, with a large proportion still said to be going direct to the jobs under way, a goodly number of which represent a liberal consumption of brick. Arrivals have come from pretty much all points along the river and in New Jersey, and the run of quality keeps well up to the same high standard of excellence before noted, resulting in fewer claims for fancy prices on special brands than usual. Pale brick sell to someextent, but the outlet is uncertain, and the run of cost continues wide, according to momentary governing circumstances. The accounts at hand very generally represent a steady and uninterrupted production at all points, and notwitstanding the steady shipments thus far made, an accumulation of considerable magnitude is shown at primary points. Manufacturers, however, are commencing to talk more seriously over the matter of supply and have already taken the preliminary steps looking toward a contraction of the output. A well attended meeting was held in this city during the present week, and after agreeing upon the advisability or bringing the production into smaller and more easily managed proportions, committees were appointed to solicit the co-operation of all the makers, both on the Hudson and in New Jersey. A report is expected in about a couple of weeks, when it is also intended to perfect a permanent organization if possible.

LATH.—The market has gained strength during the week. Business was not very active, indeed proved quite moderate, but this was due solely to the absence of supplies, as there was really a good demand current and several buyers have been somewhat anxiously inquiring after stock and wanting refusals on parcels to arrive. The highest actual sale we know of was at $2.00, but naturally with the advantages in their favor, receivers consider that rate rather low, and one or two have placed their limit at a much higher level.

LIME.—There is no change in values, the position remaining firm but quiet for want of stock. It is expected, however, that a larger offering will be available before a great while, as production is understood to have been resumed and shipments commenced.

LUMBER.—The holiday feeling still appears to be upon the market to some extent, or at least there is no evidence of an increased interest among buyers and the demand lacks encouraging force and volume. Receivers report that by careful looking around and the prompt acceptance of bids well up to going rates they can manage to work off moderate supplies of desirable and standard grades, but "off" qualities are pretty difficult to place, and there is no room for a larger quantity of any description, with the possible exception of very choice hardwoods. The second half of the year is opening with a very good general stock, but many of the trade claim that the accumulation is not as full as might have been expected, and attribute such a result to the slow character of business since January 1st, which, through its sluggish nature, has been deceptive as to volume. Dealers, however, are not as yet stimulated to prepare for future wants to any extent, and "just what we can see use for" remains as the basis for pretty much all orders.

Eastern Spruce finds no direct or positive demand awaiting it, and as a receiver expressed it, "all local outlets have to be pried open" to find a place for stock. Still cargoes have not accumulated afloat to any extent, and unless the schedule was unusually poor about former rates were obtained without much difficulty. Receivers, too, appear to have a considerable degree of confidence in the reports from the Eastward relating to the proposed light shipments and reduced production, and while admitting that rates have been somewhat lower within a few years, assert that manufacturers are determined to prevent a repetition this season. The "fleet" is now coming in this direction, and recent offerings have been pretty full, but all sales are said to have been made within the old range, or say $13.00@15.00 for random, with the cost of specials ranging from the latter figure up to $17.00 per M.

White Pine occupies a doubtful position, and, to a certain extent, there is no regular market at the moment. A great many buyers appear to be out altogether owing either to direct receipts or a general sort of indifference over the situation and matters are not in good form to give the market a fair test. Valuations in consequence are made from a more or less nominal basis but as now named would probably prove high for actual business. Exporters appear to be offish and indifferent generally. We quote at $17.50@20.00 for West India shipping boards; $25@28 for South American do.; $14@15 for box boards, and $16.00@17.50 for extra do.

Yellow Pine shows little or no change since our last. The direct distribution from stock in hand is moderate and uncertain and confined entirely to small lots for some special purpose, or now and then a delivery on contract, but beyond that not much of an outlet is offered. There is, however, more or less figuring taking place over parcels likely to be wanted later in the season and the hopeful feeling of agents referred to in our last continues. There is also a claim for better advices from the south regarding the position of manufacturers, with the hope again expressed that the product will be kept under closer control. There is also said to be some prospect of a reduced supply of tonnage. We quote as follows: Randoms, $18@21.00 per M; Specials, $20@22.00 do.; Green Flooring Boards, $22@23; Dry do., do., $23@24; Siding, $22@28 do.; Cargoes f. o. b. at Atlantic ports, $14@15.00 for rough, and $19@21 for dressed. Cargoes f. o. b. at Gulf ports, $13@14 for rough, and $18@20 for dressed.

Hardwoods are not active. If a first-class offering of almost any kind of stock is made it secures attention, but anything at all faulty has to undergo a great deal of peddling before customers can be found. Interior shippers do not appear to understand that "oft told tale," but continue to send forward all sorts of stuff, much of which has to be slaughtered as the only means of finding customers. We quote at wholesale rates by car load as follows: Walnut, $65@110 per M.; ash, $35@40 do.; oak, $30@55 do.; maple, $20@32.50 do.; chestnut, $25@30 do.; cherry, $40@75 do.; whitewood, $27@35 do., do.; elm, $22@25; hickory, $45@52.50 do.

GENERAL LUMBER NOTES.

STATE.

ALBANY MARKET.

The Argus reports for week ending July 8 as follows:

There has been the usual trade for this season of the year, with a fair attendance of buyers in market, purchasing mostly for immediate wants. The shipments have been fair and the receipts larger of all kinds of pine, which is now in good stock on the yards. The receipts from Michigan have been large, while from Canada there is a falling off, which is expected to continue, as shipments to England are increasing, and among them a large amount of square timber, intended to be sawn there into required sizes. This is thought to be experimental with doubtful results, the probabilities being a return to the old method. Spruce and hemlock are arriving daily, and the stock in the district is larger than at any time before in this season. The demand is good and prices are steady. Hardwoods are in good supply, kept up by continuous arrivals. All kinds can be found on the yards, and are being freely sold to those who require stock fit for use. Shingles are in fair supply. Lath are arriving freely.

THE WEST.

The Lumberman and Manufacturer, Minneapolis, Minn., as follows:

At Minneapolis the shipments amount to three and a-half million, and local consumption to nearly two more, while the receipts are a million per week of pine and the mills cutting about eight millions.

The log trade on the St. Croix presents no new features, some seven or eight million have been sold during the week at from $1 to $2 less than last year's prices. Some cheap common mill run lots of lumber are being sold at a sacrifice for future delivery, but good boards and strips in the water seem to hold up well. Ashland and Bayfield are getting rid of their surplus by boat to Chicago. Great complaint is made of the Wisconsin Central line, which seems determined to freeze out every mill man on its line. They might as well be in the heart of Africa with their mills so far as making any money is concerned.

LUMBERMAN'S GAZETTE,
BAY CITY, MICH.

Lumber sales at this time of the year are not unusually very brisk, and a few weeks of inactivity is ordinarily looked for. Up to about ten days ago, two weeks or more of sluggishness had been reported, but about the time named buyers put in an appearance on the river, and the commission dealers and inspectors, through their customers, received orders, which have induced more apparent activity. Stocks at the east, in localities to which the Saginaw River is tributary, are reported light, with a very satisfactory demand, and the same is true of points in Ohio, which facts induce the belief that the revival has set in, and that instead of the late activity being temporary it will probably be permanent; at all events manufacturers are again inspired with confidence in regard to the future. There is nothing to report in regard to prices, other than what has been apparent for months and to which the Gazette has heretofore frequently alluded, viz: good stock is in active call at the quotations of last fall, while coarse stock inclines to weakness, but still keeps moving, pursuant to the demand for lumber in the east, which must be met.

Notwithstanding the fact that freights are so low ($1.50 to Buffalo and Tonawanda and $1.25 to Ohio ports) there has been much anxiety to load on the part of vessel men, and a very large quantity of lumber has left the river since the settlement of the Tonawanda canal boat trouble, and especially during the past week, when the shipments have been fully up to the usual standard, if not in excess thereof.

ENGLAND.

The Timber Trade's Journal says of the London market:

Since the commencement of the year up to the date of the report there have been only twelve standards less of deals, battens and flooring delivered than there was twelve months ago during a similar period, which is a very near thing, and seems to imply that the trade at that time was much as it is now. The f. o. b. trade was perhaps a shade better, but we recollect that the same general dullness that now exists was equally prevalent at that time, and which was rightly or wrongly laid at the door of over-production.

American black walnut is still selling in a satisfactory way; the stock of large-sized prime wood is light, but there appears to be a fair amount of stock of middle-class logs on hand. Perhaps it is well we have seen the last of the parcel recently sold without reserve; some of these tiers contained logs so twisted in the growth, shaken-sided, and poor in every way, that it is hard to guess for what purpose they could possibly be used. The sale of plank stuff and squares, of which we see there is still a considerable dry stock on hand, is by no means brisk, but as shippers have stopped sending these goods over, no doubt the stock here will gradually be absorbed by the trade.

American whitewood, of which several parcels of boards and planks have lately arrived, is still being used in very considerable quantities. We know the opinions of the trade as to the merits of this wood have been very divided, but that it is fast gaining favor is quite evident.

LIVERPOOL.

The quays at the docks devoted to the timber trade are again looking bare, large spaces being unoccupied; this will not be the case for more than a few days, as several vessels, both steamers and sailing vessels, have arrived or are now due with cargoes of spruce deals from St John, N. B. It is understood that a good number of the former are under charter for Liverpool and other West Coast ports at very low rates. This enables the shipper to sell at reduced prices, and, under the pressure to sell, prices of these goods have declined, and sales by private treaty as well as by auction are lower than they have been for years past.

In pitch pine there is little change, but what there is is still in favor of the buyer, and the auction sale of Wednesday showed a decline. Another good order for hewn timber, just issued by the Mersey Docks and Harbor Board, will swell the figures of consumption for this month.

METALS.—COPPER—Ingot moves along in about the usual form, the sales rarely extending beyond ordinary jobbing parcels, and prices showing no change. Stocks are kept well in hand, and offered only on direct call. We quote at 14@14½c. for Lake down to about 13c. for less popular brands. Manufactured Copper has been somewhat dull, but the market appears to rule steady and free from any unusual effort to realize. We quote as follows: Brazier's Copper, ordinary size, over 16 oz. per sq. foot, 22c. per lb.; do. do. do., 16 oz. and over 12 oz. per sq. foot, 24c. per lb.; do. do., 10 and 12 oz. per sq. foot, 27c. per lb.; do., do., lighter than 10 oz. per sq. foot, 29c. per lb.; circles less than 24 inches in diameter, 25c. per lb.; 24 inches in diameter and over, 28c. per lb.; segment and pattern sheets, 25c. per lb.; locomotive fire-box sheets, 23c. per lb.; Sheathing Copper, over 12 oz. per sq. foot, 20c. per lb., and Bolt Copper, 23c. per lb. IRON—Scotch Pig shows about the former general range of values, but the tone of the market is weak and unsettled under the continued slow, uncertain demand, and comparatively full offering of stock. We quote at $19.00@22.00 per ton, according to brand, &c. American Pig meets with a careful, conservative demand, but the outlet appears to be large enough to prevent an accumulation of supplies, and prices are sustained on quite a steady basis all around. We quote $20.00@20.50 per ton for No. 1 X foundry, $18.50@19.00 for No. 2 X do. do., and $17.00@18.00 for gray forge. Old rails in light, uncertain demand, with the position to some extent nominal. Scrap Iron selling very slowly, but supplies are held at about former rates, with no very large quantity offering. We quote at $19.00@20.00 for tee rails, $21@22.00 for double heads, $20.00@20.50 for No. 1 wrought scrap ex ship, $21.00@23.00 for selected do., $17.00@18.00 for old car wheels, and $20.00@21.00 for crop ends. Steel Rails meet with some inquiry, but there is evidently much competition to secure the orders, and prices remain easy. We quote at $30.00@31.00 per ton for heavy sections. Manufactured Iron continues to go out to some extent on contract, but new demand is not active or general. Prices remain about as before. We quote Common Merchant Bar, ordinary sizes, at 2.0@2.10c. from store, and Refined at 2.10@2.45c.; Rods, round and square, 2.20@2.35c.; Bands, 2.50@2.60c.; Norway Nail Rods, 5¼@6c., and domestic sheet on the basis of 2.80@3.10c. for common Nos. 10@16. Other descriptions at corresponding prices, with 1-10c. less on large lots from cars. LEAD—Domestic Pig has a moderately active jobbing trade, but beyond that does not appear to find much of a market, and all bids at former rates are accepted. We quote at about 3⅝@3¾c. per lb., according to brand and the size of invoice handled. The manufactures of lead are steady and quoted: Bar, 5c.; pipe, 6¼c.; and sheet, 7¼c., less the usual discount to the trade; and tin-lined pipe, 15c.; block tin pipe, 45c., on same terms. TIN—Pig has shaded somewhat in value since our last report, but the decline did not attract additional demand, and the business was mainly in jobbing form. We quote at 18¾@19c. for Straits, 19@19¼c. for Australian, 19½@19¾ for English, and 20@20¼c. for Banca. Tin Plates met with a somewhat irregular demand, the sales showing job lots in the main. Cokes, however, have been scarce and firm, with a tendency toward increased value in some cases. We quote I. C. Charcoal, third class assortment, $5.20@5.25 for Allaway grade, and $5.90@6.00 for Melyn grade; for each additional X add $1.25 and $1.50 respectively; I. C. Coke, $4 85@4.87½ for B. V. grade; $4.90@4.92½ for J. B. grade; Charcoal terne, $4 80@5.05 for Allaway and Dean grades 14x20; $9.75@10.00 for do. 20x28; Coke terne, $4.55@4.60 for Glais grade 14x20, and $9.50@9.55 for do. 20x28—all in round lots. Spelter in moderately active demand, and ruling steady at 4½@5c. for domestic and foreign, according to brand, quantity, etc. Sheet Zinc steady, but not very active. We quote at 5⅞@7c., according to quality, quantity, etc.

NAILS.—For all regular sizes there is a fair sort of demand, but the market without general animation and stock seldom taken except as a matter of necessity. To meet the call the offering is free and open, both as regards quantity and assortment, and holders appear pretty well inclined to accept at least former rates whenever opportunity offers. Prices are somewhat irregular and quoted from $2.55 down to $2.40 per keg for 10d. to 60d., according to quantity.

PAINTS, OILS, ETC.—A moderate distribution continues and embraces only the standard goods taken on ordinary trade orders. The offering is found quite equal to the outlet, and in pretty much all cases sellers are ready to close on a basis of the prices for some time ruling. Linseed has a fair average demand and the supply under close enough control to permit a steady holding at about 56@57c. for domestic and 59@60c. for foreign. Spirits Turpentine not very active, but showing some advance, and firmly held at 31@32c. per gallon, according to size of invoice, delivery, etc.

PITCH AND TAR.—A little more doing in some instances, but the demand not beyond the capacity of the supply and former rates accepted readily. We quote: Pitch, $2.25@2.30 per bbl.; Tar, $2.50@2.00 do., according to quantity, quality and delivery.

MORTGAGES.

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given, and the amount. The general dates used as headings are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

ELECTRIC DOOR OPENERS
For Apartment Houses.

PATENTED APRIL 29, 1884; other Patents Applied For.

A large number of J. H Bunnell & Co.'s Electric Door-Openers are now in use in apartment houses in this city. Experience demonstrates their great practical superiority over the usual kind known as "the Mechanical Door-Opener."
With the Electric Door-Opener, the front door is instantly unlatched by simply pressing an electrical button, placed wherever convenience requires it; and as the connection can be made with any number of buttons, they may be so located that the door may be unlatched from any point on any floor of the largest house with equal ease.
This Electric Door-Opener completely obviates all the well known difficulties and expenses arising from the stretching and repairing of "pull-wires," as the work is perfectly performed by the electric current which passes through stationary wires.
Architects and owners are invited to inspect the operation of this device at our office, or at any of the apartment houses where it is in use. For information, prices, or reference regarding those in use, communications addressed to us will be promptly answered by mail or personal call by our Agents, who will also furnish estimates upon other electrical work of every description.

HINSDALE CITY,

LONG ISLAND, NEW YORK.

Several Thousand Building lots, 25x100 feet each, surrounding Hinsdale Depot.

PRICE, $175 PER LOT.

Selling on Monthly Payments of $5 per Lot. Or four Lots, $10 per month, after the first payment of $5 per Lot has been made.

Cottages built for lot owners and sold on monthly payments of $10, $15 and $20, according to cost, or money advanced for building purposes on same terms, viz: $5 per month for each $500 of cost of building or money advanced. Shanties or nuisances not permitted. Plans of buildings must be approved before erected. Prices of unsold lots advanced $5 per lot monthly, until at least $300 per lot is reached, and the great number of cottages and other buildings to be erected will certainly warrant their gradual increase. Hinsdale is 13 miles from New York, 35 minutes by rail, and 5 minutes additional by Brooklyn Bridge or Ferry, and the commutation is only 10 cents per trip.

J. T. LINDSEY, Business Manager.

JULY 19, 1884.

And now the mechanics connected with the building trades are striking again; in some places for more wages, in others for a reduction of labor to nine hours per day. Employers should resist these absurd demands in the interest of the laboring men themselves. To ask for more wages for less work at this juncture is to kill the goose that lays the golden eggs. Employing brickmakers talk about shutting down for a couple of months, and if they do thousands of men will be thrown out of employment. There is a general feeling among employers that they must resist these demands. But the mere fact of a talk of a strike with the universal depression prevailing in business shows what a large amount of building must be going on throughout the country.

The Deane sale ought to put an end to the illusion that real estate will not sell as well in mid-summer as it does in the spring or fall. Staple property of any kind will command its value at any time of the year. The Stock Exchange is often as active in mid-summer as at any other season, although its patrons and dealers belong to the wealthiest class, who always take a long vacation during the warm weather. True, they are in direct communication with Wall street by wire, but real estate dealers will have the same facilities when their Exchange is under way. At the Deane sale the crowd was as large and the bidders as numerous as at any sale during the spring, nor can anyone say that the prices were not as good in July as they would have been in March. It is understood that quite a good deal of property would have come upon the market this summer but sellers have been persuaded to postpone their offerings until fall. The brokers who gave this advice did it in the interests of their clients, but we believe they were mistaken. Merchants who deal in winter and summer clothing have an excuse for regarding the seasons, but there is no season for fixed property like securities and realty, or rather all seasons are alike.

If the price and production of iron is an indication of the state of business, then is the outlook very unpromising. On the first of July last there were fewer pig iron furnaces in blast than in any period since 1879. Of the total of 703 works, only 279, or less than 40 per cent., are in operation, against 343 a year ago, and 437 on July 1, 1881. For the first half of this year our production of iron has decreased about 360,000 tons compared with last year. This depression is confined to no one section of the country Every iron producing region is suffering alike. It is worthy of remark, however, that the furnaces in blast are able to produce a hundred tons a week more on the average than those which have been blown out, which proves that there has been a survival of the fittest and that the best located furnaces and the most efficient can hold their own even in these hard times for the iron trade. According to "Sam" Benner, as well as authorities that rank higher, it is idle to talk of the revival of business so long as the iron industries are languishing. Until there is a demand for tools and for the materials that enter into the construction of railways, the outlook cannot be considered hopeful.

Jay Gould, like Hamlet's mother, doth "protest too much." His recent letter predicting a better condition of the stock market would have had more effect had he not so often preached from the same text during the past three years in scores of newspaper interviews. Over a year ago he said the only blue spot in the Union was in Wall street. His anxiety to create a favorable impression robs what he says in his Boston Herald letter of much of its force. Still this time we think he is right. The business of the railways must improve as the great crops of the summer come to be marketed. With increased receipts there will be no more passing of dividends or defaults of interest on the good trunk lines which have had a fair financial reputation in the past. Jay Gould's fate is like that of the little boy who cried "wolf" so often that he was not believed when that predatory animal really arrived, so with Gould's cry of "good times coming."

But there will be no "boom." Confidence is a plant of slow growth, and purchasers of railway securities will be cautious. Then there are signs of trouble in the mercantile world. There may be a large crop of failures in dry-goods and other firms due to past losses and slow collections. This may check recoveries of values on the Stock Exchange, but we do not believe, if they occur, that they will lower the prices of good securities from this time forth. The liquidation has apparently done its worst in Wall street, although it has not come to an end apparently in general trade.

If we are to have a great corn as well as a large wheat crop the year will close brilliantly. There will be no boom, of course, but the railroads will have all they can do, and, as a consequence, there will be no wars or cutting of rates. A large business and good prices means heavier profits and more satisfactory dividends. All who can hold or carry good securities should make money for the next twelve months. But then a disaster to the corn or cotton crop would upset this calculation. The weather has been rather cool for corn recently, but there is time enough for a hot spell.

Political Changes.

Although the tariff and revenue reform issue was "burked" by the Democrats as well as the Republicans in the platforms adopted, the subject itself is so vital and imperative that it will inevitably enter into the canvass. The Republicans who will vote for Cleveland are generally free traders. The New York Times and Evening Post have for years been denouncing the protective tariff. George William Curtis has announced since he bolted that he favors a more liberal tariff and that that is a vital issue. Then most of the New York, Boston and New Haven malcontents have belonged to the free trade wing of the Republican party.

It does not appear, however, that any number of Democratic protectionists will vote for Mr. Blaine. His recruits, if he has any, will come from quite a different quarter. The Irish in the large cities, or at least very many of them, will cast their ballots for the Republican candidate because they believe he will oppose a bold front to Great Britain and thus indirectly help the Irish cause. The labor organizations will also furnish recruits for Mr. Blaine because of the supposed subservience of Mr. Cleveland to corporate interests. Should the defection in this city from Cleveland be so large as to divide the vote between the two parties, it might prove the death blow to that unique organization, Tammany Hall. Tammany has heretofore been tolerated—indeed encouraged by the State Democracy—because the Democratic majority was so large that it could best be kept in hand by two instead of one organization. Indeed the local Democratic vote could not be counted upon if wielded by one set of leaders. Should, however, the two parties be more evenly divided there will be room for only one organization of Democrats and Tammany would from necessity be forced to retire from the field. Indeed it is doubtful if the organization would survive the death or retirement of John Kelly, whose prestige and fighting personality has kept it alive since the ruin of the Tweed ring.

The independent Republicans who propose to vote for Cleveland intend, it seems, to keep up an independent organization of their own. This may do at first so that their leaders may gain recognition when nominations for office are in order, but eventually they must cast their lot with the Democratic party. They will supply an element of respectability, character and lofty aims if that organization treats them with any consideration. It is sincerely to be hoped that in this city at least, in the next, as in all coming elections, that the two parties will be more evenly divided numerically than they have been in the past. If there is not a large majority either way, it will put a stop to corrupt bargains and force the conventions to nominate good candidates for office. We must somehow elect good Mayors in New York, or else universal suffrage, as applied to municipalities, will prove a dismal failure. Our Mayors hereafter will be real executives with very great power. If the authority vested in the chief magistrate is abused, there will be no remedy for misgovernment but revolution.

From these considerations, it will be seen that the changes taking place in the rank and file of the two parties has a direct bearing upon our local government, and hence the importance that the real estate interest attaches to the mutations of the national party organizations.

The law which provides for the taking of lands in the annexed district for six new parks places the initiatory steps in the proceedings in the Park Department. There was a meeting of the Park Commissioners on Monday, all the commissioners being present. A resolution was unanimously adopted by the Board authorizing the Corporation Counsel to take the necessary proceedings and make the application to the courts for the appointment of the Commissioners of Estimate to determine the amount to be paid for the lands to be taken for the parks. This prompt action of the Park Commissioners is to be commended and demonstrates that there is to be no delay in carrying out the purposes and intent of the act for more parks.

Our Prophetic Department.

POLITICIAN—If it's a fair question, Sir Oracle, I should like to know if you are a Republican or a Democrat, and also whether you feel like supporting Blaine or Cleveland.

SIR ORACLE—The question is a fair one and I will answer you with pleasure. I belong to the ruling class in this country, and therefore do not label myself either Republican or Democratic.

POLITICIAN—You speak in riddles, explain yourself. How can there be a ruling class outside of the Republican or Democratic organizations?

SIR O.—The vast mass of voters are set in their way, they never cast a ballot except for one or other of the two parties. In round numbers there are, say, 10,000,000 voters in this country. Now 4,500,000 are certain to vote the Democratic ticket, and about the same number the Republican ticket. With the rank and file it really makes very little difference who is the candidate, they will vote the regular ticket anyway. These vast masses of voters do not affect party changes for they never alter their attitudes; but there are a million voters, more or less, who do change sides and who represent what may be called the dynamite forces in our politics, the regular partisans being the static forces. Among this million of voters who are liable to change are many distinct classes. There is the impressionable voter, who is attracted by a hurrah or driven by a prevailing excitement. Then there is the corrupt voter, who can be bought or influenced. Last of all, and I fear smallest in number, is the reasonable voter. He passes judgment on the candidates and platforms of the two parties and votes accordingly. This is my attitude. The history of all free governments show that two parties are essential elements in every commonwealth. There is no wickedness in one more than in the other. The possession of power long continued leads to abuses. The party out of power is generally the purest, although its experience may better fit the "ins" to conduct public affairs.

POLITICIAN—Then I should suppose that you would favor Mr. Cleveland as representing the reform element and the standard bearer of the party out of power in the national government?

SIR O.—No; I am in the same boat with Ben. Butler and John Kelly. I have not made up my mind. There are things about Cleveland I do not like. He is a lawyer of a technical kind. His messages, especially his first one, show no breadth of view or ability such as this great country should have at its command in an executive. The second name on the ticket is that of a far abler man. Mr. Blaine's recently published history shows him to be a statesman of enlarged views, and his career in Congress places him in the very front rank of the politicians of the country; but his abilities would be a detriment to his country if his moral character is what his opponents say it is, while Mr. Cleveland, if his motives are pure, may make a more useful executive even if his abilities are as mediocre as I regard them.

POLITICIAN—I get somehow the impression from what you say that the country will have to choose between a fool and a knave.

SIR O.—That is an exaggeration. Mr. Cleveland is by no means a fool, nor did I ever take stock in the theory that Mr. Blaine is dishonest. I think the feeling in regard to him is that he is a dangerous rather than an untrustworthy person. He would want to make a name in history should he secure the presidency, and might not be particular as to the means.

POLITICIAN—What do you think of the chances of the two candidates?

SIR O.—If the election were held immediately I think Mr. Cleveland would be chosen, that is to say, I believe he would get the most of the million of voters who, as I said, are the real ruling class. Mr. Blaine was unquestionably the choice of the rank and file of the Republican party. There was no nomination like it since that of Henry Clay. But Clay was beaten, and hence the popularity of "dark" horses with both parties, for James K. Polk was the first steed of that hue which ran for the presidency. Mr. Blaine will gain some Irish votes and some of the laborers will vote for him, but the independents, the "kickers" and the reformers will to all appearances cast their lot on the side of the Democratic nominee. Mr. Blaine, however, has one chance of an election.

POLITICIAN—And that is?

SIR O.—Enough for the present, I will explain next week.

POLITICIAN—How do you regard the business situation?

SIR O.—Put me down as a moderate bull. I think the liquidation is practically complete in railway securities.

POLITICIAN—But is there not a possibility of business failures? And if there is, will not that affect the market for securities?

SIR O.—I think not materially. The shrinkage has done its worst on the Exchanges. The weak holders have been shaken out, and stocks are now in hands that can hold them at the present reduced valuations. Our great crops must tell on railway receipts. Nothing can now depress the market but—

POLITICIAN—But what?

SIR O.—The unexpected.

The Business Outlook.

General Anson Stager, formerly vice-president of the Western Union Telegraph Company—before the Jay Gould regime—was in town last week from Chicago, where he resides, and was asked by the writer what he thought of the business situation.

"I do not feel very hopeful," said General Stager. "We are now gathering the finest wheat crop that the country has probably ever grown, with the exception, perhaps, of 1882. Then our corn crop will no doubt be the largest we have ever had. But I question whether we shall have a prosperous year. Formerly a good crop meant a good business season, but to be prosperous you must have markets as well as crops, and good prices as well as markets. Now, unfortunately, while we have the crops, we have neither the prices nor the markets, and therefore I don't see a satisfactory outlook for the business of the country."

"What do you now think of Western Union?" asked the writer.

"Anyone who purchases it at present prices will get good dividends, but I have found it a poor stock to trade in lately. Wall street has got the impression that the company is intrinsically weak, and the stock is sold down on rumors of opposition combinations. For myself I do not regard the latter as amounting to much. The Western Union has every advantage over its rivals, and its monopoly cannot be taken away from it. The Baltimore & Ohio must be losing money, and the other companies are of no account. People who know most about the value of Western Union and who speculate in the stock have lost their money. Its market price bears no relation to its earning capacity."

"Does it not look queer," asked the writer, "that the prospects for business should be overcast in view of the great crops and the producing capacity of the country?"

"There's where the trouble comes in," said General Stager. "We are able to produce far more than we can sell, not only of grain and cotton, but of manufactured goods. We lack markets."

"But," urged the writer, "is there not some doubt about there being over-production? Is not the trouble under-consumption? The world is full of people with hungry stomachs and bare backs. The most ordinary wants of mankind, to say nothing of luxuries, do not begin to be supplied. THE RECORD AND GUIDE seems to think the real difficulty is that there is not enough money, that the demonetization of silver by the commercial nations has lessened the fund through the medium of which products are furnished. This, that paper says, would account for the dullness of trade all over the world, for the low prices and for the impossibility of finding markets, due to the poverty of purchasers."

"I would not be surprised if that were the correct view of the situation," said the general. "Anyway the fact remains that with a bountiful crop before us, trade is dull and the outlook for business gloomy."

"The failure of Halsted, Haines & Co.," said a prominent member of a leading silk house, "will, I fear, be followed by that of other firms, representing not only their specialties but the entire wholesale business of the country. Trade has been in a bad way for three years. That is to say we are producing and purchasing at higher prices than we can get when we undertake to sell. When prices began to fall off, dealers in woollen, cotton, silk and other goods supposed the depression would be but temporary; but the shrinkage kept right on. Our profits had been so large from 1878 to 1881 that we were all very strong when the turn in the tide came; but the low prices were only the forerunner of others still lower and so we made loss after loss. However, money was easy, wonderfully so, and the banks kept us along. But now all is changed. The banks have shut down on single named paper. Last spring they were begging merchants to take their money, now they will not renew our notes unless endorsed by the strongest names in the mercantile world. I expect to see failure after failure of establishments that have large surplus assets, but which are unavailable in an emergency such as that we have apparently reached. The cyclone seemed to have blown itself out in the financial world, but I believe it has only just made its appearance in mercantile circles."

"You doubtless, then," said the writer, "look for much lower prices in the stock market?"

"No, I think the liquidation has done its worst in securities. The dry rot of the last few years will now I think show itself in general trade."

"How about landed property?"

"I am a believer in it and think the coming fall will develop a good market in realty. Prudent investors will take their money out of trade and put it into houses and lands."

Information About Securities.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE.

Your paper has many good suggestions, but somehow you don't follow them up. A few weeks ago you called attention to the necessity of a bureau, which should give information about railway stocks and bonds, and you proposed that Mr. Erastus Wiman should inaugurate such an institution. This is an excellent idea. The investor is now in the hands of the Philistines. His broker or banker knows nothing and cares less for the intrinsic value of the securities in which he operates. His interest is to buy or sell, and charge his commission. Now the reading on a bond is Greek to an ordinary investor. It may contain provisions which place him at the mercy of the managers of the company. An organization like the firm of R. G. Dun & Co. or Bradstreet's could have the latest and best information about all the roads, and lawyers in its employ would carefully note the legal questions affecting the price of the stock and bonds. Anyone who had ten or twenty thousand dollars to put into some investment security would willingly pay one hundred dollars to an organization which could give information as to its value, and which would notify him if anything suspicious occurred respecting the value of the securities already purchased. By all means let such an organization be effected.

Home Decorative Notes.

—The antique classic styles of the First Empire are seldom employed for an entire room, but there may be a sofa and chairs in these quaint severe shapes in rooms not furnished in any pure style, the fancy for cabinets and escritoires of this period has had much influence in bringing into general use the mahogany with brass mouldings in which these styles are most often represented, the heavy ponderous designs of the Italian Renaissance are commended for grand libraries and dining halls and are best expressed in black woods richly carved, inlaid with ivory and upholstered with antique tapestry.

—Plain white towels may be made ornamental by placing two rows of drawn work at each end, and fasten with red or blue etching cotton, overcast the edges just above the fringe.

—A very pretty panel for the wall is of gray velvet embroidered with a bunch of hollyhocks in arrasene, or velours may be used with very pleasing effect.

—A new and tasteful table is modelled somewhat on the old style, made either of mahogany or ebony, with brass feet and brass mountings, these tables are either square or oblong, and all the lines are very light.

—A very curious device applied to a buffet scarf is a row of three or four large dragons couchant, separated and encircled by a graceful arabesque, the colors used for this pattern are Turkey red and navy blue, the dragons are embroidered solidly in red, the scroll in blue, a deep drawn work border and heavy fringe into which the red and blue cottons are knotted give the required finish.

—Crumb-trays of olive wood in the shape of a horse-shoe and studded with silver nails are very pretty.

—Basket-work which was devoted almost exclusively to chairs and cradles, is now employed for tables and other boudoir articles.

—A handsome portiere may be made of dark blue or green cloth, at each end put a piece of velveteen at least a quarter of a yard deep, in the centre of the curtain place nine rows of gilt crescents extending directly across the material and each immediately below the other.

—Hangings of two shades of the same color are popular.

—Japanese carved frames for screens are very handsome.

—In many of the most fashionable drawing-rooms of to-day you will find exact fac-similes of the old easy chair of our grandmother's days, with high back and curving flat-topped arms, even the old style of wooden seated rocker without arms and with a straight back is re-produced in the furnishing of modern households.

—A narrow shelf on simple brackets placed over a doorway and painted like the woodwork of the room with a few pieces of pottery good in color and shape grouped upon it is a pleasing and artistic decoration to a room.

—Tapestry decoration is becoming very popular.

—In thermometers there are excellent examples of decorative treatment, there is a clever device for a library which represents the thermometer as constituting the handle of a quill pen, another form is that of a Turkish cimeter with chased and gilded handle and a thermometer extending along its silver blade, it may be hung by a crimson cord against a panel covered with crimson plush.

—The honeysuckle, Japan lily and nasturtium are among the popular designs for embroidery.

—Delicate and pleasing bureau sets are of Bolting cloth embroidered with tiny sprays of partridge berries, finish with narrow gold lace.

—Leather chair seats may be brightened and revived by rubbing with the white of an egg.

—Mirrors which begin to show the ravages of time may be effectively concealed by draping them with Madras muslin; the curtains may be caught at the sides with loops of ribbon, and at the centre of the mirror where the curtains join fasten a large bow of ribbon.

—Matting may be cleaned with hot water and salt.

—Mirrors have taken every conceivable and inappropriate shape imaginable, one appears as a mandolin, another as a lyre, a third as a palette and a fourth as a prosaic dust-pan; among the prettiest mirror frames are those of bamboo, arranged in geometrical designs and decorated with bows of ribbon.

—Crackle glass lamp shades are pleasing in their effects.

—A large screen, Japanese in sentiment, is composed of black satin, mounted in a black lacquer frame, the decoration a peacock life sized and perched on a pine bough, is magnificently embroidered in dazzling gold, the feathers of the bird standing out in slight relief; for beauty of effect the pine with its needle-like foliage is admirable either in gold, green or dull autumnal reds or bronzes, the clustering spikes being always picturesque.

—Exquisite finger bowl doilies are of fine crepe cloth worked with the Holbein stitch in designs of fruit.

—Soft Japanese red, dull light blue, gray blue, ecru yellow and golden brown are fashionable colors for furniture stuffs, the finely shaded silk plushes are still liked for their soft, luxurious pile and fine color, while the strong mohair plush is chosen for service.

—Wall papers are made so artistically beautiful at the present time that they form no insignificant part in the decoration of a room. The variety of patterns have steadily multiplied, and most striking devices and novelties are produced; it is impossible to set down any set rules in regard to interior decoration, as the tastes of people differ so widely, yet each are more or less good according to the preference of the individual; many very elegant and artistic designs are offered by Thos. Faye, of 810 Broadway.

Concerning Men and Things.

A cheap Blaine paper is needed for this canvass. It might be modeled on Horace Greeley's famous "Log Cabin," which was so efficient in the "Tippecanoe and Tyler, too," campaign. The Tribune is an able paper, but it is handicapped by its past relations with the laboring people and the Irish. Mr. Whitelaw Reid has waged bitter war on trade's unions, and the printers have tried to "boycott" his paper. Now Cleveland's weakness and Blaine's strength in other large cities is the Irish and labor vote. A dashing, vehement, manifest destiny, anti-English and rights of labor cheap paper could do more good for Blaine than a dozen Tribunes, and would find an audience ready made to hand. True, there are too many papers already, but about half of them have no reason for living. The press of New York, that is the daily press, lacks character and vigor. Then Cleveland has more organs than he will require in the canvass, or that his votes will justify when they come to be counted.

The paragraph in THE RECORD AND GUIDE anent the condition of the passenger waiting room of the Third avenue depot has had its effect. The place has been cleansed, and is now a fairly tolerable resting place for those who wish to take the cars. So far, so good. But we wish to call the attention of the Health Board to the Star Theatre. Henry Irving told the writer that the lower regions behind the footlights were filthy beyond conception. He said he had no doubt that Miss Terry's ill health when playing was due to the noisome condition of the stage. The Kiralfy's are to produce a spectacle at this theatre on September 1, and there is plenty of time to clean and sweeten the nether regions of this place of amusement. A spectacle involves a crowded stage, on which are many poor girls from tenement houses, where typhus and other dangerous fevers often prevail. If the infection were communicated to the mass of filth said to be under the Star stage, it might be dangerous not only to the supernumeraries but to the people in front. Will General Shaler look into this matter?

Washington is yearly becoming a handsomer city. The much-abused Boss Shepard changed it from a slatternly Southern town into a capital worthy of the nation. He spent a great deal of money doing so, much of which was doubtless wasted, but he had to accomplish in four years what should have taken forty to complete. The Congress that has just adjourned made some appropriations which will add to the attractiveness of the capital. The work of improving and reclaiming the Potomac flats just south of the White House is rapidly progressing, and land has greatly enhanced in value in that quarter of the city. The asphaltum pavement, which has proved so successful, and which almost equals that of Paris, is being laid upon new avenues. An attempt will also be made to rival the famous avenue of linden trees in Berlin. This Washington avenue is already five miles long, but soon the sojourner at the capital will be able to travel nine miles "Unter der Linden." Washington is a happy as well as a beautiful city. Universal suffrage has been abolished. The District of Columbia is governed by commissioners appointed by Congress, and consequently it will compare with any European city in good order and cleanliness, while taxes are exceptionally light.

The Board of Education has called upon the Comptroller for half of the two million which the last Legislature authorized the city to spend for new school houses. Three new school buildings are to be erected in the Twelfth Ward and one each in the Nineteenth, Twenty-second and Twenty-third Wards; then there are alterations and additions to school buildings in various parts of the city. Our population is growing so rapidly that more schools will be needed next year. There are not sufficient accommodations for the children in any part of New York. Our population was over 1,200,000 in 1880, and it is probably 1,600,000 to-day. By 1900 it will easily be 2,000,000, hence we must continue to keep building new schools. It is, however, money well laid out. If our taxable property increases at the rate of $40,000,000 per annum we can well afford to supply ample school accommodation. We ought also to increase the studies in our schools. Greek and Latin should not be taught in the New York College, but every boy and girl should be instructed in some species of handicraft. All the youth of the city should have a chance to become proficient in some artistic or industrial pursuit.

The company represented by Mr. Erastus Wiman has secured the franchises for the ferries of Staten Island, he giving $10,000 and agreeing to pay over 14½ per cent. of the gross receipts for the lease. This transaction opens a new era for Staten Island. It means in time a transfer of some important business from New York to the Narrows.

It seems the Cable Company is likely to get the franchise for Broadway. They should not, however, get this valuable privilege unless they agree to run cars up to the end of the island on the west side. Cable-propelled cars will be a benefit to Broadway. It will rid that thronged thoroughfare of omnibuses, while its greater swiftness as compared with horse power will increase the travel on Broadway. If the Broadway line can connect with the leading ferries as proposed our citizens will have no reason to regret the introduction of the, to us, new motive power on our principal thoroughfare.

A new ferry on the North River is to run between Fourteenth street and the northern part of the Elysian Fields. There is hardly population as yet to warrant this ferry to that part of the Jersey shore, but new buildings are constantly going up from Hoboken towards Weehawken.

ERRATA.—The types last week made us credit Mr. Riker for the work done in land transfer reform by Dwight H. Olmstead, and in the same medium the Mining Journal was given credit for some valuable information which appeared in the Mining Record.

Elevated Avenues to the Ferries.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

Mr. A. U. Todd's suggestion, in an interview with one of your staff last week, that there should be an approach to the ferries over instead of on the streets, seems to me to be so good that I hope the matter will continue to be agitated until it is finally accomplished. I live in Jersey, on the line of the Lackawanna road, and I know whereof I speak when I say that the approaches to our ferries are not only uncomfortable and uncleanly, but are actually dangerous. The lady members of my family complain bitterly every time they come to the city. Everything helps to make a street impassable near a ferry. Several of the principal ones on the East and North Rivers are near immense markets. In addition to the carts and traffic, there is a concourse of wagons and an accumulation of omnibuses, as well as a steady stream of horse-cars. The throng increases monthly, and policemen are in vain to keep order among the belligerent carmen and protect the foot passengers. Then in rainy or snowy weather the dirt and mud is simply abominable. The hour's ride in the steam-cars is really a trifle compared with the street crossing to the ferry-house. It would be some abatement of the nuisance if the elevated cars ran directly to the ferries, but even in that case West and South streets would have to be crossed unless Mr. Todd's scheme of ferry-boats with upper decks communicating directly with bridges over the streets were adopted. It seems to me the property-holders on Cortlandt, Fulton and the other streets leading to the ferries might move in this matter. Let them petition the city to build a bridge over the street, and then they might erect platforms leading to the second sidewalk on a level with the second story. This would give them two stores instead of one, that is, one on the ground floor and another on the second story. Who will be the first to move in this important matter?

JERSEYMAN.

A Foolish Strike.

The resolution of the bricklayers of this city to strike on Monday next is greeted with disapproval on all sides. The workmen have chosen a bad time to commence a war with the employers. There is a prospect that for the next month or two building will be largely on the decrease, and the plans for August and September are likely to show a substantial falling off as compared with the earlier months of the year, as our reporters hear far from glowing accounts from the architects and builders. One of our representatives had a conversation with architect A. B. Ogden about the strike, who, while having the utmost sympathy with the workmen in any fair demands they may make, emphatically expresses his opinion that they are "cutting their own throats" in striking at this time. He says it will not pay owners to build if they have to give the latter $4.00 a day for nine hours' work, which they propose later on to try to reduce to eight hours. The capitalists can very well afford, as a rule, to remain idle, but the workmen will suffer by their thoughtless action, especially those who have wives and children to support. The present condition of business does not warrant the men in asking such a concession from the employers. "These strikes," added Mr. Ogden, "are driving away the building material trade from New York. Casings, mouldings, door-jambs and scores of other articles required in the construction of buildings are now being made outside the city, and stone is also cut in the country. Mr. John C. Umberfield," he says, "who is building a number of houses, gets his wood material from out-of-town at lower figures than they can be obtained in New York city. The wages for this kind of work is only $1.50 to $2 a day in the country, while it is $2.50 to $3.50 here. Besides the New York 'boss' has to pay thousands of dollars for rent and taxes, while the country 'boss' has to pay practically nothing. This accounted for the outsiders being successful in their competition with New Yorkers. Of course, he did not suggest that the New York workmen should receive the small wages obtained outside, for their expenses were very much higher, but he thought that in view of these facts they should seriously consider whether they are not doing themselves injury by not 'leaving well alone.' He thought that in present circumstances $4 was fair pay to a bricklayer for ten hours' work, and should he demand better terms it should come at a time of greater prosperity than the present. Things have changed during the past ten years. It was once thought that the outsider could not turn out as good work as the New Yorker, but we now know that that is a fallacy. The country shops are even manufacturing stairs for New York's houses, and actually send down their men to put them up when they arrive here. The bricklayers probably have the advantage at present in this respect, but they are forcing the employers to bring men from other places to do the work for wages which will leave them a fair profit on the investment of their capital."

In speaking with another architect, who has filed a large number of plans during the past year, that gentleman stated one or two owners had countermanded their orders for plans for the present, to see what the outcome of the bricklayers' strike would be. They said that they would rather let their capital lay idle than give way to the men.

Real Estate Department.

The event of the week was the sale of the Deane estate, which occupied three days, and the last of which will be disposed of next Wednesday. Mr. Harnett presided with his usual tact and judgment and did a wonderful amount of work in the time allotted to the sale. There was a very large attendance the first two days, and while the bidding was generally spirited the prices were undeniably low. The estate apparently was widely distributed. Some of the creditors doubtless bought in under assumed names, but the bulk of the property went into the hands of bona fide investors. The purchasers were apparently new to the market. The regular brokers and dealers bought but little.

This sale will have several good results. It will remove a cloud from the market and a great number of unfinished houses will now be put into condition to rent this fall. This will give work to mechanics, and homes for those who want them. The new house owners will in time become customers to the brokers to rent or sell their holdings. Improved realty will sell better this fall because of this distribution of the Deane estate, for had it not been disposed of in this way, portions of it would have been coming upon the market under foreclosure proceedings for the balance of the year. Many of the new buyers will occupy the houses themselves.

The fronts on First and Second avenues, between One Hundred and One Hundred and First streets, were sold for $28,025 and $19,125 respectively; this entire block (fifty-two lots) was bought by Mr. Deane about four years ago for $104,000. Four lots on the northwest corner of First avenue and One Hundred and First street sold for $12,450, and twelve lots adjoining on the street for from $1,200 to $1,700 each, the buyers being Messrs. P. & W. Ebling, Isidor Cohnfeld, J. J. Smith, John R. Foley and V. K. Stevenson, Jr. Lots on One Hundred and Twenty-second street, north side, between Fourth and Madison avenues, brought from $4,300 to $4,750 each, while lots on the south side went for from $3,825 to $4,150 each. Lots on One Hundred and Twentieth street, south side, east of Madison avenue, sold for $4,750 each, and lots west of Madison avenue, on the same street, brought $5,100; the plot of four lots on the southwest corner of Eighth avenue and One Hundred and Twenty-first street sold for $22,550.

It is very likely that some of this property will again be put up at auction to be sold under foreclosure, as in some instances at the sale held this week the amounts realized are not sufficient to cover the amount of the mortgage, interest, taxes and costs of foreclosure. For instance, No. 211 East One Hundred and Sixth street was knocked down for $650 over a mortgage of $9,000, and there is due thereon about $9,600, exclusive of taxes. The property is announced for sale on Monday next. The three four-story stone front flats, Nos. 63 to 67 East One Hundred and Twenty-first street, on each of which there is due about $15,150, exclusive of taxes, were knocked down for $16,450, $16,400 and $16,300, respectively. The amount realized by the sale of the property is $1,348,165, Tuesday's sales footing up $668,475 and Wednesday's and Thursday's sales $679,690.

Only one sale was effected yesterday, the four-story tenement, No. 303 East One Hundred and Eleventh street, on which there were two mortgages of $6,700 and $5,000, being knocked down for $9,900 to the plaintiff in the suit. Four lots on the northeast corner of Riverside avenue and Eighty-first street were withdrawn from sale, the case having been settled.

The number of Conveyances recorded during the past week shows an increase over the corresponding week last year, though the amount of money involved is over $400,000 less. Here are the figures:

Gossip of the Week.

Lespinasse & Friedman have sold three acres of land, with residence, at Inwood, and known as the Isham property, to a Mr. Palmer, for $28,000, and the four-story brick tenement, No. 609 East Fifteenth street, for $15,000.

J. J. Smith, with V. K. Stevenson, Jr., has sold for Alfred E. Beach four lots on the southeast corner of Seventy-seventh street and Ninth avenue, fronting Manhattan square, for $40,000.

John Gorman has sold two five-story double brick flats on the west side of Third avenue, between One Hundred and Eighth and One Hundred and Ninth streets, being Nos. 1970 and 1972, 25.2½x90x100, to Thomas Kane, for $61,500, and two lots on the north side of Sixty-third street, 250 feet east of Tenth avenue, 40x100, to R. Guggenheimer, for $11,000.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

BRICKS.—The consumption of Common Hard brick continues in very liberal form, and could a computation of the number laid from day to day be made the enormous aggregate would probably astonish even many of the trade. Not only is there a great unmber of buildings now in progress, and commencing to appear above ground, but their immense proportions and heavy walls make an exhaust for the material, of which they are composed, that would have been thought almost impossible a decade of years ago. This state of affairs is no new development of the present, but has been going on since the condition of the weather permitted the pushing forward of out door work, and yet there has seldom been a period of more than a day or two at the outside when anything like a scarcity of supplies prevailed. Indeed at times the accumulation in first hands so much exceeded the immediately available outlet that receivers were puzzled over proper methods for the disposition of the offering without serious results upon prices already claimed to be as low as they could go and leave a margin on cost. It is evident therefore that production has at least kept pace with consumption, and possibly somewhat exceeded it in view of the new yards started both on the Hudson and in Jersey, and the make of brick for the first six months of the year no doubt is greater than for any corresponding period, the favorable condition of the weather aiding materially the attainment of that result. To obtain, if possible, a better adjustment of supply to demand and a more remunerative return manufacturers, as noted in our last, are seeking to perfect an organization that will accomplish such result, and claim to to have flattering prospects of success. Combinations of the kind proposed are sometimes beneficial to the trade forming them and the brick manufacturers may secure just such a result, but they have a large amount of territory to cover and the association must be composed of an erratic tempered membership that is likely to prove difficult to keep within the traces. In these times the lubrication of ready money is constantly required to keep the wheels of business in motion, and when necessity and opportunity combined present the alternative of carrying goods or turning them into hard cash, the terms of any ordinary compact are likely to be disregarded or evaded under the temptation to reach latter results. It would be a remarkable experience to find the individual sacrificing personal interest for the general good of the trade, even when associated therewith under the provisions of a combination agreement. This week's market has not differed in any essential particular from the previous one. Arrivals have been liberal, but without more than the ordinary exertion sellers managed to dispose of the offering and obtain previous prices on all stock of attractive quality. Owing to the generally good condition of the supply, however, anything at all "off" was placed at a disadvantage and for some of the poorer cargoes it was occasionally found necessary to grant a concession in order to realize. Pale Brick have continued to sell at the old wide range of cost and receivers generally appear more or less dissatisfied with the uncertain character of the market. If the threatened strike of bricklayers takes place next week, it will go a great ways in neutralizing the proposed reduction of supply, but many of the trade appear to think that the large contractors will not allow work to come to a stop.

GLASS.—Reports have something of a stereotyped form. Domestic stock has become very scarce even in jobbers' hands and shows the natural strong tone on values, with a positive reflection felt upon the market for imported goods. Indeed, the latter commence to show broken and reduced assortments with importers unable to promise any early or desirable additions.

HARDWARE.—The movement of supplies tends to increase somewhat on most outlets and the undertone is rather more cheerful. As yet the orders are carefully guarded, both as to quantity and assortment, but the indications are that buying will take more extensive scope as the interior accumulations are not over full and local supplies held for distribution direct to consumers are also comparatively moderate. Manufacturers and agents, however, do not allow themselves to become over sanguine as yet and buyers are received with all the honors, including just as easy terms as the situation appears to warrant.

LATH.—The firmness as noted in our last has progressed and a higher range of values is shown on actual sales and this in the face of rather large supplies. The stock to be sure has not been sufficiently distributed to admit of much competition, and this was rather to the disadvantage of buyers, but there appeared to be a pretty good demand waiting for what there was to offer and advanced bids made to get it. There is just the least bid of irregularity in the manner of quoting the market, but it seems safe to say that $2.15@2.20 are inside rates, and sales reported at $2.25 without particulars as to delivery, etc., though some receivers solemnly and earnestly desire us to note that the latter is now their lowest "asking" rate.

LIME.—Business commences to pick up again as additional cargoes come to hand. Up to the present writing, the supply has not been very heavy and it found ready sale with full former rates obtained on both qualities. As a rule reports are cheerful and receivers feel confident over the situation.

LUMBER.—The local consumption of lumber shows no great amount of variation, either as to volume or form, and the developments since our last are unimportant. Stocks in hand very fairly balance all the requirements of the moment, and dealers generally are enabled to meet the calls made upon them, with some claiming to be independent of the first hand supply for some time to come. Fresh random offerings in consequence are not much in favor, and it is still necessary to manage them carefully in order to secure an outlet without serious detriment to cost. Still it is not often that anything of a really attractive character remains unsold for a great length of time, and some agents report that they have already received inquiries regarding specials for fall delivery. There is also more or less interest shown by customers at other near-by points, and the outlook is considered as certainly no worse than last week, and the chances in favor of a little more decided change for the better it is hoped.

Eastern Spruce is still without a positive open demand, and the majority of regular buyers are unwilling to admit that they want stock. In one way or another, however, receivers appear to get rid of the supply sent them, and while this result is not always attained without some shading on cost, especially on poor stuff, the selling interest is losing ground to no great extent. Manufacturers are still grumbling over current prices, but have not yet succeeded in stopping shipments. Valuations remain as for some weeks past, during which anywhere from $12 to $13 per M was considered an inside limit, according to quality, etc., and from that basis the range runs up to $15 for random choice, and $16 for the average special.

White Pine has two sets of reports, the one naming a dull, and by no means satisfactory market, with sellers either secretly or openly granting favors, and the other taking the stereotyped firm position, and admitting nothing that would appear unfavorable for the selling interest. There is, however, no evidences of animation in any of the current movements, all buyers who call for supplies find what they want, both in the way of quantity and assortment, and few if any complain of cost. The accounts from the interior, when carefully considered, fail to afford much comfort for sellers. We quote at $17.50@20.00 for West India shipping boards; $25@28 for South American do.; $14@15 for box boards, and $16.00@17.50 for extra do.

Yellow Pine could hardly go lower in price, and continues to be sent forward, but on the vast opportunity it has for making an advance there appears to be no tendency toward improvement as yet. Occasional sales are made, and more are promised, but they all lack the force and vitality sufficient to infuse a good healthy stimulant into the market, and operators simply live and hope for the long looked for improvement. At some of the yards in this and adjoining cities the quantity and assortment of standard goods is said to be reduced and broken, but that is exceptional, as arrivals have been full enough to balance the outlet. We quote as follows: Randoms, $18@21.00 per M; Specials, $20@22.00 do.; Green Flooring Boards, $22@23; Dry do., do., $23@24; Siding, $22@23 do.; Cargoes f. o. b. at Atlantic ports, $14@15.00 for rough, and $19@21 for dressed. Cargoes f. o. b. at Gulf ports, $13@14 for rough, and $18@20 for dressed.

Hardwoods of fine choice or fancy quality are pretty sure to receive attention, and it is still more certain than anything, only medium or poorer, will meet with most decided neglect. Values remain nominally unchanged. We quote at wholesale rates by car load as follows: Walnut, $65@110 per M.; ash, $35@40 do.; oak, $30@55 do.; maple, $20@32.50 do.; chestnut, $25@30 do.; cherry, $40@75 do.; whitewood, $27@35 do., do.; elm, $22@25; hickory, $45@52.50 do.

Shingles continue moderately active on fair home orders, and occasional calls for export, with prices about steady on most grades. Holders in some cases appear to be rather more hopeful regarding the outlook. We quote Cypress at $8.0 @8.50 per M. for 5x20 and $11.00@12.00 do. for 6x20 regularly assorted shipping. Pine shipping stock $2.00@2.50 for 18 inch, and Eastern saw grades at $2.00@2.50 for 16 inch, as to quality and to quantity. Eastern shaved cedar $4.00 @4.50 per M. Machine dressed cedar shingles quoted as follows: for 30 inch, $15.00@20.00 for A, and $23@ 28.50 for No. 1; for 24 inch, $13.00@15 for A and $18.50@20.50 for No. 1; for 20 inch, $8@9.50 for A and $11.00@12.50 for No. 1.

GENERAL LUMBER NOTES.

STATE.

ALBANY MARKET.

The Argus reports for week ending July 15 as follows:

There have been more buyers in market than there were last week and the sales have been larger. The shipments have been larger also, embracing several large barges for the east, while New York and New Jersey have taken a considerable amount. Buyers express the opinion that money matters are becoming settled, and that they will want their usual quantity for the season. As their stocks are generally low, it will require a considerable quantity to fill them up. As the canals are now all in good running order the receipts will continue large for the summer months, while rates are low, and the district will soon fill up to its usual stock. The supply of pine now on the yards is large and prices are steady. The mills in Michigan are in full operation, while in Canada in some parts the supply of logs is limited and will soon be exhausted. Spruce and hemlock come forward steadily and are in good stock in the yards. Hardwoods, though not in very heavy stock are in fair supply, and all kinds can be found seasoned and ready for use. Shingles go off slowly and are reduced in price. Lath are also offered at lower rates.

THE WEST.

The following from the Northwestern Lumberman:

Last week it was stated in our report that short piece stuff had sold in numerous instances at $8.50, and our quotations ranged from that figure to $9.00. Now $8.50 is the pivotal point of the range, which is from $8.25 to $8.75. Not that either the commission men or the yard dealers will acknowledge this to be the fact, but it is all the same. The commission dealers quote you $8.75 as the price of short length piece stuff, but if the Lumberman should name that as the price at which the majority of that class of lumber is selling it would deserve to forfeit the respect of its readers.

A slight increase in receipts of No. 1 lumber has been noticed in later fleets. Offerings of this class of stock are not snapped up with quite the avidity that was characteristic of the earlier season. The yard men have very generally bought their supplies of this kind at the mills, and have all the spring been putting it in pile. They are now so well stocked up that they are not as anxious to buy as they were. The consequence is that there is a shade weaker feeling on No. 1 stock than there was a short time since. This was developed in working off the late big fleets. The decline is not yet so pronounced and general as to be named in quotations, the range on No. 1 stock is so wide. The change occurs on mill cuts that have something undesirable in them, though the lumber is still embraced in the No. 1 class.

Quotations are as follows:

Piece stuff, green	$8 25@ 8 75
Long timbers, green	10 00@10 75
Boards and strips, No. 2, green	10 00@12 00
" medium, green	12 50@14 50
" No. 1, green	15 00@18 00
High grade	18 00@24 00

The midsummer quietness continues to rest on the trade in Hardwoods, and conditions vary but little from those of previous weeks. A slight improvement is claimed by some dealers, but is chiefly on out of town account. Oak and ash are moving fairly and are in good supply, with the exception of some thicknesses of ash. Cherry shows no marked feature, but some thicknesses are hard to obtain. Noticeably two-inch is scarce. Dry two-inch is almost impossible to get, and green is held at high figures. Walnut remains slow of movement, with most of the trade in common and culls, but firsts and seconds are held at firm figures.

In order that yellow pine manufacturers may see what prices are paid here for their product, we give the following prices, which have been lately paid by dealers: Mississippi finishing, $30; Arkansas flooring, $25.25, No. 2 long leaf flooring, $23, first and second finishing, $27, No. 2 flooring, $22; $23 for inch finishing, $32.50 for extra good thick; three-inch flooring, $24; five-inch flooring strips, $21, four-inch, $22; four-inch flooring, $24; finishing, $27. The discrepancy is marked, but the comparative merits of the stock and the reputation of the manufacturers account for all the differences.

SAGINAW VALLEY.

LUMBERMAN'S GAZETTE,
BAY CITY, MICH.

The demand for lumber during the past week has been ordinarily fair, and quite a large quantity has been placed both by the manufacturers and commission men, two of the latter having placed over 10,000,000 feet. The docks are well loaded, but a large proportion of it is sold. Considerable of the stock which has changed hands during the week has been sold for cash, and reports have been current that concessions on course stock have been made for this reason. Inquiry has failed to locate such transactions, however, and the answer is almost invariable where inquiry in regard thereto is made that, "We cannot sell coarse lumber below present quotations, unless at a loss." Quite a number of buyers have been in the city during the week, and the inquiry seems to be good; hence the conclusion is fair that more lumber is being sold than appears on the surface, or than is reported. Sales have been reported, however, as follows: 2,500,000 feet to central New York parties at going rates; 300,000 feet to Albany parties at $10, $20, and $40; Buffalo and Ohio parties purchased 700,000 feet of bill stuff at $7; 500,000 feet of lumber at $12 straight; 300,000 feet at $13 straight; 200,000 feet at $9, $18 and $38; 200,000 feet at $7.50, $17 and $38, and 500,000 feet at $7.75, $15.50 and $38; sales have also been reported of 600,000 feet, p. t.; 500,000 feet, p. t.; 650,000 feet at $8, $16 and $36; 150,000 feet at $9, $18 and $38; 500,000 feet to Buffalo parties at $8, $16 and $36; 1,000,000 feet to Erie parties at $8, $16 and $36; 400,000 feet to Buffalo parties at the same price; $75,000 feet of bill stuff at $6, and 500,000 feet of pine boards to eastern parties at full last season's prices; the Courier also reports sales to Buffalo parties 2,000,000 feet, and to New York parties 3,000,000 feet, all for cash; portion good stock and the balance coarse; 450,000 feet to Ohio parties; 2,500,000 to Ohio parties; 750,000 feet, 600,000 feet and 300,000 feet to Buffalo parties; 1,000,000 feet to central New York parties; and 170,000 feet to Ohio parties. Prices for this stock ranged from $7, $14 to $9, $18, and $33 and $38.

LUMBERMAN AND MANUFACTURER,
MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

The lumber trade of the Western world has, to a large extent, shared in the general depression of the past month. The shipments from Chicago and the receipts as well have fallen off to a nominal quantity, and little can be learned concerning prices at the great market. A decline of 25c. leaves piece stuff at $8.50@8.75, with choice strips running well at $26 and all good stock taken on sight. This means that Michigan lumber makers are getting some sense and considerable money.

The air is full of rumors as to prices at Minneapolis, St. Paul and the railway mills of Wisconsin, but all our reliable advices are assurances that no serious cutting is being made on any regular yard. Everybody now seems convinced that bottom figures have been reached. The dissatisfaction over the freight rates continues to grow and will soon result in some very decisive measures to protect themselves by the lumbermen of Wisconsin.

THE BRITISH PROVINCES.

The Montreal Journal of Commerce says:

Business at the yards during the week has been limited to a few sales of hardwood, pine and laths, but no material change has occurred in values, which are fairly steady. The sale of a lot of three cars of ash is reported which has been shipped to Boston. Laths have been sold at $1.75 for jobbing lots, but for larger quantities that figure would be shaded. Owing to the great reduction in the stock of lumber at Ottawa, through recent brisk shipments, prices there have stiffened considerably all round, and it is expected that prices here will eventually respond thereto. Deal shipments continue to go forward to British ports, although not as briskly as during the early part of the season, steamers having found more profitable freight in quite a number of instances There is a good outward movement in lumber, a number of sailing vessels being loaded for Buenos Ayres. It is estimated that the exports of deals this year have already reached over one-third of those for the whole season of 1883. English advices dated June 21st, report the f. o. b. price of pine in London at an average of £16 for 1sts., £10 for 2ds., and £5 for 3ds. reduced to the Petersburg standard, which seem very low prices. It is thought, however, that there are charges attached to them which would bring up the f. o. b. cost another 20s. or so.

ENGLAND.

The London Timber Trade's Journal says:

American black walnut is still selling pretty freely. Recent arrivals for the most part have been of medium sizes and straight growth. Such logs should sell without difficulty.

American whitewood.—Some capital parcels of wide thick plank stuff are now landing, and appear to us to be of a very saleable character. We believe this wood has to a very great extent taken the place of first quality board pine, which for some time past has been very scarce and high in price.

NAILS.—Demand is not active, or at least is no way proportioned to the amount of stock offering not only here but at all points, and the market in consequence remains in a weak, unsettled condition. There seems to be a general sort of competition, not only between jobbers, etc., but between manufacturers of the different sections of the country, and the buyer gets all the advantage. Quotations are more or less nominal but the general range may be placed at $2.40@2.50 per keg for 10d to 6d, according to quantity.

PAINTS, OILS, ETC.—The business as a whole is still rather light, but here and there signs of some little improvement appear, and dealers are hopeful that a gradual growth of demand may develop. Many points in the country are thought to be nearly barren of stock and as farmers gradually commence to realize on their produce and settle their accounts, storekeepers will in turn be enabled to fill assortments and thus benefit primary markets. Prices are generally ruling steady. Linseed Oil is meeting with very good attention at 56@57 for domestic, and 59@60 for foreign. Spirits Turpentine in moderate request and about steady at 31½@33 per gallon, according to size of invoice, delivery, etc.

PITCH AND TAR.—Offerings fair, the demand moderate and the market generally about steady on all grades. We quote: Pitch, $2.25@2.30 per bbl.; Tar, $2.50@2.00., according to quantity, quality and delivery.

The stock market has been buoyant for several days past; previously it was dull but strong. During June we ventured to predict a higher range of stock values in July and we judge that August will see a still better market. The great small grain crop which has been gathered and the hope of the largest corn crop ever grown will naturally lead to the buying and appreciation of our railway shares and bonds. Should all the crop expectations be fulfilled the improved condition of affairs will also show itself in the real estate market this fall.

At first it seemed as if the majority of the builders were disposed to give in to the strikers who demanded ten hours' pay for nine hours' work, but a more stubborn feeling was developed towards the close of the week. Work has been stopped in many instances, and our news-gatherers report that scarcely any new buildings are being contracted for, nor will there be any activity until the workingmen become more reasonable. The time for this strike was ill-chosen, as most of the bosses were so fixed that they could suspend work without material loss. The terms of many of the building contracts contained provisions permitting the stoppage of work while a strike was under way.

In view of the recent decision against the elevated roads by Judge Van Hoesen, ordering the company to remove its station from the corner of Greenwich and Warren streets, it would seem that the time has come when the elevated companies should own the houses adjoining their stations. The travelling public is an ungrateful beast. The elevated roads have showered untold blessings on New York and its inhabitants. It gives us the finest system of intermural traffic of any city in the world. It is continually increasing the taxable value of New York city, yet nearly every so-called organ of public opinion and all the demagogues are howling at the elevated roads. The companies are harrassed by vexatious suits; they are unjustly taxed, and have no friends anywhere, although they have doubled the commission hours, which they are not required to do by law, and have only charged ten cents, when they could legally exact seventeen. After the tax dispute is settled, the roads should purchase the corners at which their stations are situated, re-arrange the property thus secured and give passengers the advantage of elevators. It may be that the $1,000,000 of second mortgage bonds which the Manhattan Company is now listing may be for the purpose of making the improvements suggested above.

It is over seven weeks since the cholera first appeared at Toulon and it is some five weeks since it commenced its ravages at Marseilles, but up to date it has practically been confined to those cities and their neighborhood. From this fact it has been argued that it may not spread to Paris, Vienna, London, or the other large cities of Europe. But there is scarcely a doubt that already other centres of infection have been established, and it will probably appear shortly in a virulent form in widely separated localities. Dr. Bouchardet, one of the most famous French physicians, however, gives it as his impression that this visitation of cholera will be short-lived. A cholera epidemic, according to him, never lasts longer than eighteen months after leaving India. The cholera now at work in France is in its third summer season, and is the same that was so virulent in Egypt last year. This theory, if true, is important to us, as we may escape this plague altogether. It is not likely in any event to effect a lodgement upon this continent before the coming of cold weather. Business men can afford to leave it out of their calculations until, say, next June. The season is too far advanced for the establishment of any centre of infection that will do us much harm.

The new civil service rules applied to municipalities in this State will in a very few years entirely revolutionize our local politics. Heretofore the local political machines have been kept in existence by two classes—the office-holders and the more numerous class who were candidates for office—but hereafter there are to be no removals except for cause, and no appointments to minor positions except on merit without reference to political considerations. The swarms of local politicians will now begin to disappear. The Halls will be deserted and the bosses be left without followers. This end will not be reached this year or next, but it will come, and our local contests will be simplified and purified by eliminating from the problem the office-holding and the office-seeking factors. The change will be gradual, but, as we have said, will work a revolution, and a very desirable one, in our whole municipal machinery.

The estimates of the wheat crop varies very greatly. The statistician of the Produce Exchange thinks the yield may not exceed 470,000,000 bushels, but there are Western authorities which put the figure as high as 563,000,000 bushels. Of course the exact number of bushels is guess work as yet, but after having consulted the best authorities we judge the yield will exceed that of 1882, when a crop of 504,000,000 bushels was gathered. There are probably 60,000,000 bushels left over from the last crop, and allowing for home consumption, seed and necessary surplus we shall have over 200,000,000 bushels to export. It is now certain that if we wish to sell our grain we must accept low figures. There will be no competition from India this year, but European crops are fair, and there is a surplus still to use up. Then the spread of the cholera throughout the continent will check the consumption of food. In the calculation of chances our corn crop this year should be a large one—the largest, indeed, ever grown. This is satisfactory as far as it goes, but good crops alone do not insure good times. In 1882 we had the largest wheat crop ever grown in the country up to that time, but 1883 was a year of shrinkage and business distress. Still good crops are not bad things in themselves, and we ought to be better off in 1885 than we have been so far in 1884.

The Tiffany House.

The mansion of Mr. Tiffany at Madison avenue and Seventy-second street is virtually completed as to its exterior. It must be almost, if not quite, the largest private dwelling in New York, measuring 100x100 on the ground, and thus filling four lots. The northernmost 20 feet on the avenue side are given up, apparently, to another house, which, however, counts architecturally as part of the main building. There is a basement of a story and a-half, three full stories below the cornice and one full story above, lighted on one side from the main gable, and on the other from openings in smaller gables and by dormer windows. The main ridge runs east and west, and the pitch of the main roof is steep. The foot of the gable is 80 feet wide, and being above the fifth story its crest cannot be very much less than 100 feet from the ground.

These dimensions would suffice to make the house very conspicuous. It is further made conspicuous by its unusual material, the basement being of rock-faced blue stone, the walls above of a yellowish brown clay curiously speckled with black, which is used both in brick and terra cotta, and the roof is of glazed and corrugated black tile. It is only the novelty of this material that makes it conspicuous. It is quiet in color and its mottled surface offers a very effective contrast to the blue stone of the basement. It has the great advantage of making a brand new building look as if it might be old, without invoking any trickery to that purpose. Upon the selection and arrangement of material in their work at least the architects, Messrs. McKim, Mead & White, are to be heartily congratulated.

The composition of the Madison avenue front is broad and simple, perhaps too simple for its dimensions and tending to monotony, but this, as our buildings go, is a fault on the right side. At the street corner there is above the basement an attached turret, carried on a heavily but simply moulded corbel of blue stone. The openings in the basement are square-headed, treated with entire simplicity so as to give additional value to the massiveness of the masonry, and surmounted by a moulded string course, repeated a foot or two above in the brickwork, which might properly have been moulded more emphatically. Nevertheless, there is no niggling in the handling anywhere, and the rocky field of wall has its full value and becomes not only an impressive but a very agreeable object.

It is in the brickwork that the simplicity of the general composition tends to monotony, while there is here a niggling in the treatment of detail that contradicts to some extent the absolute magnitude and the broad treatment of the masses. There is no "rhythm," as the Germans say, in the arrangement of the openings, and one source of effect is thus foregone. Fortunately the lateral piers are kept ample, and the expanse of wall is so great that many more holes might be punched in it without seeming to weaken it. The openings themselves, except in the gable, are covered with flat arches in narrow bricks, carrying each a series of mouldings, and these same mouldings are repeated down the jambs, while the sills also are in brickwork. It is this minute treatment, repeated everywhere, that gives the effect of niggling.

The features of this front are a balcony, with a brick "breasting" apparently corbelled out in brickwork, that is projected from the northern half of the wall and stops against the angle turret, and a large mullioned window of five openings, with a semi-circular arch turned over the central three, in the central field of the gable, the mullions and transoms apparently in terra cotta.

The feature of the basement on the street front is an arch of unusual span, and with very deep voussoirs nearly in the centre, which contains a driveway, and also a small stoop of rubbed blue stone within the recess. There is a corbelled window also in blue stone west of this arch. Above, the brick wall is deeply withdrawn at the centre of the front, and the masses flanking this recess are crowned with gables. Over the centre of the recessed wall is a large dormer with three tiers of openings. An open balcony in an upper story at the west end of this front is another of its features.

The treatment of the openings in this front is in general similar to that already described, and has the same effect of contradicting rather than enlivening the breadth of the general treatment. The basement is excellent. The only quarrel one can pick with it is that it is scarcely appropriate to the domestic character except of a fortified dwelling; but it is so good in itself that we are glad to let that pass. The recessed balcony at the west end is also very good in itself, but the boldness and massiveness of its treatment are out of keeping with the framing of the other openings, and it is so placed that its own outer abutment seems insufficient, while for the first time in the whole design the terminal pier is apparently weakened.

The disposition already described of a recessed centre and projecting wings is effective in relieving the monotony of the great roof, which is further diversified by the emergence at the angle of the turret-hood. This makes the unbroken gable on the avenue front seem all the balder, and the architects must now regret that they did not arrive at some device for subdividing it without interfering with its repose, as has been discreetly and successfully done with the south front.

The composition in perspective is very spirited and picturesque, in spite of the blankness of the great gable. The fault one finds at last with the building is that it is scarcely a building, as a work of architecture must primarily be. That is to say, it seems like an attempt not so much to make a picture out of a building as to make a building out of a picture. For example, besides the features which break it, the roof is animated by a number of chimney stacks, which have the air of having been employed without reference to the interior economies, solely to punctuate a perspective. They come in very well, but so very frequently that one is forced to believe most of them dummies. They appear to contain something over a hundred flues, and, large as the house is, a hundred and odd flues really stagger credulity. The same disregard for structural propriety appears elsewhere, and notably in the two chief features of the avenue front, the brick balcony and the great mullioned window of the gable. It seems mechanically impossible that a balcony of this projection should be really built in brick, and the spectator is driven to assume an iron girder upon which the bricks that pretend to carry the balcony are merely plastered. Again, the great window has an arch turned over it, the constructional function of which would be to relieve the mullions of the window from the weight of wall above. For this purpose the arch should either span the whole opening, or the vertical supports under it should be thickened, and a flat arch or a heavy lintel, or some constructive appliance visibly sufficient to its work, should protect the lateral openings not relieved by the arch. Here, however, the relieving arch is actually turned between two intermediate mullions no heavier than the rest, and the wall on each side bears directly upon the window frame which the presence of the arch asserts is incompetent to sustain it. Such structural solecisms as this go far to give an unreal and fictitious character to a building which in general composition, in choice and arrangement of material and in many points even of detail is thoroughly admirable.

A city paper complains of the large federal appropriations for government buildings, custom houses, postoffices and the like, It seems that the forty-fifth Congress appropriated for public buildings $8,037,476, the forty-sixth $8,252,047, the forty-seventh $8,636,000. The record of the forty-eighth Congress is not yet known, and it will probably exceed in the amount appropriated the preceding Congresses. The several Congresses have been roundly abused for spending yearly over $4,000,000 on these public buildings. It may be that some of the money is not wisely expended; but it should be borne in mind that the country is growing rapidly, and that many of the western cities demand new edifices large enough for the transaction of public business. We have an immense public revenue, and to what better use could a portion of it be put than in erecting structures creditable to the government to whose services they should be dedicated. After ages pass judgment upon a nation from its public works. Our only idea of the civilization of the buried cities of the past is the enduring evidences they have left in their temples and halls of justice which, in all ancient times, it was the work of the government to erect. Our estimate of Athens is derived from the Parthenon and of Rome from the Colliseum and the Forum. The United States is raising its monuments to-day in its courts of justice, its custom houses and its postoffices. We have the money to spare and the architectural skill, and should make a worthy use of both.

Will New York Remain the Financial Centre?

It has been assumed as a matter of course that New York would always be the financial centre of this country, and perhaps finally of the world. It was evident to every one that the money market of this city was the controlling one, and that it yearly increased in importance. It was noticed that all the speculative interests of the nation, save alone that of grain, found their headquarters on Manhattan Island, and it was naturally inferred that in time the dealings in grain as well as in stocks, cotton, petroleum, etc., were to be transferred to what was to be the metropolis.

But "A Merchant" makes a statement in the Commercial Bulletin, which throws some doubt upon the future supremacy of New York in financial matters. He gives the figures to show that since 1874 the six leading commercial centres increased their loans and discounts 53 per cent., against only 15 per cent. for the same period in New York. Here is the table:

	May 1, 1874.	May 1, 1883.	Per cent.
Chicago	$23,962,834	$43,096,729	Inc. 80
Cincinnati	8,690,418	19,813,225	Inc. 128
Baltimore	19,958,918	26,132,553	Inc. 30
Philadelphia	45,440,360	60,129,894	Inc. 32
Pittsburg	16,755,300	26,416,271	Inc. 57
Boston	96,478,649	108,210,106	Inc. 12
New York	206,054,287	236,663,415	Inc. 15

From this it will be seen that while in Baltimore the increase has been 30 per cent., in Philadelphia 32 per cent., in Pittsburg 57 per cent., in Chicago 80 per cent., and in Cincinnati 128 per cent., the increase of loans and discounts have been only 15 per cent. through the national banks in New York.

There is some mistake about "A Merchant's" figures, the New York bank loans and discounts must have been more than he says they were, and then it is not fair to pick out so depressed a year as 1874 for a comparison, but still the point is well taken that the country banks are increasing their reserves and business in a much larger relative proportion than are those of New York.

The charge is that the banks of New York have driven away its business by fostering stock speculation and discouraging mercantile enterprise. The deposits accumulated in banks out of New York could not be loaned on securities and so their managers wisely fostered mercantile and manufacturing enterprises. As an instance of the unwise conservatism of the New York bankers their treatment of our merchants for the last two months is given. Establishments with ample assets are allowed to go into bankruptcy for want of accommodations which it is the legitimate business of the banks to foster. It is further alleged that many great jobbing firms have been driven out of existence because of the reluctance of banks to give credit to merchants, and other New York houses have been forced to establish branches in the interior cities in order to get the assistance that was denied them in New York.

Our merchants themselves can judge whether these charges are true. It is undeniable, however, that the trade of the cities of the interior has grown at the expense of that of New York. Retail dealers who, before the panic of 1873, found it to their interest to purchase their goods in this city now find they can do quite as well in Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis. Time was when New York was looked upon to advance the money to move the crops but now the means are mainly furnished from the local reservoirs of accumulated capital. All this may have come about irrespective of the management of the New York banks. It is perhaps this city's misfortune that it is upon the Atlantic coast instead of in the centre of the Union. Were it in the Mississippi Valley there would be no necessity for Chicagos, Cincinnatis or St. Louises to furnish credits to merchants or money to move the crops. But the to us unpalatable fact remains that so far as banking facilities are concerned the interior is becoming independent of this city.

One cause, doubtless, of the relative decadence of our trade is due to the "Immediate Trasportation Act" of 1875. Under that enactment, foreign goods could be transported to any interior point without breaking bulk or paying duty at this port. This destroyed the monopoly in foreign trade which New York previously possessed. It made ports of entry of the interior cities and built up their local trade at our expense.

What we really need is a national bank such as has been found essential in all other nations. The powers properly exercised by such an institution are now dispersed. Some of them are enforced in the regulations of the United States Treasury Department and others under the requirements of the New York associated banks. But this division of authority does not work well and is liable to abuse. It is not wise to clothe a federal office-holder like the Secretary of the Treasury with authority to make money easy or tight. That should be the function of a great bank, keenly alive to mercantile rather than political considerations.

The attitude of our national banks of late has not been such as to gain them the good will of the business community. They have fed the fires of speculation when it was hottest and withheld support from the market when help was needed to prevent unnecessary disaster. The banks have been intensely selfish and swift to sacrifice every interest but their own. The time has come when a fiscal system organized during the civil war to meet a special set of circumstances arising out of that conflict should be so amended as to fit the exigencies of peaceful commerce.

Our Prophetic Department.

POLITICIAN—You promised last week to state some contingencies that might lead to the election of James G. Blaine. If I understood you, the chances just at present are in favor of Cleveland.

SIR ORACLE—Yes, I am decidedly of the opinion that were the elections held in August or early September, the Democratic nominee would be elected. The first battle of the campaign will take place in September, in the Republican candidate's own State. Should he lose Maine or carry it by a small vote, his chances for November would look desperate; but should the Republican vote show a respectable increase, which is not unlikely, then his canvass will assume a more hopeful aspect. Accident also may favor him. Should any foreign power put a slight upon our people, they might put Blaine in the White House so as to return a Roland for an Oliver.

POLITICIAN—But surely you do not think that any power cares to meddle with the United States?

SIR O.—I do not know about that; Germany is extending her commerce in all parts of the world. When Bismarck prohibited pork importations into Germany, took umbrage at the Lasker resolutions, and insulted the American minister Sargent, THE RECORD AND GUIDE thought he might want to pick a quarrel with the United States. The absolutely defenseless condition of our sea coast cities is known to all the world, and the daring genius of the German Chancellor might conceive the idea of seizing New York, Boston, and perhaps Washington, and forcing the United States to redeem them by an immense ransom. It would take us years to get together a navy, and we could not touch Germany by land. It would be a comparatively cheap and extremely safe military operation on the part of Germany, and would check for a time the German emigration to this country, which the Kaiser's government views with such disfavor.

POLITICIAN—All this seems to me, as it will to most Americans, as very wild talk. We have never harmed Germany and for her to pick a quarrel with us would be a wanton abuse of her military power.

SIR O.—It is ambition or interest, not honor or conscience, which presides over international relations. Rich and militarily weak nations have since the beginning of history been the prey of the poorer and more powerful ones. We are inviting the world by our wealth and weakness to spoil us, and some nation will certainly do so before the close of this century. I do not think it will be Great Britain, for her vast commerce would then be in peril and the war would end with the loss of the British possessions on this continent to the United States.

POLITICIAN—Then you think that Germany may strike the blow?

SIR O.—I do. That nation is ambitious to become a great naval power. She wants ships and colonies in all parts of the earth. Last spring THE RECORD AND GUIDE, having an inkling of what was going on, said we would next hear of Germany trying to get possession of one of the West India Islands. It said this not once but half a dozen times. Within the last three weeks the fact has come to light that Germany is negotiating with the Spanish government for the purchase of Cuba, an island which commands our southern coast, and the owner of which could exact tribute from the foreign commerce of the Mississippi valley.

POLITICIAN—Yes, I saw a statement to that effect in an Associated Press dispatch, but it did not seem to attract much attention from the American public.

SIR O.—No, because Americans are the most self-sufficient people on earth. They realize that if fully armed and equipped the United States could stand against all the world, but they cannot be made to understand that there is any difference between actual and potential military power. We are without an army, a navy, guns or any of the material of war. These would require time to provide, and modern military operations are swift and short.

POLITICIAN—But what has this to do with Mr. Blaine's election?

SIR O.—If during the coming few months Germany should show her hand and should take open steps to secure Cuba, it would create a whirlwind of excitement, and the voters might think it safer to intrust the destinies of the country to a man of affairs, of brilliant personal qualities, than to a lawyer whose pluck and stamina had never been tested. Long before the nominations were made, I have in these conversations predicted that a changed foreign policy on the part of the United States was inevitable as soon as the Panama Canal neared completion. That great channel of inter-communication will be patronized mainly by European ships, and its management and control by the nations of Europe will be demanded. Then it will be time to assert the Monroe Doctrine; but to do so without guns and ships would be ridiculous, and we shall need an executive with force, address and courage to meet the emergency. Mr. Cleveland may have those qualities, but he has had no chance to exhibit them. But about Blaine there can be no doubt whatever.

POLITICIAN—What do you think of Mr. Blaine's letter of acceptance?

SIR O.—A skillful and able document; but if Mr. Blaine is chosen President it would not be because of that letter or the Republican platform. He will be elected as representing a new foreign policy. It will emphasize the fact that the United States has taken its place among the nations of the earth. Remember I do not say Mr. Blaine will be elected, I think he won't, but I am quite clear his candidacy will bring to the fore the desirability of a new departure in foreign affairs. Mr. Blaine was the first statesman of our times to claim for the United States the primacy among the nations on this continent. He wanted us to extend our political as well as to create new trade relations with the South American States. This showed the possession of statesman-like qualities, in advance not only of any leader in his own party, but of any in the country. The party leaders of the future must take this ground whether he is chosen or not.

The partial success of the Bennett-Mackay cable is made a subject of felicitation by the Herald. As a matter of fact the laying of the last cable was as much a waste of capital as the construction of the Nickel Plate or West Shore roads. Indeed there was not any need for the last cable laid by Jay Gould. It is against public policy to waste the capital of the world in such senseless enterprises. Undoubtedly the cable monopoly heretofore existing has been burdensome to the commerce of the world, but the true solution of the problem is in the control of all existing cables by the leading commercial nations. They should be owned by the governments interested and managed by an inter-national commission. The charges could then be reduced simply to pay working expenses and every one could be treated alike. The Mackay-Bennett cable being an unnecessary one will be a new tax on the commerce of the world and after a contest of a year or two it will be bought in by the other cable companies, who will put new burdens upon trade to pay for it.

A stranger reading our city journals will get the impression that the elevated roads are a public nuisance, and that their management ill-treated the public, so much so, that the latter had a standing grievance against the whole "L" system. The Herald in particular has kept up a war upon the Manhattan Company, and it has not allowed any scruples to prevent it from defaming that corporation in every possible way. The Sun, however, alone of the city journals has a good word to say for this system of roads. In commenting upon Judge Van Hoesen's decision declaring one of their stations a nuisance that should be removed, that paper is impelled to say: "Bitter as the opposition against them in some quarters is, it must not be forgotten that these elevated railroads have been of incalculable benefit to New York. They were the first to give us rapid transit, and the damage they have done to property, such as it is, is exceeded many fold by the increase in the value of real estate brought about by their facilities for communication. Still, it looks as if there were stormy times ahead for the elevated roads."

This is not all the story by a great deal. The elevated roads have furnished the cheapest and most comfortable local travel of anything of the kind in the world. They have added and are adding wonderfully to our area of taxable property. If they were to stop being operated, it would set back the city a quarter of a century, yet the courts vie with each other in embarrassing in every way the machinery of the elevated system. They are excessively taxed, though promised immunity from taxation so eager was the city to have the roads built, yet it is upon record that the management of the roads have never exacted the full fare their charter permits, while they have voluntarily doubled the commission hours. The prejudice against the companies is probably because they are now managed by Jay Gould and Cyrus W. Field. These are doubtless objectionable persons in the stock market, and they have undeniably done wrong to the stockholders of the elevated roads. But the attitude of the press, of the bench and of the public they represent towards the elevated roads is simply incomprehensible. Corporations are justified in using their full powers to benefit themselves when moderation, magnanimity and great public service are rewarded, as in this instance, in this scurvy fashion.

Home Decorative Notes.

—A novel and charming decoration at a recent wedding consisted of a Japanese umbrella, each gore of the umbrella was a section of different flowers, white pea blossoms, crimson pea blossoms, mignonette, daisies, pansies, pinks, double hollyhocks and corn flowers were neatly worked in; the piece was fringed with larkspur.

—Peacock feathers may be very effectively used for decorating door panels; cut pieces of satin the size of the door panels, and fasten in place by means of the smallest tacks; sew or glue the feathers upon the satin.

—Yellow is not a color that can be used in masses, unless it be much broken or mingled with other colors.

—A very attractive dressing bureau scarf is of sapphire blue ladies' cloth, cut long enough to cover the top of the bureau and hang about eighteen inches down the side, a strip of velvet of a darker shade of blue, three inches in width and extending from edge to edge of the width of the scarf, is fastened near each of the ends in a vertical position, and red worsted of varying lengths and about one-half inch apart is tacked down with old gold silk floss, worked in the herring-bone stitch running down from the velvet, the longest piece coming within one inch of the edge, above the velvet are five open Japanese fans made of various colors of worsted and filled in with silk floss; daisies are embroidered on the velvet.

—The tops and other portions of silver ink-stands frequently become deeply discolored with ink; this may be removed by making a little chloride of lime into a paste with water, and rubbing it upon the stains.

—Shaded lamps are the only lights suitable for a library.

—Blotters for a gentleman's desk are made of blue cardboard cut in the form of a book with leaves of pink, blue, yellow and white blotting paper; pink the edges of the paper, tie the leaves and the cover together with ribbons, decorate with a spray of flowers or vine in water colors; the Virginia creeper is a very pretty design on yellow blotting paper.

—Easels are covered entirely and sometimes draped with plush.

—Making a picture frame has hitherto been almost an impossibility to those not in the trade, but fashion has made it easy by introducing new styles, which although only seen in perfection in art stores may be well imitated at home; an important fact to be borne in mind in making or selecting a frame is that it should agree in tone or design with the picture it surrounds; for an autumn scene a graceful arrangement of wheat and oats may be glued securely to a plain frame and all gilded; a harvest scene engraving is in a broad wooden frame with small silver scythes, rakes and pitchforks in each corner; pretty glimpses of sea and shore may be appropriately framed in gilded oak with a few small gilded shells glued on carelessly in the lower corner; the brass beaten work now so fashionable, and which resembles antique repousse, is very serviceable for frames, although being quite a work of art in itself it should only be used for engravings, and those of a very decided outline, rather striking than soft.

—Palm-leaf fans are covered with silk and have a loose piece of the same material attached so as to form a bag, it has plush balls around the edge at regular distances, they are hung against the wall, handle upward, and serve as receptacles for odds and ends.

—Lace covers to parasols can be placed over fancy colored lamp shades.

—Plush photograph-frames have a little curtain of silk attached top and bottom to a small brass bar.

—One of the newest ideas of furniture for a hallway is a hat rack combined with an umbrella rack and a chair; at one side of the hat rack is a low-backed chair neatly upholstered, at the other is the umbrella rack, and between these is a bevelled plate glass, with the hooks or pins for hats and coats at the side of the glass, and a table for the reception of cards below it; mahogany is used almost universally in the manufacture of hat racks and reception chairs.

—An excellent plan to prevent ice from melting rapidly is to take a piece of heavy flannel or carpet, and wrap it tightly around the cake of ice.

—A very useful mural device for the dressing-room is a plush covered board with small hooks screwed upon it for hanging button hooks, scissors, whisk broom and other small necessaries upon, the board should be eight by ten inches in size and ornamented with painting or embroidery as fancy dictates; suspend by satin ribbon.

—Very effective portieres and curtains are made of pineapple gauze embroidered with bright flowers and birds of gay plumage, mount with broad bands of plush.

—Dining-room chairs are of oak with high backs heavily carved and upholstered in embossed leather.

—There is room for every variety of individual taste in making and adorning a screen, it may be expensive or inexpensive, brilliant and striking or dark and rich in effect, the designs are indeed legion, and among the number may be suggested the witch hazel; this plant with its tendrile-like yellow flower, mottled leaves and heavy woody branches can be applied to but few articles as a decoration, yet to those few its striking originality adds a rare and undeniable charm; unlike field flowers or common creeping vines which may be applied to backgrounds ranging in color and texture this shrub owes its beauty when embroidered to the olive green satin against which it is seen to the best advantage; the flowers are worked in pale yellow silks, fading almost into white; the simple outline stitch is used for following the lines of the flower, the leaves in solid work are wrought in rich golden browns, dark browns, pure golden and one or two greenish tints used near the veining, the heavy branches in grays and browns so blended as to closely imitate the young bark; the utmost care must be exercised not only in the choice of appropriate shades but in blending them according as nature herself has designed them.

The Bricklayers' Strike.

While several master builders have conceded the demand of the bricklayers for nine hours' work at the current wages, the majority still hold out, and at a meeting held on Thursday evening it was resolved not to give way to the strikers. It is stated that those master builders who have acquiesced in the workmen's demands are compelled to do so, owing to the necessity of finishing their contracts within a given date.

Charles Buek, of the well-known firm of Charles Buek & Co., was seen by one of our reporters. They were employing seventy men on their houses on Madison avenue and Sixty-fifth street, thirty of whom were bricklayers and forty laborers. They were compelled to stop work, as they could not afford to accede to the terms of the men in the present depressed state of the market. It would make a difference of $10,000 to them were they to do so. It was difficult to make any profit on their houses as it was, as first-class dwellings did not bring as good figures now as they did a year or two ago, and they would find it almost impossible to obtain any return for their expenditure of labor, time and money were they to pay full wages for nine hours' work, which really means an increase of about 11 per cent. in the wages. If the men felt that they could not work ten hours and wanted nine, let them accept a corresponding decrease in wages, and the masters would raise no objection. The workmen did not take into consideration the difficulties and risks which capitalists had to encounter, and it appeared as though they were trying to squeeze as much out of the latter as possible, with the result that there would be little or no work for them to do at a time when they might have had continued employment. Mr. Buek does not think the men will succeed in this strike.

Tin-lined copper pipes for the distribution of water, and for all purposes in plumbing, are coming into popular favor in Boston. The manufacture is very simple. The copper is tinned in the sheet before formed into pipe, and the interior is subsequently coated with tin by a very easy process. The cost is no greater than that of lead pipe, strength for strength, while the tin lining is not subject to decomposition by carbonic acid, oxygen, or other corrosives, to the same extent as lead.

Why New York Has Not Wood Pavements.

A correspondent of the Evening Post wonders why New York cannot have wood pavements similar to those of Paris and London. The former city has just completed a vast system of wooden roadways that are not only smooth and clean but help to put an end to the noise of passing vehicles. The writer declares that the roar of Broadway will seem intolerable to a person habituated to the noiseless streets of the French capital. It seems that in that city the Macadam roads would not do, for when rainstorms occurred vast quantities of sand were washed into the sewers and could not be dug out except at great expense. The new wooden pavements have just been constructed, the contractors, for a small annual stipend, agreeing to keep them in order for twenty years. The blocks of wood are placed on a bed of broken stone that is underlaid by a substratum of Portland cement.

Wooden pavements are no novelty in New York. We were the first to try them as well as the first to abandon them. The underlying soil of Paris and London is sandy and necessarily dry. Not so with New York. Our soil is generally of clay very retentive of moisture, and the wooden blocks imposed thereupon soon water-logged and became rotten; hence the final resort to what is called the Belgian stone pavement, which is noisy but economical.

Undoubtedly to the average citizen the wood as well as the asphaltum pavements are a great boon. They muffle the noise of hoofs and save the wear and tear of vehicles and horse flesh. A first-class noiseless pavement may be costly to the city treasury, but it is an economy as well as a comfort to all who use horses within the city limits.

Gen. Thomas J. Jordan gives the following table showing the amount of gold and silver per capita in the leading nations of the world as follows:

	Gold.	Silver.	Per capita.	Total.
Great Britain	$16.67⅛	$2.66¾	$5.77	$25.10¾
France	24.11	14.74¾	16.00	54.85¾
Italy	5.00	2.25	10.36	17.61
Holland	4.39	13.78⅛	18.92	37.09⅛
Belgium	12.14 4-7	11.42⅞	11.38	34.95⅛
Australia	23.21⅛	1.78½	9.03	33 03
Cape of Good Hope	35.29	1.87¼	7.20	44.36¼

In this country, according to the same authority, there are over $30 per head, as per the following table:

		Per capita.
Gold coin	$575,000,000	$10 26¾
Standard dollars	175,000,000	3.12½
Fractional silver	80,000,000	1.42¾
Treasury notes	346,681,016	6.19¾
Gold certificates	84,500,000	1.50
Silver certificates	96,000,000	1.71 3-7
National bank notes	353,500,000	6.30⅜
Total	$1,710,681,000	30.54¾

That is to say at the most, our people have:

	Per capita.
A specie circulation of	$14 82
Paper circulation of	15.72¾
Total specie and paper	$30.54¾

This total, however, is hardly accurate, as at least $80,000,000 is twice credited as being in circulation. This is the amount of the gold and silver certificates afloat, when in fact they represent that amount of gold and silver deposited in the treasury and already accounted for. This would reduce the amount of currency per capita to about $27.33, but while Gen. Jordan credits his own country with the paper afloat, he does not take into account the paper issues of the foreign national banks. Then should not the issues of the Scotch banks also be considered in this connection? But his point is well taken, which is, that the writers in our financial journals are utterly at fault when they assert that we have a redundant currency and that our financial woes are attributable to that fact, which it seems, compared with other nations, is not a fact at all.

Realty at Albany.

[From our own Correspondent.]

ALBANY, July 16, 1884.

The laws of this State relative to aliens holding and conveying real property makes it necessary for the passage of bills every year straightening out the titles to different pieces of realty. Every session the Legislature is called upon to pass bills releasing the interest of the State to lots in villages and cities and farm lands, which have been owned and occupied by parties who could not convey or will their realty to their children or legal heirs. There is a large amount of property in this State, some of which is very valuable, to which no title can be given or obtained without a special act of the Legislature. Some of these were occupied under leases when the alien owners died, and the lessee holds on to it and prevents the heirs of the owners getting possession, by defeating the necessary legislation. The result is that the State has escheated to it property from which it receives no income, but parties who have no right hold on and occupy it to the exclusion of the heirs of the former owners, who have no power to obtain possession until legislation is had, because, under the alien laws, they have no legal rights to the property, although in equity it is theirs.

There are some lots in the business portion of New York city which have been held in this way for thirty years and their improvement prevented, because no valid title can be obtained, all owing to the law relative to aliens holding and conveying real estate. Parties who happened to have possession of those lots when the alien owners died have continued to retain possession and receive all the benefits, but declining to improve the same for the reason that they do not know how soon the Legislature may pass an act turning the property over to the legal heirs of the former owner. Some of the property left by John G. Leake is held in this way by those occupying it when he died, who manage to prevent the Legislature from passing an act straightening out the title or transferring it to the heirs or next of kin of Mr. Leake. They have held on from year to year without improving the property, or being able to give a title to any one who will improve it. There is valuable realty not only in the city of New York, but in various other parts of the State, affected in this way, which the State has for years and years failed to take possession of, and the Legislature failed to pass acts placing the title in the legal heirs of the former alien owners. One of the best corners on Park row is held in this way. There is a general surprise why it is not improved. The fact is, that several different parties have taken steps to purchase it on account of its favorable location, with the view of erecting valuable buildings thereon, but they found that no person could give them a title and abandoned it. There is realty at the old Bull's Head ferry in the same category, left by the same alien.

Three new laws have been placed on the statute books this year straightening out the title of property in the city of New York left by aliens who have died, besides a dozen more for other sections of the State. One of the laws relative to property in New York, releases the interest of the State in and conveys the title to two lots on the south side of One Hundred and Fourteenth street, near Madison avenue, to Chauncey E. Low and Robert W. Blackwell, the executors and trustees under the will of James M. Mills. The two lots are each 25x100, lying side by side between Madison and Fourth avenues, on the south side of One Hundred and Fourteenth street, commencing 25 feet east of Madison avenue, they being the second and third lots east of that avenue. Under this special act Mr. Low and Mr. Blackwell are now enabled to give to purchasers a good title to these lots.

Another bill releases and conveys the title to Mary Mengies, a lot 25x116, in the Twenty-third Ward, on One Hundred and Fifty-first street being lot No. 261 on the map of the village of Melrose South.

Another act releases two lots with buildings thereon, in the Ninth Ward, and conveys the title thereto to Carl, Louise and Henrick Harnisch. One of these lots is on the west side of Hudson street, commencing 36 feet from the northwest corner of Perry and Hudson streets. It has a frontage of 16 feet 8 inches on Hudson street and extending back 36 feet 6 inches. The other lot is on Perry street commencing 130 feet southeast of the corner of Perry and Greenwich streets, and is 25x64. The parties to whom this property is conveyed by the legislative act, as well as those in connection with the other lots, are given the right by the law to sell and convey the same, and can give a perfect title thereto. Special bills of a similar character have been passed in reference to lots in almost every city in the State this year.

The State of New York, with all its wealth and greatness, is the only State in the Union in which alien residents are prohibited by law from holding, conveying or bequeathing real estate, or from receiving it by bequest, except Nevada, and there the Chinese are alone excepted. Aliens of all other nationalities have the same rights in that State to hold and convey realty as citizens. The Empire State thus stands alone in the prohibition on resident aliens conveying or receiving realty by bequests, or as heirs, a prohibition that places clouds and defects upon the titles of so many pieces of land and lots. It is time that this illiberal restriction, a remnant of the old English laws, was wiped from the statute books. It is a restriction that compelled the Cunard Line of steamers to occupy docks in Jersey City, and receive and discharge its cargoes there instead of in New York, which that company did until by a special enactment of the Legislature it was enabled to occupy docks in New York. The Governor having signed the bill for a commission to report a measure to the Legislature to facilitate the transfer of title to realty, and appointed the commission, that commission should include in its investigation and report this subject of aliens conveying and bequeathing real estate and recommend some plan that will remove this barrier of past ages to the transmission of title by resident aliens which they may own. It will be a good opportunity to bring the matter before the public in an official manner for discussion, and thus lead to the adoption of some plan that will not leave the titles to property which may be owned by aliens in the future at the mercy of the uncertainties of legislation. There is no reason why the Empire State should be behind every other State in the Union by maintaining clouds and defects in titles to realty.

The late Henry C. Murphy, when in the State Senate, labored zealously to correct this defect in the law and to provide that aliens might transfer titles, will or receive by bequests, or as heirs, realty, the same as citizens, but he was unable to secure the passage of his bill through the Assembly after it passed the Senate.

There were half a dozen bills straightening out the titles of real estate left by aliens which the Governor left among the bills unsigned. The titles to those pieces of property are therefore left in a muddle until some future Legislature cures the defects.

New Publications.

A Treatise on Fraudulent Conveyances and Creditors' Bills, by Frederick S. Wait, of the New York Bar: Baker, Voorhis & Co., New York.

Some very important changes have recently taken place in the laws enabling creditors to obtain possession of equitable assets and of property alienated with intent to defraud or hold in trust secretly for the debtor. Mr. Wait has endeavored in this volume to furnish creditors with a practical guide as to their remedies in such cases. The book contains twenty-seven chapters, beginning with a historical review of the growth of the law concerning fraudulent conveyances and ending with questions of jurisdiction. Chapters are devoted to property susceptible of fraudulent alienation, assets available to creditors, remedies of the latter, change of possession, husband and wife and fraudulent marriage settlements, fraudulent general assignments and chattel mortgages, spendthrift trusts and fraudulent grantees and preferences. Four additional chapters discuss the acts, void and voidable, heretofore enacted. Nearly three thousand cases are referred to in the book, of which an alphabetical table is given. To the legal profession and, on account of its intelligibility, to merchants and business men of every description, Mr. Wait's work is of great utility and value.

A Treatise on the New York Manufacturing Corporation Act of 1848, and Business Corporation Act of 1875, by Edward W. Southworth and Dwight A. Jones: Baker, Voorhis & Co., New York.

The number of manufacturing and business associations incorporated is increasing yearly, and to these, as well as the thousands of institutions already in existence, the above volume will be of much assistance. The authors have not attempted to deal with the question of joint-stock companies, nor have they endeavored to embrace all the enactments of New York under which corporations can be organized for specified industrial or commercial objects. They have confined themselves entirely to a consideration of the two acts which form the title of their treatise, and under which the vast majority of manufacturing and business corporations are organized. The book discusses the purposes for which corporations may be formed under the manufacturing act, the formation of corporations, trustees and their individual liability, stock and stock certificates, stockholders' and individual liability, powers and privileges of corporations formed under the act of 1848, and taxation and dissolution. The last chapter is devoted to a clear exposition of the distinction between the two acts. Pages 7 to 11 contain a table showing the purposes for which corporations can be formed under act the of 1848, and its extensions. The book also contains the amendments, extensions and modifications of the two acts up to March, 1884, with the various forms and by-laws.

The promoters of the proposed cable road on Broadway are wise in their generation. They offer to the property holders of that thoroughfare one-half the stock of their company in return for their consent to the construction of the road. This plan should have been thought of before. Some kind of a surface road is inevitable; but as we have before urged, no permission should be given to a Broadway railroad company that did not connect with the upper end of the island, the fare for the whole distance not being more than five cents.

A subscriber has a seat in the Real Estate Exchange and Auction Room for sale. Those who desire it should apply immediately at the office of this paper. By the time the Exchange is open for business there will be very few seats in the market.

Real Estate Department.

There is really nothing to say about the real estate market. In point of fact there is no market, although the transfers of property on the whole show up better than they did last year, but then this is simply a record of transactions a month old. The close of the Deane sale has now been postponed to August. There will not be much doing for several weeks to come.

Yesterday the four story brick store and dwelling No. 161 Fourth avenue (Union Square), next to the corner of Fourteenth street, was sold at public auction for $69,000, and two plots of four lots each, on the southeast corner of One Hundred and Eleventh, and northeast corner of One Hundred and Tenth streets and Second avenue sold under foreclosure for $14,500 and $15,250 respectively.

The comparison between the record of conveyances last week compared with the corresponding week of last year is in favor of 1884, both in the number and the consideration involved. Brokers complain that business is very dull, yet it is better this summer than it has been for several years past.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

BRICKS.—The market for Common Hards has been subject to some new influences but shows no very violent fluctuation, and the actual changes reached are in buyers' favor. The strike of the bricklayers, while not interfering with work on some of the largest and most important jobs, has met with sufficient resistance from many of the leading contractors to materially curtail consumption, and up to the present writing employers who have refused to yield to the nine-hour demand still appear firm in standing out. As there is little or no really new work commencing there is no offsetting outlet for the inquiry thus checked. Fortunately, however, the supply coming in has run lighter, many makers, it is understood, keeping cargoes at their docks after loading, and prices under the circumstances not feeling the pressure of a heavy surplus accumulation. Indeed, so far as "quoting" figures are concerned, we find very little difference from last week, but pinned right down to a selling basis the acknowledgments would seem to indicate that careful buyers have made and could retain a gain of say about 12½ per M on the average, though there may be exceptional cases where the shading was greater, under the dozens of contingencies that through, well, say forgetfulness, are never mentioned for publication. About the top rates named for the bulk of the business are $6.25 on Haverstraws, $5.62½ on Up Rivers and $5.25 for Jerseys. Exceptional sales have probably been made higher during the week. The meeting of manufacturers has been held as anticipated, an organization said to be perfected and it is generally understood that the agreement is to reduce production twenty per cent. on the output of last year. As yet the market receives the announcement very calmly and apparently quite indifferently, with some of the Trade even venturing to express doubts that the movement will prove general or fully successful, though of course that is simply a prospective view balancing an opposing one on the part of manufacturers. It is suggested, however, that as the liberal output of the first half of the season has brought many makers nearer the point of production where they must shut down than some of their slower working competitors, it will require some nice management to fully accomplish the proposed reduction without creating ill feeling at least. Pale Brick are quiet and nominally unchanged with however the average advantage in buyers' favor. The best grades of North River Front brick continue to keep well sold ahead of production, and of course the cost is quite as full as ever.

LATH.—There is a great deal of irregularity apparent on this market and were we to send a strange reporter to write it up he might think there was an effort being made to deceive him, especially by that wonderfully independent class of individuals who "never care a cent what the newspapers say." We could of course through experience explain that it was not deception, but simply a sort of commercial forgetfulness that has an unfortunate way of reserving some of the most important particulars governing sales which, if mentioned, would permit the only person who really does not care a rap what the price is, so that he can get it correctly, to name a fair general figure. All the way from $2.10 up to $2.35 is again suggested this week and we give it for what it is worth without taking any unusual trouble to investigate closely, as experience again comes in to teach us that such an effort would not be appreciated.

LIME.—The market has retained a steady and generally satisfactory tone during the week. The arrivals were fair but supply has now about all passed out of first hands at full former rates, the shipments in this direction will be small for some time to come and sellers are likely to retain the advantage for some time to come.

LUMBER.—We have been unable to discover operators who could suggest anything really new, as the outcome of the past week's operations. The distribution from yard if reported less in one section is very likely to be claimed as fuller in another portion of the city, and the aggregate movement for actual consumption does not appear to vary greatly. There is everything on hand in the way of stock to meet the call, however, and owners make no objection to selling at former figures. On first hand offerings the market is a great deal a matter of chance. We occasionally find receivers quite inclined to cheerfulness over the rates obtained on cargo lots, but a little questioning generally elicits the admission that the business covered exceptional features either as to quality or luck in securing a needy buyer, and probably the very next seller encountered will indulge in vigorous complaints over the situation. There is certainly a positive absence of snap and vigor in any grade, and advantages generally tend in buyers' favor.

Eastern Spruce still fails to afford much satisfaction to the selling interest, either on immediate or prospective business, especially in the way of random offering. The steady manner in which the supply has been absorbed since the season opened appears to have at last commenced to be felt as shown in the refusal of a number of dealers to further handle cargoes, and if arrivals happen to "bunch up" a little it requires some sharp running around to find customers even though lower valuations are mentioned to open the negotiations. Valuations are irregular at anywhere from $12.00@12.50 for inferior, up to $15.00 for fine special and $16.00 or upward asked on special, but not many selling.

White Pine is plenty, well assorted and available much in excess of any outlet presented, with the market flat and tame. There is a common and natural effort to disguise unfavorable features, but the situation is too transparent to build up a market on what holders of the stock "ask" and would like to realize, and when matters come right down to accomplished business the buyer generally has the advantage. Indeed concessions are constantly made whenever such a course will result in quickened sales of stock. We quote at $17.00@19.00 for West India shipping boards; $25@28 for South American do.; $14@15 for box boards, and $16.00@17.50 for extra do.

According to the compilation of the Export Lumber Company the exports of White Pine from port of New York for first six months of the years named was as follows:

1877	26,976,000	1881	33,703,000
1878	20,200,000	1882	29,223,000
1879	27,919,000	1883	34,559,000

Yellow Pine remains in a more or less stupid sort of condition and while pretty much former figures are repeated when an attempt is made to decide on values, all quotations are in reality merely nominal for the present, and especially for random business. Now and then some figuring on specials takes place and there is understood to be a little f. o. b. trading through agents here, but nothing to afford manufacturers much encouragement. Stocks have filled up a trifle all around and yard supplies are good enough, as business, stands so much so indeed that many dealers refuse to make further additions. We quote as follows: Randoms, $18@21.00 per M; Specials, $20@22.00 do.; Green Flooring Boards, $22@23; Dry do., do., $23@24; Siding, $22@23 do.; Cargoes f. o. b. at Atlantic ports, $14@15.00 for rough, and $18@21 for dressed. Cargoes f. o. b. at Gulf ports, $13@14 for rough, and $18@20 for dressed.

Hardwoods are not wanted unless choice and attractive in quality, but in that case a quick satisfactory sale is assumed. About one offering in fifty really comes up to the proper standard of excellence, and the balance has to take the chances on a catch trade and generally at very low figures. We quote at wholesale rates by car load as follows: Walnut, $65@110 per M.; ash, $35@40 do.; oak, $30@55 do.; maple, $20@32.50 do.; chestnut, $25@30 do.; cherry, $40@75 do.; whitewood, $27@35 do., do.; elm, $22@25; hickory, $45@52.50 do.

GENERAL LUMBER NOTES.

STATE.

ALBANY MARKET.

The Argus reports for week ending July 22 as follows:

There has been only a fair attendance of buyers in market, but the shipments have been pretty large, either of previous sales or orders by mail. The stock on the yards has increased from large receipts, as all the canals are now in fine running order. The mills in Canada are getting short of logs, and many will soon have to shut down for the year. There is, however, a fine stock of lumber there piled and seasoning, so that shipments will continue till the close of navigation. In Michigan there was a large winter's cut of logs, which were successfully run to the booms, and the mills will be fully employed till the close of the season. Prices there are slightly off on common stock, while the better grades are firmly held. Hemlock and spruce are accumulating considerably on the yards from constant receipts. The assortment is very good, and large shipments show large sales. Hardwoods are in fair stock, and all kinds can be readily obtained seasoned fit for use. The demand is fully up to the amount usual at this season of the year. Shingles are going off slowly. Lath are in good supply and demand.

THE WEST.

SAGINAW VALLEY.

LUMBERMAN'S GAZETTE,
BAY CITY, MICH.

During the past week buyers both from the East and from Ohio have been on the market. As to the amount of lumber which has changed hands, however, it is about an impossibility to form any estimate. The shipments, however, from week to week, indicate that there is a steady demand and that the transactions are very much larger than appears on the surface. During May the shipments were larger than for the same period in 1883, and for June slightly less; the first half of July is fully up to the same period last year. In fact, the docks were full at the commencement of the sawing season, the mills have been run to their utmost capacity, and the increase on the docks has been but trifling, proving conclusively that a heavy volume of business has been transacted during the season thus far. Moore & Whipple sold last week 3,500,000 feet, 800,000 of which is shipped from Bay City and the balance from Au Sable; W. J. McGraw sold 200,000 feet of 10-inch boards at $10; Wright & Davis since last report have disposed of 5,000,000 feet of Bradford lake stock to Albany parties at $17 straight, delivered free on dock at West Bay City; Burrows & Wright sold 450,000 coarse box at $8.50 per thousand; an offer of $9, $18 and $33 for 750,000 feet of dry 2-inch lumber was refused by Saginaw parties last week, showing that the owners believe that "lumber is lumber."

The Chicago Northwestern Lumberman reports:

Our last week's report made mention of the fact that there was much private terms business being done on the cargo market, as a partial result of the weakness induced in the effort to work off the Fourth of July fleet. It was difficult to arrive at the real state of the market, as both commission men and yard jobbers were performing the pantomimic act, and were about as communicative as an oyster. This week, however, the cat is out of the bag, and all are more willing to talk. Last week $8.75 for piece stuff was the lowest figure a commission man was willing to name, but now he is ready to admit that it must be a good cargo that is selling at $8.50, while plenty of it is going at $8.25. No doubt that before this number of the Lumberman reaches its readers cargoes will sell at $8 a thousand in frequent instances. In fact it appears to be the general opinion that the market cannot endure the present strain much longer, and that dimension must drop another notch. The range on short piece stuff can now be quoted at $8.25@8.50, the latter figures covering the better cargoes, running a good percentage to long lengths.

Two cargoes of long timbers sold during the week at $10.50 a thousand. The stuff was the best kind of Manistee timber, and much of it 38 feet and upward long. The same timber two years ago would have sold for $16 to $17 a thousand. Yet it is thought by the yard men that dimension is holding up wonderfully under the circumstances.

Common inch lumber has lately suffered the greatest decline. The drop on this class of lumber amounts to at least $1 a thousand. Commission men are now freely quoting it on the docks at $9—that is, for coarse No. 2. Since the majority of inch stock offered on the market is coarse, it is likely that the greater number of sales are being made at about $9. The range on No. 2 may be stated at $9 to $11, though very little lumber of the No. 2 class reaches the upper figure. The decline also affects medium stock, which must be quoted $1 a thousand lower. It is claimed that No. 1 lumber is holding its own, but that is exceedingly doubtful. When we get down to the bedrock of values we find that all lumber is depressed, though really good stock is holding up better than the lower grades.

Quotations are as follows:

Piece stuff, green	$8 25@ 8 50
Long timbers, green	10 00@10 50
Boards and strips, No. 2, green	9 00@11 00
" medium, green	11 00@13 00
" No. 1, green	15 00@18 00
High grade	18 00@24 00

The monthly statement of the Lumberman's Exchange shows an increase of lumber on hand July 1, amounting to 91,961,413 during the month of June, and 22,527,200 shingles, and an increase of lumber over July 1, 1883, of 39,917,117. Though the increase is not appalling, it is sufficient to show that the summer business of this year has not been equal to that of last season, and calls for a careful survey of the situation and cautious going on the part of dealers.

The effort to curtail the production of lumber in the Northwest continues. The following circular upon the subject explains itself:

CHICAGO, JULY 7th, 1884.

DEAR SIR—It has been suggested by several prominent lumber manufacturers, in Michigan, Wisconsin and the Mississippi River district, that a combined effort be made to reduce the quantity of lumber to be manufactured during the remainder of 1884, and that a convention be held in Chicago to consider the proposition. There seems two avenues leading to better prices.

One to limit production by closing the mills at an early date, say October 1st, and lessen the pressure to sell lumber, and endeavor to obtain the same amount of money for four-fifths the logs that all would sell for if placed on the market during the present season, carrying the remainder into 1885, and to that extent reducing the pressure upon logging endeavors during the coming winter.

The other: To continue to saw lumber until the close of the season, and thereby overstock the market to an extent that will eventually discourage sawing lumber, and reduce the supply by exhausting manufacturers.

While success must surely follow a reduction in sawing if sixty per cent. of the machinery can be stopped, it seems impossible to place the lumber market in a healthy condition by continuing the present supply.

The annual meeting of the Northwestern Lumber Manufacturers' Association will be held in Chicago early in September, when action can be taken on the proposition to close the mills, or, if thought desirable, a convention will be called at an early date to consider this very important matter.

The object of this letter is to learn the opinion of manufacturers in regard to this question, and you will please express your ideas on this subject by writing to the secretary of this association, who will treat your reply as confidential.

Very respectfully,
A. G. VAN SCHAICK, President.
E. S. HOTCHKISS, Secretary.

ENGLAND.

The London Timber Trade's Journal reports:

Cedar seems to be looking up, prices are firmer, and since stocks in first hands are getting into small compass, there is good reason to expect a better tone in the market for this article.

The trade in American black walnut is rather quiet; the poor descriptions seem only to sell slowly, but really good logs when wanted still command full prices. The wood now landing seems generally of pretty good character, although we notice some which we should think cannot prove remunerative to the shippers.

American Whitewood.—Supplies of cut stuff continue to come forward, and some parcels of unusually wide widths are now being landed, which, being free from centre, square-edged, and sound, must work up very advantageously.

METALS.—COPPER—Ingot has secured moderate trade attention against which the offering was ample, and rates about as before. Buyers claim that there is a liberal accumulation of stock at the mines, and generally seem to expect lower rates. We quote at 14c. for Lake down to 13c. for the less popular brands. Manufactured Copper moderately active and nominally unchanged in value. We quote as follows: Brazier's Copper, ordinary size, over 16 oz. per sq. foot, 22c. per lb.; do. do. do., 16 oz. and over 12 oz. per sq. foot, 24c. per lb.; do. do., 10 and 12 oz. per sq. foot, 27c. per lb.; do., do., lighter than 10 oz. per sq. foot, 29c. per lb.; circles less than 84 inches in diameter, 25c. per lb.; 84 inches in diameter and over, 28c. per lb.; segment and pattern sheets, 25c. per lb.; locomotive fire-box sheets, 23c. per lb.; Sheathing Copper, over 12 oz. per sq. foot, 20c. per lb., and Bolt Copper, 23c. per lb. IRON—Scotch Pig is in very light demand, and importers are largely narrowing their business to sales of invoices to arrive and then ordering the stock forward. Prices about as before, with quotations placed at $19@22 per ton, according to quality and brand. American Pig is in fair natural trade demand, but beyond that does not appear to find much of an outlet. Supplies are quite equal to calls, but appear to be kept very well in hand, and only available at former rates. We quote $20.00@20.50 per ton for No. 1 X foundry, $18.50@19.00 for No. 2 X do. do., and $17.00@18.00 for gray forge. Old rails are dull, and show continued weakness on price. Scrap Iron neglected both on spot and to arrive, and buyers generally endeavoring to secure concessions from former rates. We quote at $18@19 for tee rails, $20@21 for double heads, $20.00@20.50 for No. 1 wrought scrap ex ship, $21@23 for selected do., $16.50@17.50 for old car wheels, and $19.00@20.00 for crop ends. Steel Rails have little or no demand at the moment, and notwithstanding a material curtailment in the productive capacity of the country available supplies are more than sufficient for the outlet. We quote at $30@31 per ton for heavy sections, according to delivery, etc. Manufactured Iron is slow from store, and not meeting with much demand on special orders, etc., with the general tendency of prices weak and unsettled. We quote Common Merchant Bar, ordinary sizes, at 2.0@2.10c. from store, and Refined at 2.10@2.45c.; Rods, round and square, 2.20@2.35c.; Bands, 2.50@2.60c.; Norway Nail Rods, 5¼@6c., and domestic sheet on the basis of 2.80@3.10c. for common Nos. 10@16. Other descriptions at corresponding prices, with 1-10c. less on large lots from cars. LEAD—Domestic Pig meets with continued slow demand from pretty much all quarters, there is plenty of stock available if wanted, and the general tone of the market is tame. We quote at about 3½@3⅝c. per lb., according to brand and the size of invoice handled. The manufactures of lead are steady and quoted: Bar, 5c.; pipe, 6¼c.; and sheet, 7¼c., less the usual discount to the trade; and tin-lined pipe, 15c.; block tin pipe, 45c., on same terms. TIN—Pig remains quite firm in price for most grades on the support of the foreign advices, and fairly controlled stocks here, but the demand is not active beyond ordinary trade wants. We quote at 18⅞@19¼c. for Straits, 19@19¼c. for Australian, 19⅛@19⅜ for English, and 20@20¼c. for Banca. Tin Plates have secured a fair average jobbing demand. The supply of Cokes continues quite limited, and the firm tone growing out of that position is reflected to some extent on Charcoals. We quote I. C. Charcoal, third class assortment, $5.15@5.20 for Allaway grade, and $5.75@5 87½ for Melyn grade; for each additional X add $1.25 and $1.50 respectively; I. C. Coke, $4 90@4.95 for B. V. grade; $4.95@5.00 for J. B. grade; Charcoal terne, $4.75@5.00 for Allaway and Dean grades 14x20; $9.75@10.00 for do. 20x28; Coke terne, $4.55@4.60 for Glais grade 14x20, and $9.50@9.55 for do. 20x28—all in round lots. Spelter not meeting with much attention, and the market is unsettled and weak, especially on domestic, though foreign feels the influence to some extent. We quote at 4½@5c. for domestic, and foreign according to brand, quantity, etc. Sheet Zinc slow and nominally unchanged. We quote at 5⅞@7c., according to quality, quantity, etc.

NAILS.—The market continues in a more or less unsettled condition, with buyers reaping about all the advantage. Demand is fair and rather on the mend if anything, but ample, and in some cases burdensome stocks on hand, coupled with a great deal of competition between manufacturers of the different sections of the country, keeps the tone easy and compels the acceptance of low figures when actual sales are reached. We quote at $2.35@2.50 per keg for 10d. to 60d., according to quantity.

PAINTS, OILS, ETC.—Demand is improving somewhat from most regular or seasonable sources, and calls for a good average assortment of stock. There is an offering equal to all wants, however, and holders generally found to be willing to accept former rates when an opportunity to do business is presented, though it would probably be difficult if not impossible to obtain a positive shading. Linseed Oil remains steady and in good average demand with fair amounts of stock offering at 56@57 for domestic and 59@60 for foreign. Spirits Turpentine not selling freely but stock under good control and the market firmer at 32½@34c. per gallon, according to size of invoice, delivery, etc.

PITCH AND TAR.—An ordinary trade movement at about old rates and fair offerings of stocks, but no excess. We quote: Pitch, $2.25@2.30 per bbl.; Tar, $2.50@2.00, according to quantity, quality and delivery.

MORTGAGES.

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given, and the amount. The general dates used as headings are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

ELECTRIC DOOR OPENERS

For Apartment Houses.

PATENTED APRIL 29, 1884; other Patents Applied For.

A large number of J. H. BUNNELL & Co.'s Electric Door-Openers are now in use in apartment houses in this city. Experience demonstrates their great practical superiority over the usual kind known as "the Mechanical Door-Opener."

With the Electric Door-Opener, the front door is instantly unlatched by simply pressing an electrical button, placed wherever convenience requires it; and as the connection can be made with any number of buttons, they may be so located that the door may be unlatched from any point on any floor of the largest house with equal ease.

This Electric Door-Opener completely obviates all the well known difficulties and expenses arising from the stretching and repairing of "pull-wires," as the work is perfectly performed by the electric current which passes through stationary wires.

Architects and owners are invited to inspect the operation of this device at our office, or at any of the apartment houses where it is in use. For information, prices, or reference regarding those in use, communications addressed to us will be promptly answered by mail or personal call by our Agents, who will also furnish estimates upon other electrical work of every description.

J. T. LINDSEY, Business Manager.

AUGUST 2, 1884.

The Cause of the Trouble.

Nine of the seventeen rail works in this country have gone out of business, and the remaining firms are selling steel rails at $28 per ton, about $1 below the cost of the cheapest method of production. One-half the cotton mills of New England are to close for thirty days during the months of August and September, and all our large manufactories are known to be in trouble from lack of orders and low prices. But this is not all—the writer of "Mid-week Echoes" in the Sun prints the following:

The general complaint of the depression in all branches of business in this country would not have been so loud if the majority of people had been better posted upon the condition of affairs in other countries. The depression is universal, and its causes are everywhere the same—over-production and want of confidence. We had only the additional factor of stealing and fraudulent bank and railroad directors, but in all other respects Europe is not a bit better off than we are. The reduction of the bank rate in London to 2 per cent. makes loanable capital as cheap as it is here, and shows that an immense surplus of it is unemployed. Even in Calcutta and Bombay, where 15 per cent. per annum was till recently considered a natural rate, money has fallen down to 5 per cent.

The Herald thinks that the difficulty is with the tariff and that there has been over-production, but this will not account for the depression of trade in Great Britain, where there is no tariff. The Sun writer thinks the difficulty is want of confidence, due to the dishonesty of the financial classes, but this will not account for the bad times in Europe where, the Sun writer admits, cheating bankers are sternly punished.

The depression cannot be attributed to war or famine, for we have had no great international conflict for several years and the harvests have been abundant the world over. The earth has yielded not only largely but in many nations prodigiously, yet the trade of the world labors apparently under a distressing burden. There is no profit in business and the prices of all commodities are being constantly marked lower and lower.

What, then, is the matter?

The cause is evidently one which affects the commerce of the whole world, for the same phenomenon is observable in every quarter of the globe, especially in the active commercial nations.

The solution of the problem is to be found in the attempt of the financial world to substitute the gold unit of value for the bi-metallic basis, which was the measure of prices for fifty years and up to the spring of 1873, when Germany and the United States demonetized silver. It is known to the merest tyro in finance that every discovery of gold or silver in large quantities has stimulated healthfully the trade of the world. The splendors of the courts of Charles the Fifth of Spain and of Elizabeth of England and the vast development of commerce at that time was due to the hundreds of millions of silver which came from the Spanish American mines. The greater part of the marvelous activity of trade in these latter days is traceable to the gold discoveries in California, Australia and New Zealand. But the production of gold and silver has since fallen off, while their consumption in the arts and for coinage has largely increased within the last fifteen years. Legislation has been conspiring with nature to reduce the stock of precious metals available for commerce by rejecting silver and making gold the sole unit of value, in face of the fact that silver is the most useful metal of the two, and is the money which the mass of mankind use in their daily transactions.

There is no hope of a great revival of trade unless the nations readopt bi-metallism, unless, indeed, nature or accident should come to our aid and furnish another gold field as productive as those that changed the face of the business world in 1849 and the years immediately following.

They who ought to know say that "Jake" Sharpe and his friends will secure the franchise for the horse-car road on Broadway. The cable company people have plenty of money and have the most comprehensive plan, but Sharpe and his friends understand the business of manipulating legislative bodies, and they will come out ahead. The cable people are very weak in dealing either with the public or with the business features of their enterprise. The company that will probably be successful in securing the franchise will use horses, which will prove a real misfortune, for in addition to getting rid of the omnibuses, it would be desirable to have fewer draught animals on our main thoroughfare. A power which, like the cable, would draw three or more cars would be a great relief to Broadway travel. Perhaps, however, there is something still better in store for us. The electric motor in Cleveland propelled fifteen street cars, and had an advantage over the cable system that the cars could be pushed back as well as shoved forward. There is an electric road at Brighton, England, running along the seashore, which is said to be highly profitable. But the question of the cost of electric motors is not yet determined. So far electricity, either for lighting or other purposes, has not proved a cheap power to use.

The Problem of Wages.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE.

In your comments upon the building strike you seem to take the view that a demand for higher wages in dull times has the effect of checking what little remaining activity there may be, and rendering the dullness even greater. This is the usual view, and I grant that the reasoning is upon the face of it quite sound. A little reflection, however, will show that an opposite opinion is not so absurd as would appear at first glance.

Suppose for a moment that every member of the community, by the exercise of much lauded frugality and self-denial, living on oatmeal, lodging on boards and the rest of it, were to reduce their income to a dollar a day alike for each and all, would the community then be in a flourishing condition? Evidently not. But if each one received ten dollars a day and enjoyed the health, the books, the relaxations, the sermons, that are obtainable only by wealth, the whole community would be, I think you will admit, in a very flourishing condition, a state of civilization far surpassing anything we have so far attained.

The proposition that we started with, that to lower wages is to increase general prosperity, thus tested, does not seem to be as self-evident as it did before. We must look for the explanation in the fact that all producers are consumers as well. The men that build houses are the men that live in them, not individually, of course; but taking the whole community as a great co-operative society, each works, not for others, but for himself. You yourself in speaking of land-holders frequently allude to the stiffness with which they adhere to their already prohibitory prices or even advance them in the face of general depression as an evidence of an undercurrent of strength in the nation's industry. By the same reasoning the success of the striking bricklayers should be considered by fair-minded persons as a success of workers in general, including employers as well as workmen, including indeed everybody in the community who gives in return for what he receives.

The condemnation that is lavished by the well-to-do upon "the working classes" is based upon a misapprehension of their own truest interests. The prosperity of one cannot be separated from the prosperity of all. Least of all can that nation be considered prosperous where robbery is held to be property, where our brothers are gradually being reduced, and reduced, and reduced, to tenement dwellers, to paupers, to tramps, to forgers and thieves; while bank presidents steal millions unpunished, and bribing corporations gobble the rest. RIENZI.

REMARKS.—The above communication from an architect merits a candid reply. We quite agree with "Rienzi" that employers who advocate "Chinese cheap labor," or any cheap labor, are extremely shortsighted. The highest civilization and the greatest prosperity is in those quarters of the globe where the working classes are best remunerated. India, China, Egypt, agricultural Russia, and all half-civilized nations have an abundance of the very cheapest labor; but every interest of the State suffers because of the poor pay of their working classes. It is very evident that were all the toilers of this country to receive from $30 to $50 per week, all our industries would be vastly benefited. There would be a demand for books, pictures and newspapers, all the comforts of life and many of the luxuries, to an extent that we can now scarcely comprehend. Builders and real estate owners would be benefited by the demand for better and finer houses and superior accommodations.

So much is obvious. But the strike of the bricklayers and laborers for a reduction in the hours of work is not a movement to elevate the whole working class. Their success would be a real detriment to other working people, for were they to succeed in getting the same money for less work than they now perform it would increase the cost of houses and raise rentals, and thus become burdensome to their fellow workmen in other employments. Nor would we oppose the strike very earnestly if we thought it could be permanently obtained, for it really makes little difference to builders in the long run. They could charge the additional cost to their customers, and there would be an end to the matter. But it is clear as the daylight that one class of workmen cannot permanently get the advantage of every other class. Liquidation is the order of the day. There has been an immense shrinkage in prices, in stocks, grains, cotton, wool and all manufactured articles. It has not yet reached land or labor, because these were the last to feel the speculative afflatus of the boom started by the passing of the silver bill in 1873 and the resumption of specie payments in 1879.

Now this strike will put a stop to the activity in building operations. It will lessen the number of orders and injure employers and workmen alike.

Then there is the local reason. A higher rate of wages in New York than in the surrounding country is a check to the prosperity of the city. It tends to diminish the number of buildings, increases rentals and stops the natural growth of the metropolis. Thanks to their trades' unions the mechanics connected with the building trades are better paid now than other workmen whose employments demand even more skill than theirs. But these trade regulations are more easily enforced in a large city than in a smaller one, and hence Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore, our immediate rivals, are advantaged by the cheaper labor in those cities. If any way could be shown us by which all workmen could permanently receive high wages without detriment to anyone we would gladly advocate the necessary measures, but an increase in wages, or what is equivalent, the same wages for less work, in one particular employment is an unnecessary burden to the community and in the long run injures the trades which try to benefit themselves at the expense of their employers and workmen engaged in other occupations.

The Elevated Roads Again.

The Hour makes a point about Judge Van Hoesen's decision which merits the attention of the management of the elevated roads. The Manhattan Company is no longer embarrassed by intestine disputes. It is one corporation, and from this time forth ought to develop the full capabilities of the elevated system.

The Legislature, says Judge Van Hoesen, probably never thought that tickets would be sold in structures built over the highway. The act authorizing the construction of the elevated system provides that the company may rent, purchase or acquire such buildings or part of buildings as may be convenient for stations or depots for public access to the railway. Why not take advantage of this permission, says the Hour, and get possession of the property adjoining the present stations, making use of them for business purposes? This is done in a small way in the news-stands, about which the Herald complains so bitterly and with so little reason. But why should it not be done in a much larger and more comprehensive way? Wherever there are throngs of people there is the site for a retail business. Under the law the elevated companies can acquire what property they wish in the neighborhoods of their stations. There is nothing to prevent them from converting the purchased premises into arcades for the sale of any kind of small wares, from newspapers and pincushions to sealskin sacques. For over a year past THE RECORD AND GUIDE has been urging upon the elevated companies the purchase of the property adjoining their stations, with a view to putting elevators therein for the accommodation of the public. It is simply an elaboration of the same suggestion which the Hour makes that the buildings secured should be altered so as to accommodate a great variety of small stores, in which could be sold shoes, hats, ladies' and gents' underwear, jewelry, books, fancy goods, prints and the thousand and one comforts and luxuries usually on sale in retail stores. No doubt a syndicate could be organized who would take a contract for the whole city, and organize a miniature Macy's on the corners where are now situated the elevated stations. The Hour closes with the following suggestion, which has also been urged in these columns:

> With larger station buildings the elevated railway companies could profit greatly by a business for which they have peculiar facilities. Between midnight and daylight—during the very hours in which passengers are few and trains half an hour apart—hundreds of tons of provisions are sent up town, from Fulton Market and Washington Market, for retailers. At present these men have to drive down with their own wagon for their supplies; so before daylight the horses and wagons have done half a day's work. All of this carrying the elevated road might do rapidly, cheaply and without annoyance to any one. The only extra expense would be a hand elevator at each station to lower the packages; the hoisting would be done at two stations only. Quite probably, too, the numerous local express companies would be glad to save some horseflesh, wagons and harness by arranging for the carrying, at night, of much of their heavy stuff taken from steamers, and from the trains that come into Jersey City and send the contents of their luggage cars over the down-town ferries.
> It is not often that a corporation can at one and the same time correct a mistake, silence opposition and extend its business, and do all with profit to itself. The elevated railroad companies have such an opportunity offered them by Judge Van Hoesen's decision, and they will be untrue to their proved business sagacity if they do not promptly make much of it.

Theodore Roosevelt shows his wisdom in not leaving the party with which he has always acted. He must sympathize with George William Curtis and his friends, and it is known that he personally likes Governor Cleveland, but he could not wisely do otherwise than vote for the Republican national ticket. He was honorably bound by the action of the National Convention, to which he was a delegate. He was there in a representative capacity and could not betray his backers. The Republican party would be wise were it to nominate Theodore Roosevelt for Mayor. We believe he could be elected by the reformers of all parties. He has more claims on the office than any living New Yorker.

Our Prophetic Department.

MR. HOPEFUL—Well, Sir Oracle, everything looks all right, doesn't it? Wall street is the pulse of the country, and when that locale is cheerful we may all reasonably expect that business will be prosperous for this crop year at least.

SIR ORACLE—I was rather disposed to look on the bright side of things during the spring months, when the depression was greatest. When the bears were most rampant, I held the position that the country was not going to the dogs, and the old good dividend-paying stocks were not intrinsically worthless. I think events have justified my forecasts made in May and June. But I now begin to fear that Wall street is overdoing it on the other side. The wounds to the business of the country have been so deep and serious that I do not believe trade can become prosperous right away. One good crop is not enough, we require two or three, as well as better prices for our grain than we have obtained recently.

MR. H.—Is it not true that we have secured the largest wheat crop the country ever saw? Is there not every reason to believe that the corn crop will be enormous, and the cotton crop as good as the best?

SIR O.—You are right about the wheat crop, but we are not certain of the corn crop yet. True, there is a large acreage and the plant was favored during the early growing season, but, as Benner predicted, we are having a rainy and cool summer. An untimely September frost would result in a smaller corn crop than that of last year, and then where would the business of the country be?

MR. H.—Oh, what is the use of croaking? There is now every prospect of a large crop of everything or else Wall street would not be so buoyant.

SIR O.—Well I am disposed to be cheerful over the outlook myself, but Wall street over-does everything. It is the business of the speculator to run to extremes, and to anticipate the future. If we do have a large corn crop its effect will be discounted in the "street" before the crop is gathered.

MR. H.—But what causes for disquiet have you? Surely the general outlook is good. Is there not a strong probability that foreigners will be buying our stocks next fall, and that we shall soon be importing gold?

SIR O.—Yes; foreigners, like our own people, will purchase stocks when they are going up instead of taking advantage of a low market, and I judge we shall have some gold importations this fall; but what troubles me is the trade outlook. I do not think the condition of affairs is satisfactory in the business world. I look for many failures among merchants, and then you know the price of iron is at its lowest point, and the proverb holds good that business cannot be prosperous while the iron trade is depressed. It is idle to talk of good times with steel rails selling at $28 per ton, with cotton mills closing and iron foundries going out of blast. Wall street is "too previous" in thinking everything is all lovely because of a good wheat crop and the promise of a large corn crop. Our manufacturing interests are depressed and likely to continue so for some time to come.

Mr. H.—But then there is the political question. There is as yet no great excitement, and no one apprehends any trouble because of a change of administration.

SIR O.—Nevertheless there will be a disturbance no matter which party succeeds. If Cleveland is chosen President there will be an entire change in the personnel of the government. Tens of thousands of office holders will be thrown out of employment, nor would matters be much better were Mr. Blaine elected. His friends would be put in the place of those Mr. Arthur kept in authority. While an election may not interfere with business, a change in the personnel of the government always involves more or less confusion. Then there is the cholera. It will not trouble us on this side of the ocean until next year, but it will interfere with our markets abroad and the fear of what it will do here next year will enter into the calculations of all those engaged in business. The bull speculators would do well to go slow.

The stock market has been on a whirl during the past week. All who have ventured their money on the bull side have made handsome profits. The most experienced traders have looked for reactions, but so far they have not come. There is now every reason to believe that August will show a higher range of values than July. Gold has commenced to come from the other side, and when the cotton bills are due there might be quite an importation of the yellow metal. This would set foreigners to purchasing our securities, for, like our own people, they buy when prices are going up, not when stocks are depressed.

At the same time it must be admitted that the general business of the country is not in good shape. Merchants and manufacturers alike complain, and then the price of iron and steel is lower than ever, a very bad sign in itself. But Wall street is hopeful, and then it is a current impression that the first sign of better times will show itself on the Stock Exchange. In any event we will have a good real estate market this fall.

Home Decorative Notes.

—It has been claimed that pretty and comfortable homes exert as decided moral influence; be this as it may, we are all interested in making our homes attractive and there is no reason why they should not be so, we are apt to think that costly things must be beautiful but this is by no means true, nor is it true that inexpensive objects must be ugly; the same materials used in the construction and decoration of an ugly apartment might with the exercise of a little taste be so employed that a graceful combination would be the result.

—Rattan and willow rocking chairs are still in favor, many have a centre piece of embossed plush or velvet on the back.

—Dark red matting used for a dado gives a most satisfactory effect, it may be continuous or divided in panels by narrow strips of wood.

—A rule among house furnishers is that of having one color prevail throughout the room, beginning with as dark a shade as is permissible for the carpet or its wooden border, whether painted or inlaid, then choosing a lighter tone for the dado, with a still lighter hue for the middle wall, a very pale shade for the frieze and the lightest tint of all for the ceiling.

—Woven or checker board work for cushions and chair backs is quite popular; mohair skirt braid is most serviceable, but satin ribbon is much handsomer.

—Miniature cathedrals in fancy wood with clock in the tower or steeple are mantel novelties.

—A rich trophy for the wall of a country mansion is of Berlin bronze, and consists of a massive shield, embossed with oak leaves and grapes, and an antlered deer's head, a pair of hunting knives, a halberd, spears and hunting horn, embossed with high relief figures accompanying it in picturesque grouping.

—Willow work-baskets make very pretty presents when a bow of ribbon ties the handle and decorated with some slight embroidery, thereby indicating the personal consideration given to the gift.

—Ceilings are no longer whitened, and when not decorated with figures are painted in the lightest hue of the color that prevails in the room.

—For gas or electric light one of the richest and most glowing and jewel-like in effect in plush is copper color; capucine is also lovely, and golden bronze terra cottas light up exquisitely; ciel blue is effective.

—Simulating old or oxydized iron, brass, copper and bronze, there has appeared a new composition called "Plastique," invented by a Frenchman, and capable of reproducing, as to color and texture, wood, ivory, pottery, stone or metal, and that so perfectly as to deceive the keenest eye.

—In the way of doilies and pin-cushion covers no work on linen is now too delicate; designs in outline work are so fine that they seem to be done with a hair; drawn work cutting the linen in four sections, in each of which is an embroidered spray, is often employed; old fashioned linen sampler canvas is greatly used for the covers of pin-cushions, this has the ornament worked in silks in cross stitch, exactly as was done by our grandmothers.

—Towels that can be used as protecting cloths or lunch-trays and for bureaus are transformed by bands done in button-hole stitch and afterward cut out.

—Mosaic patchwork is applied as a border to table covers of plush or cloth; a cover of deep maroon velvet has a border about twelve inches in width of silk and satin patches; over this border is laid a network pattern of silk and gold cord, caught at intervals with large gold spangles; the maroon velvet is carried into a band around the edge of the patchwork and to this is sewn tassels of gold and silk.

—For drawing-rooms, halls and libraries, there are flock papers with figures in relief, colored after the paper is on the walls in contrast or in harmony with the ground; for these rooms there are also papers that copy antique leathers, and these are sometimes left to hang loosely on the walls in the way real animal leathers are treated.

—A very brilliant and showy design, for a mantle lambrequin, is branches of tulips wrought in various colors in velours embroidery on a foundation of olive green satin.

—Cheese cloth in shades of pink, blue, yellow and turkey red is a novelty and extensively used for curtain draperies.

—Colored velvet insertions through drawn work, embroidered in gay colors, are rich in effect.

—Very rich dining-room curtains are of copper colored serge, with a broad border of horse-chestnut leaves and spiked pods cut from velveteen and applique with variegated silks; several shades of brown russet, red and harmonizing yellow, are employed in the foliage and the pods are slightly padded; a straight band of the serge carrying the same design crosses the top of each window when the curtains are in place.

—A pretty application of embroidery for bedroom use is the silk cover of an eider-down quilt, worked with occasional sprays of wild flowers; a full gathered fall of lace, with satin bows at the four corners, completes the fashioning of one of these attractive covers.

—A jardinière of ferns is a graceful ornament for a vacant fire-place.

—Bureau sets of Bolting cloth outlined with the forget-me-not crackle design are extremely delicate.

—Movable cushions have recently been adjusted to sofas and couches.

—Painting on plate glass for mirrors is much admired, deeply bevelled looking-glass is the best to use, when set in ebonized wood; the painting is so designed as to droop over the glass from one side and to be carried on over that side of the frame, by this means the reflection of the painting is clearly seen, mirrors for boudoirs are mostly ornamented in this way; sprays of apple blossoms, cherry blossoms and long branches of blackberries are chosen flowers for this style of decoration, while birds, butterflies and bees are introduced hovering about the flowers.

Concerning Men and Things.

Royal Phelps is dead, and the newspapers have had more or less to say about him that is eulogistic, but the Tribune tells only the truth when it asserts that the deceased was at heart nothing but a merchant, and that he never had any liking for the public and philanthropic positions which he was forced to occupy always against his will. All that could really be said in commendation of Mr. Phelps is that he was a man of distinguished appearance, with a strong sense of business integrity. His wealth and striking personal appearance forced him into positions for which he was not fitted and which he got rid of as soon as possible. He was a close, hardfisted business man, without any public spirit. It is said in real estate circles that he would avoid closing a profitable bargain rather than pay the broker a full commission. In looking for a site for the new Real Estate Exchange, an offer was made for his property on the northwest corner of Broadway and Morris street. Not knowing on whose behalf it was made Mr. Phelps named a good round sum, but on learning who the would-be purchasers were, he promptly advanced his demand to a figure that was inadmissible, and made light of the suggestion that he should exhibit some public spirit in the matter. We are not giving these facts to cast any censure upon the dead, for the prosperity of New York is largely due to money loving, close, unaspiring men like the late Royal Phelps. They are quite as useful in their sphere as more public spirited citizens, but why eulogize dead men for virtues and public services to which they never laid claim while living?

"Rigolo," whose interesting Monday articles in the Sun are read with so much interest, has turned "bull." For three years he has been a persistent and consistent "bear." Indeed he was a bear a month ago when the range of values was fifteen to twenty points below what they were recently. The financial writer who writes the article in the Sunday Times and Bradstreets, and who is the chief writer on the Wall Street News, is still unconverted, and is as unreasonably bearish as ever. Writers who will always harp on one key may be correct in their general theories, but are poor guides to follow. A market is like the tides, with its rises and falls, and a financial writer who always runs in one direction is sure to be wrong half his time. The wisest paper in this respect is the Daily Stockholder, which hits the mark oftener than any of its rivals. Lately, however, it seems to be under the influence of Jay Gould & Co., and is somewhat too critical with the Vanderbilt properties, which remain after all the best in the market.

Pine street is in a disgraceful condition. The roadway is unfit for beast or vehicle to travel over. There are two or three large holes in the ground between Broadway and Nassau street, one of which is over ten inches in depth, which form, in wet weather, puddles of water and are at all times a danger to horses passing over them, who are liable to have their legs severely strained by missing their foothold and dumping into the gaps. The pavement, whatever it may be, is of the worst kind, and the authorities ought to consider the advisability of some new method, or repair the present roadway. The road is just worst before the doors of some of the principal real estate brokers, and it is surprising that these gentlemen have been so long suffering in permitting this nuisance to exist. The Commissioners of Public Works should see to it that this roadway is improved at once.

The Telegram and Morning Journal have adopted the expedient of issuing placards to the news-stands all over the city containing a resume of the news of the day appearing in their columns. This enables the public to know what there is to read about, and so far from decreasing the sale of papers increases the demand. People who want a newspaper usually buy it, and would not be deterred from doing so by knowing the principal items of news, while hundreds would very likely buy a paper after reading the contents who would not probably have done so had their attention not been attracted to an article or some news which interested them. The idea of issuing placards at all the news-stands is not a novel one. It is the practice throughout the whole of England. The placards or posters there are usually three feet long and about two feet wide, sometimes in different colors, and they contain a resume of the important articles of news in the paper. Yet so far from the circulation of the English papers being less than the American, they are as two to one. The custom adopted by the different newspapers of having hand-printed bills on their offices is primitive, and should give way to the printed placard, which would cost little and increase the circulation of all the papers.

Mr. E. H. Ludlow, who seems to retain his vigor and strength, has not taken a vacation for the past eight years. When asked about it he said, with a smile, that he might take an occasional trip to Coney Island, but he felt quite content to remain at his work and reside at his home in the city during the summer. Mr. Ludlow was very fond of the water in his young days, and enjoyed nothing more than a swim. He has taken a cold salt water bath every day for years past, and to this he attributes in a great measure his health and longevity. Most men at his age would eschew the routine of office work for a well-enjoyed relaxation, but Mr. Ludlow is an indomitable worker, and will no doubt die in harness.

Presidential Prospects.

William S. Andrews, ex-comedian, ex-Assemblyman, iron manufacturer, philosopher, humorist and politician, was, it is well known, the chief of Samuel J. Tilden's famous literary bureau in the presidential campaign of 1876. He was met by the writer recently, who asked him if he was interested in the election of Grover Cleveland.

"Yes," replied Mr. Andrews, "I expect to have charge of the Democratic literature of the campaign. I have spent money in getting up the proper documents and hope soon to receive the official recognition of ex-Senator Barnum, chairman of the National Committee."

"What is the work you do?" questioned the writer.

"Well," was the reply, "we prepare text books for the benefit of editors and orators. They are given the data and documents which supply the Democratic ammunition during the canvass. All the facts and figures that discredit the Republican platform and party are elaborately set forth, as well as those which favor the Democratic party and its candidate. In other words, the Democratic press and orators are given all the material they require for their writings and speeches."

"You think, then," said the writer, "that Mr. Cleveland will be elected?"

"I certainly do," was the reply, "and I should not be surprised if the affair was a stampede from the Republican ranks before the close of the canvass."

"But," urged the writer, "suppose the facts, or the alleged facts, which discredit the private life of Mr. Cleveland were given to the public in so convincing a manner as to be entirely credible, do you think that heads of families would deliberately vote such a person into the White House?"

"I do not believe that any statement about Mr. Cleveland's private life will have any effect upon voters. The charges against Mr. Blaine affecting his public morality have been before the country for years. They form a part of the political literature of the country. Had these come to light after Mr. Blaine was nominated they would have had no effect, and so with any charge now brought against Governor Cleveland; even if it were true, it would not be believed. The majority of voters are swayed far more by prejudice and feeling than by facts, figures or arguments. The great mass of the community have an impression that Cleveland is personally honest and that Blaine is politically dishonest, and no arguments that can now be urged will change the views of the voters as to the candidates."

The writer subsequently met several real estate men, who thought very well of Governor Cleveland as a reformer, and said he would doubtless make an excellent President, but another gentleman, largely interested in real estate, was decidedly opposed to him. He said in substance: "I don't like Blaine, but I won't vote for Cleveland, although a Democrat. I regard the latter as a man with narrow views and a technical, captious temper. He vetoed the Arcade bill, having no conception of that slendid improvement. He vetoed the appropriation for repaving Fifth avenue, the condition of which is a disgrace to the city. His veto of the bill to perfect the work of the State Geological Survey was unworthy of a person sitting in the seat of the great Governor Clinton. Cleveland, had he lived in that day, would have fought the construction of the Erie Canal on legal as well as economical grounds. He has the temper of a small office lawyer. Look at his veto of the new building law. For ten years we have been trying to get a suitable enactment. At last one was passed which was satisfactory to all save the "snide" builders. The Real Estate Exchange, the iron men, all the reputable builders and architects and every honest and conservative interest in the trade favored that measure. It was so popular and unobjectionable that it was thought unnecessary to urge its claims strongly upon the Governor, but he vetoed it on the most technical and trumpery grounds. He said, for instance, that the word "act" was used, when it should have been "title," and so there will be several thousand imperfect houses erected in New York during the next year because of a few verbal inaccuracies in the wording of a needed enactment. One of his vetoes, however, I approve of, although it is one for which he is criticised most severely. I mean the five-cent fare bill. The ground he took was impregnable, and so clearly right that the Legislature could not pass the bill over his veto, nor was it even mentioned during the last session. But, altogether, I have the impression that Cleveland is too small and narrow a man for so great a place. At the same time I am too good a Democrat to vote for 'Jim' Blaine."

The Future of the Coal Market.

Mr. Austin Gallagher last fall, in an interview published in The Record and Guide, confidently predicted that the coal stocks were certain to depreciate in value because of the stoppage of manufactures, the overproduction of anthracite, and the competition with bituminous coal roads. His anticipations have been fully realized. The same gentleman now takes a different view of the situation.

"I think," said he to the writer, "that all the coal stocks are a purchase, with the exception, possibly, of Reading, and the price of that depends upon the Vanderbilt influence. But I am now satisfied that Lackawanna, Delaware & Hudson, Jersey Central, Erie, and all the distinctive coal properties are going to see better times. True, less iron is consumed than formerly, and many foundries and factories have closed up, but the extraordinary fact remains that during 1883 2,600,000 tons more coal was mined and consumed than in any previous year. In the first six months of the current year the check to production was only 600,000 tons, and for the whole year I look to as large an output as that of last year. This shows that despite the check to manufacturing there has been a large addition to the consumers of hard coal. Bituminous coal has also entered more largely into consumption. There is not the slightest danger of disruption in the coal pool. It would be an act of criminal madness for any one company to cut prices and enter into competition with the others. While the coal syndicate remains unbroken and consumption rapidly increases, there can be no doubt at all of the increasing value of the coal stocks. I am just now interested in a new company which will shorten the distance between Pittsburg and New York about seventy-five miles. It will connect with the Lehigh Valley road, and will expedite the bringing of anthracite coal West and the carriage of bituminous coal East. Set me down as a bull on the coal stocks."

Inspector of Buildings W. P. Esterbrook has been spending a well-deserved recreation during the past three weeks at Fire Island. During his absence, however, things do not seem to have run as smoothly as usual at the Building Department. There is a good deal of complaint on the part of owners and architects that they cannot get their plans approved, and the smallest alterations have to wait for three weeks, owing to the chief of the bureau being absent. In one or two instances, it is said, the owners after waiting a reasonable time commenced work without their plans being approved, having done so on the advice of their lawyers. Mr. Esterbrook has the plans forwarded to him to his summer retreat, and a delay naturally occurs. But how comes it that he did not appoint a deputy to approve the plans in his absence? Is it to be presumed that if a future Inspector of Buildings takes a trip to Europe that the plans are to follow him to that Continent, and that building in New York shall in the interval remain at a standstill? Owners are naturally incensed at the delay caused by the present condition of affairs at the Building Department. While we do not begrudge Mr. Esterbrook the rest he has so well earned, it is quite clear that he should have appointed a deputy during his stay in the country.

The rise in the price of rags, due to the prohibition of rag importations from Southern Europe, may prove a serious matter for the two and one-cent papers. Our largest supplies come from Southern Europe, and this has necessarily been cut off by our own government, to preserve the country from the cholera infection. Our one and two-cent journalism is based upon the theory of cheap paper for years to come. It is true that straw, wood and other substances are now used in the manufacture of the cheaper material, but the rag supply is after all the main dependence for print paper. Who knows, perhaps the Herald may be forced to become a three-cent daily and the newsdealers win after all.

The capitalists interested say that the injunction placed upon the Forty-second street horse-car road cannot hold, as the law has been strictly followed down to the most technical requirements. Three-quarters of a mile has been already constructed, and the cars will be running from river to river by the close of the year if no unusual impediments are thrown in the way. The opening of this line will be of great benefit to the central zone of the city.

The electric railway at Brighton, in England, is a success. It runs along the shore every ten minutes, picking up passengers as it goes, and can be stopped, when hailed, as easily as an omnibus. Its motion is sliding and pleasant. Its capacity is apparently unlimited. It is to be extended to the western end of the Brighton beach, and is then expected to yield a very handsome revenue to its promoters.

Complaint has reached us concerning the backward state of the work on the new Real Estate Exchange, which it is stated has shown no signs of activity for several weeks past. It appears that the delay is owing to the six iron girders required in the construction not having been completed by the Union Bridge Iron Company, so causing a stoppage of work on the building. One of these girders weighs twenty tons, and was delivered at the building on Thursday. It is 45 feet long, 5 feet high and costs $5,250. The Exchange was also delayed owing to the difficulty experienced at the Building Department. The plans were filed on June 2, but were not approved till nearly a month later. There was a delay of three weeks, also, owing to the contractors having been selected later than anticipated, and work was not commenced on May 1 as should have been the case. The remaining girders are expected to be on the spot at once, and the building will be pushed forward with all rapidity. The contracts call for a completion on September 1, though it is not expected the Exchange will be opened before November. No stoppage has been caused by the bricklayers' strike, as has been surmised in some quarters, as the builders, Messrs. Darragh & Co., will engage a large staff of men to go on with the work directly the girders are in position.

Meeting of Mason Builders.

A meeting of the master bricklayers and masons took place on Thursday evening at the Hotel Brunswick, Fifth avenue and Twenty-sixth street, John J. Tucker in the chair. There was a large and representative meeting, and among those present were C. T. Wills, secretary, Marc Eidlitz, Richard Deeves, Peter Tostevin, Geo. W. Lithgow, D. & E. Herbert, W. Cowen, A. C. Walbridge, W. C. Hanna, Sam. Lowden, J. W. Hogencamp, Robinson & Wallace, D. C. Weeks, J. Spears, C. H. & F. C. Tucker, J. B. Smith, W. A. & F. E. Conover, H. M. Raynolds, E. D. Connelly, Christian Eberspacher, Peter T. O'Brien, Ben. Blackledge, Alex. Brown, Jr., John P. Schweikert, R. L. Darragh, Cornelius Callahan, W. & F. E. Bloodgood, N. Armstrong, Isaac A. Hopper, J. & L. Weber, Peter Schaeffler and Jos. Schafflin.

The following resolutions were adopted:

"Whereas, Millions of dollars of work is laying idle on account of the unjust demand of our men, in their interest and the future building interest of this city, Be it resolved—That we open an office at 1300 Broadway, where, on application, masons can obtain work at $4.00 and laborers $2.50 per day, ten hours to constitute a day's work, excepting Saturday, when eight hours shall constitute a day's work.

"And be it resolved—That this shall be the standard hours and wages until January 1, 1885, when we shall meet a committee of our employes and fix the rate of wages and hours for the ensuing year.

"And be it resolved—That the members of this association in the future give preference to men seeking employment through our office, at No. 1300 Broadway."

The secretary, Mr. Chas. T. Wills, informed one of our representatives that the number of masons unemployed, who gave up work under the members of the association when the strike commenced, was 1,080, and the number of laborers 1,657, altogether 2,737 men. A number of masters who are non-members have sent in their adhesion to the principles of the association, and it is thus estimated that the number of men unemployed at present is 3,700.

The Board of Estimate and Apportionment on Friday resolved to permit the Board of Fire Commissioners to use $100,000, appropriated in the final estimates of 1884 for the erection of an engine house in East Forty-seventh street, for the construction, instead, of a building in East Sixty-seventh street to be used as headquarters for the Duplicate Fire Alarm Signal system, the life saving corps and the school of instruction, and for an engine and hook and ladder house as well.

Real Estate Department.

There is not much to be said about the local real estate market. Our Gossip department tells its own story, and the few auction sales during the week have been without special significance.

The reports from the watering places are not cheerful. Up to date it is doubtful if any of the summer hotels have paid expenses. July has been cool and rainy, and the class who usually spend their money freely are economizing this season, and do not care to leave town until forced to. In August the hotels will do better, but watering place, and especially seaside property, Long Branch perhaps excepted, is not in very active demand, and those who wish to purchase can get better terms than they could last year or the year before.

The Conveyances for the past month compared with July of last year show a much larger business both in numbers and the amount involved. The totals for the seven months of the past two years show a gratifying increase this year.

The new building plans for the month of July make a poor showing as compared with the same month last year, but this is due to the excessive filing of plans during May and June to avoid the strict provisions of the new building law, which it was supposed Governor Cleveland would certainly sign. Then the anticipated strike of the workmen employed on buildings put a stop to many new enterprizes. But the figures for the whole seven months make, as will be seen, a very good showing as compared with the two previous years:

All About the Bricklayers' Strike.

A great deal has been said in the daily papers about the bricklayers' and laborers' strike for a reduction of the working hours; and, in order to bring the matter properly before the public at large and the conservative members of the Bricklayers' and Laborers' Unions in particular, we, the Mason Builders' Association, make the following statement:

The Mason Builders' Association was organized early last spring. Its objects and purposes are plainly stated in the preamble of their constitution, as follows:

1st—To further the interests of mason builders, and, in conjunction with other organizations now existing (or to be formed), promote the interests of the building trade in general.

2d—To adopt such measures for the better protection of employers and employes as shall lead to the promotion of harmony between all parties engaged with us in business; to arbitrate all differences and so avoid the great evil of strikes, which unsettle our business and drive capital into other channels of investment.

3d—To demonstrate to our employes that we believe that our mechanics and laborers should receive fair and good wages for a day's work. We don't object to unions who, by wise legislation, further the interests of their members, at the same time we reserve to ourselves the right to oppose laws made by the unions which are detrimental to the best interests of our trade.

On Monday evening, June 23, a delegation representing eight Bricklayers' Unions of the city of New York waited upon the executive committee of the Mason Builders' Association, stating that the unions had concluded to ask a reduction of the working hours, to go into effect without any corresponding reduction of the wages, which were $4 per day, or 40 cents per hour, either on the first or third Monday in the month of July. At a subsequent meeting, June 30, the executive committee stated to the delegates that the members of the Mason Builders' Association do not consider it wise at present to reduce the working hours; that an increase of the cost of buildings might influence capitalists against improvement in real estate, and that the loss to some of our members would be quite large. Different members of the executive committee suggested the propriety of making such a change later on, when the days get shorter, and in a future conference, immediately after New Year, determine whether it is wise to adopt or continue the nine hours constituting a day's work. The delegates, after discussing these and other matters for nearly two hours, left, and nothing was heard from them until we read in the newspapers that a strike was ordered for the third Monday in July. The bricklayers stopped work July 16, and our laborers, who receive $2.50 per day, followed suit.

We claim, as we stated before:

First—That it is against the best interests of our employes to initiate a reduction of the working hours at the present time.

Second—That it is unfair toward our members who have made contracts based upon the ten-hour system—a loss of 10 per cent. on their labor bills, which in many cases will reach $50 and $100 per day for the balance of the year.

Third—We claim that we control the larger part of the heaviest jobs in this city, and Fourth—Several prominent firms not members of this association have joined us in opposing the nine-hour system.

We desire to avoid strikes, which are injurious to all parties concerned, and we call upon the officers and the leaders of the masons to end this unjustifiable strike.

We ask the conservative members of the unions to assert their opinion and their rights and make themselves heard in favor of a movement to return to the work they were compelled to leave against their own convictions and desire. We promise them and all who desire to return to their work, that we will continue to pay the same wages as heretofore to the end of the year, when, from necessity, the working hours seldom exceed 9 or 8½ hours per day.

Let all those who are in accord with our views and desire to work apply at the office of the association, 1300 Broadway.

JOHN J. TUCKER, President.
CHAS. T. WILLS, Secretary.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

BRICKS.—On the market for Common Hards the changes are not important, but in a general way there appears to be a sort of weak end to the position, and whenever variation in price is shown the buyer has the advantage. Arrivals have continued pretty full and very well assorted, and while there seemed to be a disinclination to admit that any serious accumulation took place, receivers have at times found it a difficult matter to secure a prompt outlet for their cargoes. The demand has undoubtedly been reduced by the bricklayers' strike, and as a great many of the master builders continue firm in their resistance, it is likely the diminished wants will be felt upon the market for some time to come. A partial balance has been found of late in a somewhat increased line of purchases for piling away in sheds, but dealers do not appear over anxious in this movement, and its continuation is a matter of some doubt. In fact the entire demand lacks stimulating and encouraging features, and it evidently requires a great deal of courage to maintain even a faint showing of steadiness. The average run of quotations appears to be at about $5.00@5.25 for Jerseys, $5.25@5.50 for "Up Rivers," and $5.75@6.25 for Haverstraws, but we have reports of ordinary at lower rates and some extra stock at a higher range, as buyers handling special goods have to pay the usual premium. In regard to prospective supplies there is some little uncertainty. It is claimed that the 20 per cent. reduction in the make is agreed to by nearly or quite all manufacturers, but without any fixed date for a general stoppage. Each member of the association is expected to continue operations until the proper proportion of brick has been made and then quit, be the time sooner or later. Even if this is strictly adhered to it will make a very irregular falling off in the product and the result cannot as yet be foreseen, though the market does not appear to "scare" much. We hear few complaints over quality, but, on the contrary, expressions of praise, and that tends to keep values on a close range. Pale Brick show about the old features and the old price, with supply enough available for all calls. Fronts generally steady and meeting with an average demand.

GLASS.—The situation shows few if any positively new features. Demand is keeping quite up to the volume expected, and cannot in all cases be promptly met with, American stock in particular quite scarce. Prices, as a natural sequence, are readily and fully supported, and the position may be called quite firm.

HARDWARE.—Demand as a rule still slow and more or less uncertain, as buyers are cautious as to both amount and assortment handled. On the whole, however, business is thought to show an increasing tendency, and some of the trade look for a fairly active movement before the month has passed out. It is quite certain that at many points in the interior the accumulation is limited, and any movement to replenish will at once be felt upon dealers' stocks. Locally the consumption of builders' hardware must eventually prove full, but may be delayed somewhat through the influence of the strikes.

LATH.—The market continues to vary somewhat but not to any serious extent, and at the presen-writing the general tone is fairly steady. Sales have been made this week from first hands at $2.10@2.15@2.20 per M., according to quality, quantity, delivery, etc., but the outside price is now a little extreme, and the intermediate figure would show a fair operating basis for the best stock under ordinary terms and influences. In a general way the condition of the market appears to be healthy and cheerful. Buyers are not so anxious to get stock as to give matters a positively buoyant tone, but they have taken a pretty good offering out of the way of late, and would afford room for more if it did not come in too rapidly. Of the latter result receivers say there is no danger.

LIME.—A quiet, firm market is reported. Buyers could be found for a fair quantity of stock, but the offering is reduced through the action of manufacturers, and business is thus kept well in hand and prices maintained at full former rates.

LUMBER.—In more or less irregular form the volumn of business will probably reach as full an aggregate as last week. That, however, is rather a negative sort of consolation to operators and grumbling and complaint are the most common form of salutation greeting seekers after information. There can always be found enough optimists among all trades to look forward to the future in more or less hopeful mood and of course it is well that it should be so, with the lumber market showing no exception to the rule. Yet for the present it would require a remarkable sanguine temperament to construe the situation as positively promising and about the best that can be said is that there is no further loss of tone of a decided character. Considerable stock is selling as a matter of course, but it goes out in such an erratic sort of way that no advantage accrues to the general market. Buyers in fact simply feel now as they did months ago, that there is no impending danger of scarcity of either supply or assortment, and they act on the hand-to-mouth policy accordingly, leaving sellers all the way back to manufacturers to settle the problem of what is to be done with stocks that should be sold before cold weather sets in.

Eastern Spruce shows about the same amount of irregularity and where one operator may be found talking the market almost to pieces the next will probably assume almost a directly opposite side of the question. It is, however, all a matter of luck coupled with greater or less shrewdness to take advantage of opportunities presented. Buyers cannot be credited with making any open demonstrations of interest but a great many are always to be found willing to negotiate and the receiver who keeps his eyes and ears open can now and then locate a place for a desirable cargo. Even the most active as well as the careless seller, however, occasionally finds circumstances against him and must submit in accordance therewith, as shown on some of the recent sales under pressure to save demurrage, etc. It is said that even $11.00 was shaded but $11.50@14 00 is probably a fair range to give on randoms, with more asked for specials, and no sales reported.

White Pine is dull and said to be nominally unchanged, but evidently having a weak undertone. As suggested by a dealer "the trouble with White Pine is the full stocks in first and second hands and no one to purchase at the moment." That probably tells the whole story, and operators wait as patiently as possible for a more favorable change to develop. There is some hopeful signs on the export outlet, but foreign demand is likely to subside as suddenly as it develops and the shipping movement will have to continue a long while to act as a stimulus. We quote at $17.00@19.00 for West India shipping boards; $25@28 for South American do.; $14@15 for box boards, and $16 00@17.50 for extra do.

Yellow Pine goes out from yard in moderate quantities only and still meets with very uncertain sale in a wholesale way, especially for random cargo. There is some figuring on specials, and every bill presented for estimate is at once paraded as an increase of demand, of course with good reason, but it will require a great many more of them to bring the market into a state of cheerful and promising animation. A cutting down of production is again being "talked" of. We quote as follows: Randoms, $18@21.00 per M; Specials, $20@22.00 do.; Green Flooring Boards, $22@23; Dry do., do., $23@24; Siding, $22@23 do.; Cargoes f. o. b. at Atlantic ports, $14@15.00 for rough. and $10@21 for dressed Cargoes f. o. b. at Gulf ports, $13@14 for rough, and $18@20 for dressed.

Hardwoods can be sold if fine and attractive. If they are not of that character the stock had better be kept at primary points by manufacturers, as faulty offerings here are sure to be sacrificed at very low figures. We quote at wholesale rates by car load as follows: Walnut, $65@100 per M.; ash, $33@40 do; oak, $30@55 do.; maple, $20@32.50 do; chestnut, $25@30 do.; cherry, $40@75 do.; whitewood, $27@35 do., do.; elm, $22@25; hickory, $45@52.50 do.

Shingles meeting with about former demand and showing no change in the general features or cost. Some claims of scarcity appear to be refuted by the fact that buyers obtain about what they want without difficulty. We quote Cypress at $8.0 @8.50 per M. for 5x20 and $11.00@12.00 do. for 6x20 regularly assorted shipping. Pine shipping stock $2.00@2.50 for 18 inch, and Eastern saw grades at $2.00@2.50 for 16 inch, as to quality and to quantity. Eastern shaved cedar $4.00 @4.50 per M. Machine dressed cedar shingles quoted as follows: for 30 inch, $15.00@20.00 for A, and $23@28.50 for No. 1; for 24 inch, $13.00@15 for A and $18.50@20.50 for No. 1; for 20 inch, $8@9.50 for A and $11.00@12.50 for No. 1.

The exports of lumber from the port of New York during the month of July last, and since January 1, were as follows:

GENERAL LUMBER NOTES.

STATE.

ALBANY MARKET.

The Argus reports for week ending July 29 as follows:

While there has been no marked activity in the trade and no large number of buyers here, the shipments have been continuous during the week, loading several barges carrying from 400,000 to 600,000 feet each, and many boats and vessels with cargoes of rom 70,000 to 200,000 feet. Pine, as usual, has been most wanted. Prices have been steady within the ranges in the list, which cover both the wider and narrower, the well or poorly sawed, and the softer or harder qualities of the wood. Spruce and hemlock are coming in freely and are in good supply and demand. Hardwoods, although there is not quite so large a quantity as usual on the yards, at this season of the year, are in fair stock and all kinds can be readily obtained, seasoned and fit for use. Shingles go off quietly at steady prices. Lath are in good supply and demand.

THE WEST.

SAGINAW VALLEY.

LUMBERMAN'S GAZETTE, BAY CITY, MICH.

The lumber market on the Saginaw River seems to have sympathized with the general condition of trade throughout the country, and for the past week has been peculiarly dull. Several eastern dealers are in the city and have been for some time, but their purchases, if any have been made, have not come to the surface. It is safe to assert that very little lumber has changed hands during the period mentioned. The Gazette inclines to the opinion that the present would be a very opportune time to buy. One thing particularly which inclines us to this opinion is, that when sales do come to the surface, and manufacturers are inquired of as to prices, they usually become "as dumb as an oyster." This bears the appearance of concessions granted which they would rather not be made public.

Since the last issue of the Gazette sales have been reported on the river as follows: Mosher & Fisher, West Bay City, 500,000 feet of 5x4 10-inch stocks at $8, $16 and $35; Hill & Sons, 2,000,000 feet to eastern parties, prices not given; 2,000,000 feet of box lumber, also to go east, prices not given; 1,000,000 feet of good stock at $9, $18 and $38; 1,000,000 feet of Rifle River stock at $8, $16 and $36; 300,000 feet at prices not named; 500,000 feet at $8, $16 and $36; 4,000,000 feet at $9, $18 and $38; 150,000 feet of coarse stock at $8; 550,000 feet in two lots at prices not learned.

The Chicago Northwestern Lumberman as follows:

Since July came in the number of arrivals at this port have been less each week than during the weeks of June. Offerings at the market have been less in number than during a corresponding time last year. The condition of the market just now is not such as to encourage shipment from the mills as freely as during June. Lumber has dropped so low that the manufacturers dread a further decline, and prefer to hold rather than to risk overloading the market. This disposition on the part of the shippers does not just now bother the yard merchants much, for they would not buy as freely as they did in June if there was any amount offering. There is apathy in the business all around If the present condition should continue, while the mills were going on piling up lumber, it is difficult to see how a further decline of a quarter could be avoided. Indeed, some of the jobbers are waiting for just this result. Since it is difficult to get bank loans extended, and it is hard to discount paper, the merchants feel that they do not care to pile up lumber in advance of actual requirement, and the latter is not very pressing at present. It looks now as if the market would have to drag for at least a month to come.

Piece stuff and No. 2 inch lumber are now the principal features of the market. Prices do not greatly differ from last week's quotations It is asserted by the yard men that green short piece stuff cannot be bought for less than $8.50 a thousand, and that a great deal is selling for $8.75. The yard merchants are generally frowning on the assumption that there is any considerable quantity selling for $8.25, because they think that the publication of such figures hurts their trade in the country, inducing customers to clamor for lower prices, and often to buy on the market instead of in the yards. But if a market report is good for anything to anybody it must tell the truth as nearly as possible. The actual selling value, devoid of the mystic "p. t.," is nearer an average of $8.25 for ordinary green short lengths than anything else. Cargoes, no doubt, sell for $8.50, and even $8.75, but more sell for less than for more than that. Coarse stuff, sawed from shingle logs, sells as low as $8, but as only half a dozen cargoes of that kind come in a week, we will not quote it at all no more than we do shingles below the standard class. Hence, our quotations on dimension remain as they were last week.

The larger part of No. 2 inch lumber arriving appears to be selling at $10 to $11. We hear of one cargo that sold for $10.50, that would run 30 per cent. better than ordinary common; another sold for $10 75 a thousand, the lumber going into cars for the country. Flat common—that is, common with nothing better in it—is priced at $9.50 to $10 in a casual way, but cargoes that have considerable cull lumber in them get down to $9, and as a matter of fact a good deal of lumber is sold at a figure no better than that. Still a majority of coarse inch stuff hovers around $10 a thousand. There is a great difference in cargoes that are classed as No. 2 inch, and all that can be done is to give a range. It is sufficient to say that the range is $1 less than it was in June.

LUMBERMAN AND MANUFACTURER, MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

As the prospect for an abundant harvest grows brighter all over the Northwest and the stringency in the money market gets less, confidence in values increase and the nervousness visible everywhere a month ago has about disappeared from the markets. The mid-summer dullness is upon us and collections continue slow. The mills are not being pushed as they were a month ago. The discussion of the propriety of shutting down has at least convinced everybody that there is no necessity for hurrying the mills. The rivers are getting so low as seriously to interfere with the handling of logs and lumber rafts even on the lower Mississippi.

At St. Louis there is a falling off in shipping demand, the daily output being about three-quarters of a million feet. Prices remain exceptionally firm and grow more so since the harvests of that belt are saved in good condition and prove excellent. Receipts are heavy from the North. Very few rafts of lumber are being sold. They are being peddled out by single strings, and no log sales are reported. The mill men all along line are discussing the shutting-down project, and generally seem to favor it as will be seen by the resolutions of the Mississippi Logging Company, but it is doubtful if anything comes of it. The railroad freight rate muddle continues to excite universal indignation in the Northwest, especially among the lumbermen along the Wisconsin railroads, but there are no signs of a change in rates to the Southwest. It would seem apparent that the Chicago bosses of the Omaha and Wilwaukee lines wilfully sacrificed the traffic of their Wisconsin and Minnesota divisions in favor of Chicago, and have no intent of letting up,

ENGLAND.

The London Timber Trade's Journal reports:

LIVERPOOL.

The arrivals of timber cargoes continue to be upon a moderate scale only and as there is not now any undue pressure exercised upon the market, the range of prices do not vary much, if anything, from those which have ruled during the past six weeks. Spruce deals are very steady, the quantities already put into store having lightened the market for the present, and with no inducement to charter further quantities of tonnage so long as the prices rule so low, we may fairly hope to see an advance in the prices of these goods before long, especially as the time for the increased rate of autumn insurance is not far distant. At the same time this can only, in a great measure, be brought about by shippers restricting their operations as much as possible.

In Quebec goods there seems a fair amount of business doing in a quiet unobtrusive manner, the various railway wharves showing that orders for yellow pine timber, both waney and square, are being filled up.

American oak wagon scantling continues to come forward in quantities far too large for the wants of the market, and as the prices now obtainable are far below cost of production the stocks on hand are accumulating to an extent much too great, and shippers will therefore suffer in the end for forwarding quantities far beyond the requirements of the trade, and from the loss incurred by deterioration of the goods.

NAILS.—Demand has been unevenly divided, some of the trade doing a comparatively full business and others only a moderate amount. It is, however, a sort of catch trade at the best just now, and matters do not settle down into good solid form for any outlet. Supplies are offered in ample quantity and good assortment, with rates kept easy, and there is yet no evidences that manufacturers in the different sections can so harmonize their actions as to infuse a generally firm tone. We quote at $2.30@2.45 per keg for 10d. to 60d., according to quantity.

PAINTS, OILS, ETC.—Demand does not increase rapidly but is gaining to some extent, and the selling interest feels corresponding encouragement. Supplies on hand are full enough to need some reduction, but there is no serious surplus and everything appears to be well under control to admit of steady rates all around. Linseed Oil meets with fair general inquiry, and is steady at 56@57 for domestic and 59@60 for foreign. Spirits Turpentine quiet and steady at 32½@34c. per gallon.

PITCH AND TAR.—The demand has been moderate, the offering fair and values without noticeable change. We quote: Pitch, $2.25@2.30 per bbl.; Tar, $2.50@2.00, according to quantity, quality and delivery.

J. T. LINDSEY, Business Manager.

AUGUST 9, 1884.

The stock market is suffering from a very natural reaction. The advancing pace was too rapid. Prices may fall off five or six points, but operators should bear in mind that the market in the long run is a bull one and will continue such unless there is an accident to the corn crop. This promises now to be very large. The late advance was based upon the splendid wheat crop. The next upward movement will discount the effect of a corn crop of two thousand million bushels. When gold begins to come from Europe look out for another ten per cent. rise in stocks. But of course these calculations may be upset by a partial failure of the corn harvest.

Novelists such as Dickens, Wilkie Collins and Gaboriau, have much to answer for in making a romantic hero—a modern knight errant out of the police detective. It is the experience of all large cities that the officers set apart to deal directly with the criminal classes alway end by becoming partners of the latter. There is a world of meaning in the proverb about "setting a thief to catch a thief." The revelations made about our detective force and their relations with the famous fence Mrs. Mandelbaum, is what might have been expected. It is quite safe to say that every detective department that has flourished in New York has ended by its alliances with the offenders against the law. The class of faculties called into play in hunting thieves are precisely those that make thieves successful in their calling. Of course, detectives are necessary; but the force should be constantly changed, and should always be regarded with suspicion. Our policemen, as a body, are no discredit to the city, but these recent revelations and the evidence given before the Roosevelt Committee settled the question that the personnel of the police headquarters should be radically changed. The Police Commissioners, Inspector Byrnes, and fully one-half the captains should be retired from public service. With one responsible head to the whole department our police might become a model to that of other capitals.

The outside exchanges are coming to grief. Years ago we warned investors against purchasing seats in the Electrical and Miscellaneous Exchage, the Real Estate and Traders' Exchange and similar organizations. The public are acquainted with what has happened to the Miscellaneous Exchange, certificates of which can be bought for $10 each. The Real Estate and Traders' Exchange, which we exposed and antagonized from the start, has changed its name to "The Open Board of Trade." Seats in this organization, which once commanded $250, can also be purchased for $10. The Manhattan Hay and Produce Exchange and the Distillers' Wine and Spirit Exchange have, it seems, done some business but not enough to warrant their organization. The speculative era is over and two or more of the other minor exchanges will be forced to pass out of existence. The great bulk of the exchanges, both old and new, have their uses and fill a public want, but speculation has had a set back and is not likely to recover for several years to come. Hence seats in such organizations, even those that are legitimate, will not be as desirable from a money point of view as formerly.

The Herald has the following:

To three Milwaukee lawyers who put in bills amounting to $25,000 for services in settling an estate worth $32,000, Judge Thomas Drummond said: "Gentlemen, you consider yourself good lawyers. How much more are your services worth to your clients than mine to the people? You have charged $25,000 for sixty days' service. Could you not be content, each of you, to take my pro rata for the same time? These charges are infamous. They are such as men who are scoundrels and thieves at heart would make. This charge of $15,000 is cut down to $1,500, those of $5,000 each to $500. Repeat such a piece of rapine in this court and I will disbar every one of you."

This judge ought to have a statue, and be held in the highest estimation, as he is the first ever known to have interfered with the legal harpies who devour estates. The usual method is to refer such bills to an arbitrator, who is always a lawyer. Other lawyers give testimony to show the reasonableness of the outrageous bill, and they find a multitude of precedents in the practice of all the courts. Some day there will be a rising against the depredations of our courts, and then men like Judge Drummond will be held in grateful remembrance.

The Twenty-five Foot House.

The commonest problem in the domestic architecture of New York is a twenty-five or a twenty foot street front, four stories or more in height. The time was, and not very long ago, when it was not regarded as an architectural problem at all. Nobody thought of employing an educated architect to design him a twenty-five foot house in the city. The draughtsmen of the speculative builders simply repeated the interior arrangement and the ghastly monotony of the existing brown stone front. Occasionally the owner had an idea which an architect might have turned to account, but, as he did not go to an architect, it is pathetic to see, in occasional exceptions to the brown stone front during the brown stone period, what form his idea took in the hands to which he intrusted it.

Now that the twenty-five foot front has come to be recognized as a problem, it has come to be recognized, also, as a peculiarly intractable problem. The dimensions are not great enough to allow of lateral sub-division. The stories are too nearly equal in height and in importance, and too numerous, to supply a basis for design in their harmonious relation, if an attempt be made to individualize each. The front is merely a screen, since a roof even of considerable pitch is invisible from across an ordinary city street, and cannot therefore be reckoned upon as an effective part of the design. A skilful architect must be tempted when he falls in with this problem to treat it so as to save himself trouble in sheer despair of doing anything with it. He knows that to multiply features with these dimensions must produce an effect of huddling that is fatal to repose, and without features there can be no architecture. A real success in a twenty-five foot front house is much more of an architectural achievement than a layman is apt to imagine. Nevertheless, Mr. Hunt, Mr. Haight, Mr. Bruce Price and Messrs. McKim, Mead & White, not to mention other architects, have achieved an architectural success even with these limited dimensions and under these hard conditions.

Generally success has been obtained by converting the whole front into one feature, or by emphasizing one feature and subordinating the rest to it, and there is always a trace of falsity in this forcing process. One of the most recent of the good twenty-five foot houses—at least it is new to us—is No. 21 East Thirty-third street, and it is also one of the very best. Without knowing, we suppose it to be the work of Messrs. McKim, Mead & White, from its resemblances in treatment to the Tiffany mansion and to the Columbia, at Fifth avenue and Forty-second street.

This is noteworthy as one of the simplest, perhaps the very simplest, of the good twenty-five foot houses. It consists of a red sandstone basement and a superstructure of three stories in yellow brick and reddish brown terra cotta. The openings are merely square holes, nearly or quite unmoulded in the basement and the upper story, and enclosed, in the second and third stories, in a moulded and enriched sash-frame of terra cotta. The openings in these stories are triple windows with transoms at the centre of the front, leaving an ample pier on each side, and the floor line between the two stories is marked by a heavy and rich panel in terra cotta. The two windows of the upper story are aligned over the outer two of the triple openings below, and the blank wall on each side and between them carries a decorative pattern slightly raised in brickwork. The basement is a flat stone wall relieved only by shallow panellings and crowned with a moulded cornice. A light string course traverses the front above the third story, and a heavier one marks the sill course of the fourth. A rich and delicate cornice of terra cotta crowns the front.

The basement might advantageously have been somewhat less bare, and the relief of its bareness by meaningless panelling is an ineffectual expedient. The upper story might certainly have been enriched to its advantage. Mural decoration is not a satisfactory substitute for elegance of form and enrichment by modelling. But these are very trifling drawbacks. The fact remains that an absolutely flat house front, pierced only with square holes, has been made a very attractive piece of architecture by skill in design and fortunate choice of material. It is a pity that a darker stone, equally harmonious with the terra cotta, could not have been found for the basement, which is now lighter than the emphatic parts of the structure above; but this was probably unavoidable. The contrast of color above is really charming. The brick is a rich and varied yellow, the terra cotta a rich and strong but not glaring red. The predominant feature which is needed to give unity to the front is attained by the grouping of the second and third stories, so that the front fulfils the elementary Aristotelian condition, which so many designers overlook, of having a beginning, a middle and an end, the middle being here the principal division. The concentration of openings at the centre and the ample flanks of plain wall secure repose and give additional value to the ornament. This is for the most part admirable, the modillioned cornice, though elegant, having a more commonplace and conventional character than the rest. The ornament at the outer edge of the terra cotta sash-frame is especially effective, and the detail everywhere has been well studied, in wood and metal as well as in baked clay, as witness the oaken front door, the clever iron work of the area gate and the trellis of wire cable that protects the area window. Even the side walls, of which one is fully visible, though scarcely counting as part of the architecture, have been designed and enhance the impression of an artistic finish in which nothing has been overlooked. Altogether it is a straightforward and manly piece of work, and though its simplicity is sometimes bold it is never affected. To adopt the French distinction it is everywhere simplicite and nowhere simplesse.

We have omitted to mention how very much the building owes to the justness of its color treatment, the strong color everywhere going with the structural emphasis. Anybody who has any doubt upon this point should walk from it down to Twenty-eighth street and look at the Delta Psi lodge on the north side of that thoroughfare. This is composed of red and yellow brick, and is not without good points of design. But the color treatment is exactly and exquisitely wrong, the two colors being transposed, so that it is the negative of a much better building than itself.

The Presidential Candidates.

The canvass under way for President of the nation presents some very peculiar features, which may be discussed without any partisan bias. Every business interest of the country is affected by a presidential election, and trade journals need offer no apology for giving expression to judgments which have nothing to do with the political issues between the two parties.

James G. Blaine is admittedly a man of great ability. He has had experience in public life, and if chosen could act intelligently upon any matter of national concern which came before him; but Mr. Blaine's opponents claim that he is not only a dangerous man as a politician, but that he is personally corrupt, and is without a business conscience. These charges are believed to be true by a most respectable section of the Republican party. Journals like the Evening Post, New York Times, the Boston Advertiser, the Springfield Republican and Harper's Weekly denounce the candidate of their party and support the Democratic nominee, so as to spare the nation the shame of having for its President so notorious a political jobber as Mr. Blaine. This view of the Republican candidate's character is also held by such eminent Republicans as George William Curtis, the presidents of Amherst and Harvard Colleges, who represent the leading members of the faculty in those institutions of learning, and doubtless thousands besides of respectable and intelligent, cultured Republicans. It must be admitted that these well-informed and estimable gentlemen must have the best reasons for the course they are taking in severing themselves from the party to which they have been so long attached.

Grover Cleveland was really forced upon the Democratic party by these Republican Independents. He was chosen over the heads of far abler and more experienced statesmen, because his public record so far as known proved him to be a reformer. He was not a slave to his party, and his recommendations and vetoes were alike, it is claimed, in the interest of the public good. But since his selection it seems that Mr. Curtis and his bolting Republican associates knew that Mr. Cleveland's private life was far from clean. Four respectable clergymen of the city of Buffalo testified as to certain episodes in Mr. Cleveland's life, which, if known, would set against him the head of every decent family, and make even careless citizens hesitate before putting such a man in the White House. Since the nomination the Evening Post and the leading Cleveland papers have admitted the essential facts charged against Mr. Cleveland. He had formed an irregular connection with a widow of intemperate habits; a child was born, whose parentage he acknowledged by caring for it. He sent it away to an orphan asylum. The intemperate mother stole it and she was punished by being sent to an insane asylum. The Cleveland Republican papers do not attempt to defend Mr. Cleveland, but make the astounding assertion that he is no worse than was George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Benjamin Franklin, Alexander Hamilton, Andrew Jackson, Daniel Webster, Henry Clay and scores of other public men, hitherto honored in our annals. Mr. Cleveland's apologists claim that this was the only case against him, while his opponents allege that it is one of many.

Another candidate is Benjamin F. Butler, one of the most unique and picturesque personages of the political history of the past thirty years. Butler is confessedly a man of great ability. He has a wonderful command of the English language, is full of resources and versed in all the acts by which public attention is attracted to his sayings and doings. His military career was a lamentable failure, and as for character he had none to speak of. He is consumed with an ambition to do startling things. With the private vices imputed to Cleveland and opportunity and the temptation, he would be the Aaron Burr of our generation. He enters the field as the candidate of the rag-tag and bob-tail of our political factions. He will be voted for by all the political cranks in the nation, but he will not carry a single State.

Then there are other candidates: ex-Senator Pomeroy, of Kansas, who was driven from public life for rank corruption, and ex-Governor St. John, also of Kansas, who represents the prohibitionists.

It is the curse of our political system that in every recurring presidential election one must throw away his vote or else cast a ballot for either the Republican or Democratic nominees. In the coming election the voter must make a selection between two extremely unfit candidates, one a man who the most intelligent members of his own party believe to be politically corrupt and the other who, it is admitted by his own supporters, has led an unclean private life. Surely our political system needs amending.

The Principal Industries of Three Cities.

The mechanical and manufacturing industries of the larger cities of the Union have increased with great rapidity during the past decade. Manufactures which were novel to the country but a few years since, and for the products of which we depended upon Great Britain, France and other countries, are now to be seen in nearly all our States, and give evidence of a potential prosperity which bids fair to surpass that of the older civilizations. No doubt we shall largely continue to be an agricultural people for many years to come, yet we have the natural advantages, the material, the brains, and the sinew wherewith to build up a manufacturing community compared with which other countries will sink into insignificance.

It may be interesting, therefore, to glance at the volume of business done by the three cities in the Union having the largest population. It will of course be noticed that, as might have been expected in a largely agricultural country, the most important industries are those which minister to the immediate wants and requirements of the community, such as raiment, food, furniture, music and reading. The volume of trade in our manufactures seems comparatively light when contrasted with some of the mechanical industries, yet in one or two cities they are the most important. In Pittsburg, for instance, the iron and steel industry employs nearly sixteen thousand people, who receive in wages over eight million dollars annually, the yearly production of those materials alone being valued at over thirty-five millions. Of course that city is the manufacturing centre of this country, and Chicago and New York here show to disadvantage. Indeed New York seems to be more noted for its production of liquors than for its manufactures. It is a curious coincidence that this city produces about as much, counted in dollars, of that universally-drunk beverage as it does of printing and publishing.

In the figures given below we have selected those industries in which the most capital is invested and which produces most in value. There are one or two exceptions, such as shipbuilding, the facts about which are given to show how relatively small is that important industry compared with what it might be were wise laws enacted to regulate the shipping of this country such as exist, for example, in Great Britain. The different industries appear in the order of their importance, though it will be seen that the number of persons employed, the wages paid and the profits vary. For instance, in the manufacture of tobacco and cigars over 14,000 people are engaged, at a remuneration of $6,000,000, while in printing and publishing less than 9,600 receive almost a similar sum. The following is the table:

	No. of establishments.	Capital.	Males above 16.	Females abv 15.	Children & youths.	Total paid in wages.	Materials.	Products.

Next in order to clothing comes the building industry, of which the only figures available are the number of structures and their cost. The amount of money expended in their erection last year was $44,304,638. Brooklyn is now so closely allied to New York that it may not be out of place here to mention that she has one industry worth noting, and of which she is the great centre—the manufacture of sugar and molasses. For this important production she has eleven establishments, with a capital of $10,946,000, giving employment to over two thousand men, and paying about $950,000 annually in wages. The material is valued at $56,423,868, and the productive valuation at $59,711,168, so that it will be seen our sister city has in her midst an industry which ranks among the first in the country.

Second in importance to New York comes Philadelphia, as will be seen from the following table :

Compared with New York, it will be seen that Philadelphia is nearly equal to the former in the product of its foundries and machine shops. In printing and publishing it is far behind, though it is still ahead of Chicago, while in its consumption of liquors it will be satisfactory to many to note that whereas New York comes near the head of the list, Philadelphia stands near the foot. It will be seen, also, that the articles of apparel which are now so cheap as compared with ten years ago, such as cotton goods, are very largely manufactured in the latter city, which may have been contributed to by the cheapness of the labor employed as well as by the shrinkage in the value of the material. Probably low rents are also a factor in the case, the homes of the working classes being much cheaper there than in New York.

Some will feel inclined to contest the priority of Philadelphia over Chicago, but the following table will show that this is not unmerited :

Chicago—	No. of establish-ments.	Capital. $	Males above 16. No.	Females abv 15. No.	Children & youths. No.	Total paid in wages. $	Materials. $	Products. $

It will thus be seen that while Philadelphia has twelve industries whose individual products amount to over $5,000,000, Chicago has but six, while New York itself has only ten, the aggregate totals of these products being $154,000,000, $134,000,000 and $186,000,000 respectively, showing a superiority of about $20,000,000 for Philadelphia over Chicago. The latter, were it not for the extraordinarily large sum involved in the packing industry, would show to even greater disadvantage. Chicago seems to be advancing in its iron and steel manufactures, though the centre for those materials seems to be in Pittsburg, which has thirty-nine establishments, with a capital of $2,519,000, giving employment to 14,559 men, 10 youths and 1,063 women, the total paid in wages being $8,072,110, the material being valued at $19,288,063 and the product $35,490,634, which serves to make this industry one of the foremost in the United States. Pittsburg is also becoming important as a producer of glass. In 1880 it had forty-six establishments at work on this material, with an invested capital of $5,268,000, giving employment to 4,185 men, 138 women and 1,473 youths, the wages paid in that year amounting to $2,501,431, the value of the material being $1,997,303, and of the products $5,231,971. It should be added that the statistics of iron and steel manufacture embrace blast furnaces, bloomaries, forges, rolling mills and steam works of all kinds.

There is every reason to believe, when the above figures are considered, that we are not far distant from the time when America will be able to compete with Europe in all the articles for which she was mainly dependent on the latter scarcely twenty years ago. Possibly a revision in the tariff on raw material may be necessary before that will be accomplished. Be that as it may, it is a matter of satisfaction to look upon the above figures, and to note the great strides which our country has made during the past generation.

Professor Isaac L. Rice has a thoughtful article in the Century for August urging a revision of our national constitution. He complains that our governmental machinery does not insure responsibility, and hence there is unnecessary friction, waste and inefficiency. There are two many checks and balances. A hopeful sign of the times, in his opinion, is the passage of the reform bills by the New York Legislature, which partially gives this municipality a responsible executive. The decision of the Supreme Court in the greenback case is important and commendable in so far as it lodges the supreme authority in Congress. Professor Rice wishes such a change in our constitution as would admit of ministerial responsibility. In other words he would have our cabinet hold office just so long as they represented a majority in Congress, but no longer. Our readers will recall the fact that THE RECORD AND GUIDE two years ago suggested such a revision of the United States constitution as would give us, among other reforms, a more responsible government. We pointed out that legislatures have too much power in the United States, and executives too little ; that we could not expect efficient or economical local government until heads of departments, mayors, governors and presidents wielded much of the power now lodged in aldermen, legislative chambers and congresses ; good government was impossible unless the people were able to tell who were the rulers, and had the power to shorten or prolong their official careers. It is gratifying to us to see that a change first suggested in these columns is beginning to be regarded as certain to be effected. All the tendencies of our time concur in demanding responsible government. Our people are weary of lawyers and legislators, and are demanding executives who can be held responsible for the conduct of affairs. By the time the hundred years have elapsed since the establishment of our constitution, a general popular demand will be made that a new or at least amended constitution shall be adopted as well suited to our own times as was our present constitution to the emancipated British colonies that framed it.

How to Hit Back.

As the press and the bench seem to have formed an alliance to strike at the elevated road system, which has done so much for New York, is it not time for the latter to hit back? It is quite true that some property holders have been injured by the elevated roads. The Fifty-third street houses are a case in point, and there are certain dwellings in the lower part of the city whose rentals have been reduced by the construction of the track and the running of trains at all hours of the day and night. Why not have a commission appointed who will assess the damages on all the property so injured? It would amount, no doubt, to a good round sum, enough probably to swamp the elevated road system.

But these roads have been an almost unmixed benefit to the metropolis. They have added enormously to the area and value of the taxable property of this city. They have put millions of dollars into the pockets of the property holders on the east and west side; everywhere, in fact, above the City Hall Park, except upon Fifty-third street.

In equity the property holders benefited should reimburse the property holders injured, but there is no legal method by which this can be done. There is no machinery by which we can tax one kind of property to make good the losses of another.

What then is to be done?

Let the elevated management fall back on its reserved rights. Let it cut down the commission hours to the legal limit of two hours in the morning and two hours in the evening. Let it charge the higher fare permitted by its charter. This will be a heavy tax on the public, but then the public is so much distressed over the injury done the down-town property holders that it ought to be willing to pay the two or three extra cents daily to make good the losses of the latter. The hostility of the press and courts to the elevated roads could not in any event be greater than it is now. No one can deny the enormous value of the elevated system to the travelling public and to the general property of New York. The least the latter can do is to pay for the damages incident to the running of this invaluable system of roads.

Experiment Farms.

New York and Ohio have both established model farms, founded upon those which were originally founded by the German government. The object of these schools for farmers, for such they are, is to give the agricultural class the benefit of the recent discoveries in science and the results of experience in matters relating to the products of the soil. At these experimental farms are tested the value of the various commercial manures. Heretofore farmers have been at the mercy of dishonest venders of well-advertised compounds. This source of waste is cut off by the experiments made at the model farm. There seeds are tested and supplied, the value of certain soils is indicated, and useful machines recommended in preference to those which are of less utility or valueless. The work of this model farm in Germany has added immensely to the value of the farmers' products. It has paid a hundredfold for the government's expenditure.

As we have said, New York and Ohio are testing these experiment farms ; but they should be multiplied. We depend more than any other nation on our agricultural products. Our farming class is intelligent and conservative, but they need to be instructed in the science of their calling. These government schools bring to the aid of the farmer the highest scientific intelligence in the country. There ought to be twenty such in this State alone. Their multiplication would be of incalculable value to the country and help to raise the price of real estate everywhere.

Our Prophetic Department.

REFORMER—The letters of the Presidential candidates settles the question that the next administration will be committed to civil service reform. The good fight has at length been won in spite of the politicians, and hereafter, even here in New York, officials will be appointed and promoted because they are competent and have merit, and not as a recompense for political services.

SIR ORACLE—You are quite right. We have entered upon an era of administrative reform. In spite of the leaders of both parties, public opinion has forced not only the present administration but all the candidates to promise to conduct public affairs on business principles hereafter.

REFORMER—Am I not justified then in looking forward to a purer era in the history of our country? Will not the scandals incident to the past conduct of affairs be unknown in the future?

SIR O.—Not so fast, please. I have myself favored civil service reform since the matter was first broached in Congress by Mr. Jenks, of Rhode Island, since deceased; but I have never concealed from myself the fact that there were other difficulties in the way, should the reform be adopted. I have taken no stock in the politicians' objections to the reform; but I think I see danger ahead that the reformers wot not of.

REFORMER—Explain yourself.

SIR O.—Elections in the past have necessitated the employment of a great deal of money that had to be raised voluntarily. There were halls to be hired, printing bills to be met, organs to be maintained, processions to be paid for, in short the machinery had to be kept in motion by money. Now this very necessary commodity has had to be supplied by one of two classes, the Ins or the Outs. The office-holders were assessed on behalf of the administration in power, and the far more numerous Outs contributed upon the promise that they would be taken care of if the administration party was defeated. This way of doing things led to many and rank abuses, and your civil service reformers deserve credit for having so instructed public opinion that a better system has at length been inaugurated. But I do not see that you have provided any machinery to replace this spoils system to help conduct canvasses and carry elections.

REFORMER—What would you have us do? Surely the American people have sufficent public spirit to raise all the money that is needed to meet election expenses? This is an age of voluntary effort.

SIR O.—I wish I could take an optimistic view of the future, but I can't. Politics is a very practical pursuit, and the average man will not put his hand in his pocket to elevate persons to high office to whom he is not indebted.

REFORMER—But will not the candidates themselves supply the funds needed?

SIR O.—That is exactly what I fear. Nominations and the great appointed positions will be made a matter of barter. Rich men, without personal merit, will buy their nominations for Congress, judgeships, foreign missions and even cabinet appointments. Our constantly recurring elections demand a great deal of money, and if this is not contributed by the great body of minor officials as now, the high positions of the nation will be put up at auction and civil service reform will result in a condition of things politically worse than when it was first bruited.

REFORMER—What do you suggest to remedy this apprehended evil?

SIR O.—Some provision by the general government for supplying the party machine with grease to run it. The federal, State and local authorities might furnish halls where there could be free debates between the representatives of the several parties. It might circulate to the voters political documents for their instruction, and then it could furnish tickets free of expense.

REFORMER—But would not that be dangerous? Would not any administration use that machinery to keep itself in power?

SIR O.—The "proof of the pudding is in the eating." You can never tell how a thing will work until it is tried. I am quite clear that our great party contests cannot be carried on without money, and that in the long run it is the public treasury which must supply the funds. Civil service reform will give us a bureaucracy —that is, a great army of minor officials who, being appointed for life and sure of their positions, will lose all interest in the politics of their country. I am not insensible to the advantage of such a body of officers. They will cultivate an esprit de corps, and will give us good, efficient work at a small compensation, but they will not be responsive to public opinion and will be a check and a drag to the conduct of public affairs. Yes, civil service reform is a good thing. But the present system, bad as it is, has not been an unmixed evil.

Home Decorative Notes.

—Glasses and receptacles for flowers should always be chosen with a due regard for the manner in which the flower itself grows; what, for instance, can be more lovely than a bunch of daffodils and their leaves arranged lightly in a tall, blue vase, or than a brown bowl full of differently-shaded nasturtiums; low-growing wild flowers, like primroses, look most elegant on a table if they are cut off, leaves and all, close to the ground and placed into moss in a low, glass dish; a favorite table decoration is to place small glasses here and there containing a specimen flower; in this way a free view of each guest is obtained over the whole table from end to end and from side to side.

—Papered walls may be wiped free of dust with a soft piece of dry flannel.

—In many drawing-rooms four colored glass lanterns are hung near the corners of the ceiling instead of the orthodox centre light.

—For the decoration of lambrequins or borders of curtains the palm leaf design is exceedingly showy, it may be worked up in various ways, but one of the most effective is in appliqué, using different shades of plush, olive, old gold and a little dull red for the leaves; each leaf should be corched around with its own shade, the stems should be worked in ordinary stem stitch in shades of brown; this arrangement harmonizes with almost any background, plush satteen or felt may be used for the foundation.

—Persian rugs are liked as covers for large pieces of dining-room furniture.

—A broad frieze is an excellent decorative feature, it should be separated from the wall surface by a picture moulding from which the pictures will hang.

—Both English and French styles are now in favor for household furniture, the English styles most used are those of the latter half of the last century instead of the earlier English furniture lately in favor, and these are confined to certain rooms, halls, dining-rooms and libraries that are fitted up in the fashions of a hundred years ago, after Chippendale and Sheraton designs.

—Wrought iron decorations are gaining in popularity.

—Double screens for country homes are made of checkered matting with a dado and frieze of bamboo.

—Low long divans with square corners and movable pillow backs are chosen for comfort, while there are many short sofas and confidants for two, and also others arranged with arm seats for three persons, made with the back and arms of carved wood, while the seat alone is covered plainly with materials not tufted as formerly.

—Cross-stitch embroidery in silk upon canvas to be introduced between bands of plush is used for a variety of purposes, among them small table cloths, cushions and the Pompadour bags, these last having upper parts made of satin to fasten with satin drawing strings.

—Geranium red is a favorite color.

—A pleasing table decoration is to place flat baskets of flowers near each plate with the menu tied on the handle.

—A pedestal for a vase or bust may be of gilt-bronze with plush top and jewelled glass ornaments or it may be a cabinet-pedestal with shelves below, inclosed by glass doors, for holding fine porcelain or for other treasured bric-a-brac.

—The seams of a sofa pillow may be concealed by placing a row of gilt braid over them.

—Cane chairs painted in colors to harmonize with the furniture of the room are quite popular; the arm chairs have velvet or plush cushions on back and seats; the rockers are ornamented with bows of bright ribbons; bright yellow satin ribbon is very effective on a black chair.

—Chairs of farince or pottery are among the novelties in hall furniture.

—It has long been said that there can be nothing new in the shape of pianos, or at least every new piano is built upon precisely the same model as the preceding one. It is extremely gratifying, however, if we can find nothing new in the form of the case to discover a novelty in the cover, and the freak of gathering the cover together with a huge pompon or square satin bow in the concavity of a "grand" is excellent.

—Honeysuckles and nasturtiums are popular and pretty figures for embroidery.

—For the benefit of pedestrians an extremely comfortable device has recently been introduced in the form of a walking stick chair, it is of bent wood very light and with the slightest manipulation easily converted into a cane or chair.

—The favorite flower for embroidery at present is the Lady Washington geranium, which may be produced in all its delicacy of form and tint, the separate petals are modeled in the required tints of plush on a slightly stiff foundation and arranged in proper shape, the flower is then applied to the stuff and fastened by means of stitches lightly taken on the under side, the centre with the deeper shading of the petals is afterward worked in, the flower in this way is thrown into a relief almost equal to that of the natural model, there are several different ways of using this modeled decoration, on a sofa pillow of crimson plush it consists of a spray of the Martha Washington geranium, the flower of pinkish white plush, the shading in delicate reds, and the leaves in velours, copying nature as closely as possible; a later and more conventional manner of using the flower is to take for example a ground of royal blue plush broken by irregular lines of gold thread corched down, at various intersections of these lines the flower is placed and fastened, and leaves embroidered in velours are placed at other intersections, the whole being carefully arranged to balance both in color and form; exquisite specimens of this style of embroidery are shown by Bentley Bros., of 1152½ Broadway.

Good financial writers are rarely wise judges of the market, unless inspired by some leader of the street like Gould, Keene, Cammack or Travers. But the difficulty with this kind of inspiration is that these leaders do not wish to instruct but to deceive the public. Keene and Gould have in their day had a large newspaper following, but the writers to whom they gave points seldom made money. The daily Times' regular financial article is the least interesting of any in town, but its Sunday article, opposite the editorial page, has been so well written as to attract attention. The writer gained credit during the "bear" campaign, although while that was in progress he gave evidences of his perverse one sidedness. When the tide turned early in July he showed his utter want of sense by continuing his bear predictions. The same writer contributes to Bradstreet's, and his last article is so absurdly wrong in his estimate of the situation that it makes that carefully edited paper the laughing stock of the street. The average writer, like the average man, is either a bull or a bear, and he is the natural prey of operators like Jay Gould, who can change sides promptly with the ebbs and flows of the market and be at the same time a bull on one class of stocks and a bear on another. Any operator or writer who undertakes to fight the figures on the tape or to stem the current of financial feeling is simply, from a business point of view, an ass.

Some years ago George Jones, of the Times, and Cyrus W. Field, of the Mail and Express, were personal friends, but there was some telegraphic transaction in which Cyrus secured some business advantage over George. The latter, who has some peppery Welsh blood in his veins, revenged himself by pulling his former friend's nose. Cyrus has never been able to get over that affront. That useful organ was long enough already, indeed its prominence gave Mr. Field that buzzard-like peculiarity which his critics say is typical of his character. The Mail and Express has recently been publishing a number of acidulous articles decrying George Jones and belaboring the Times. This is an entirely safe thing to do, as Mr. Jones is now in England and it is therefore physically impossible to reach across and again elongate Cyrus' proboscis. It seems the insult has rankled all these years, but the valorous Field kept his rancor to himself until the object of his detestation was on the other side of the ocean.

The New York correspondent of a Boston paper says that they are growing grass and cutting hay on Broadway. He says he saw it himself at the corner of Nineteenth street. This is an old, old story, and was true a few years ago, but grass has ceased growing in that quarter of the city.

Jay Gould was among the first to convert his elevated stocks into the new consolidated. Last Saturday he took from the Mercantile Trust Company over forty-eight thousand shares and received a dividend of over seventy-two thousand dollars. Cyrus W. Field took ten thousand shares and Soutter & Co. two thousand. It is believed that Gould is quietly getting out of the various directories with a view of going on that yacht trip for two years, but he will probably make a deal in the elevated stocks and put Western Union at seventy-five before he takes his final departure.

The New York Graphic was the first pictorial daily paper ever published. It has been some twelve years in existence, but has had no imitators in the daily field. It was always a well-written paper, though its pictures have been of uneven merit. But the great cost of conducting such a journal has probably hindered the starting of any rivals, either in this city or in foreign capitals. An illustrated daily could not be printed for less than five cents, and even then must have a large circulation to make it pay. But cheap papers seem to be the demand of the time, and that there is a call for illustrations is shown by the attempt of the World and scores of other journals throughout the country to give their patrons cheap woodcuts. The pictures are generally portraits, and wretched ones at that. Illustrated daily journalism will come in time, but a new invention is needed. The daily picture paper of the future will be printed on a rounded lithograph stone. The Graphic is printed on a flat stone; hence its cost and the necessity of using four to six presses in order to get out an edition. Whoever can print on a rounded stone, using therewith the rotary press, will effect an immediate revolution in the daily press. The pictures at first will be in supplements, but afterwards will be on every page, and the compositor will be abolished. The artist and the scribe, with pen and pencil, will replace the type-setter.

The Liquidation in Dry-goods and Silks.

Said a partner in one of the largest dry-goods houses in this city to a representative of THE RECORD AND GUIDE:

"Your paper contains very correct views about the business situation, and I am much struck at what you have said about the demonetization of silver being largely at the bottom of the distress in the mercantile world. But there is one point you would do well to make and which has so far been overlooked. While the liquidation has apparently run its course in the price of securities, it is not yet ended in the general trade of the country. The semi-panic of last May marked the close of the bear campaign in stocks, but we have got to have just such a crisis in merchandise. Question any wholesale dealer in New York who sells to jobbers, and if he is honest he will tell you that the outlook is very blue. He has plenty of goods to sell, but he does not know whose credit is good. He is aware there must be a great many failures this fall, or at the latest next January or February. In their eagerness to get business merchants have been dating bills ahead; they have book accounts simply to show for goods sold. If they had notes that were negotiable in the banks it would be different, but the very debts are not due for two, three or four months ahead. If the jobbers fail in the meantime we will have nothing to show but a credit on our books. The banks are still very reluctant to lend us money. They are again stimulating a stock speculation, and are freely lending cash on time at low rates of interest to the bulls on the street. As for the dry-goods interest, it is, as I have said, in a very bad position. There are plenty of goods to sell, but the old debts have not been paid up, and we do not know whom to trust. I look for no healthful recovery till after a crisis has occurred such as the stock market had last May. This may take place in the fall or it may be delayed till mid-winter, but there is no hope for a healthful trade until the very worst is known."

The Common Council has decided to give "Jake" Sharp's friends the Broadway franchise for a horse railway on Broadway. We inferred they would do this last week, for Mr. Sharp knows how to deal with legislative bodies. But the Broadway property holders have not given their consent to grant the franchise to any company, although the Cable Company has far more property holders behind it than has the horse-car company. It would be a real pity if horse-cars were permitted on Broadway. Nor should any company have the franchise unless a connection is promised which will take a passenger the whole length of the island on the west as well as on the east side, above Fourteenth street, for a five-cent fare. A five-cent horse or cable road between the Battery and Fourteenth street would be a bonanza to the fortunate shareholders, and, if granted by the Common Council or Supreme Court commissioners, must have been a matter of bargain and sale. The true way would be to grant the franchise at auction to the company which would give the most of its gross receipts annually to the city. This can be done under the street car law of the las Legislature.

In May last the new seven-story brick apartment house on the southwest corner of Fourth avenue and Sixty-second street, 100.5x83.4, was sold under foreclosure to satisfy a mortgage on which about $136,000 was due to the plaintiff in the suit (The New York Life Insurance Co.) for $118,000. The building seems to have been very poorly constructed and the purchasers are about to have it overhauled at a cost of $100,000. The rear half will be rebuilt, the walls strengthened and internal alterations and improvements made. Taking into account the condition of the house the New York Life Insurance Co. advanced on mortgage a great deal more than the property was worth.

Taxation this year will be at the rate of 2.25 per $100 upon the assessed valuation, which averages about 60 per cent. of the actual value of realty. It is supposed this assessment will yield $29,991,172.85. With an efficient and economical city government our taxes should not be more than 1.50 on the valuation.

Broadway Surface and Underground.

OBJECTIONS OF THE PROJECTORS OF THE ARCADE ROAD TO A CABLE ROAD ON BROADWAY.

Since Governor Cleveland vetoed the Broadway Arcade Bill a good deal of inquiry has taken place as to whether the Broadway Underground Railway Company would commence the tunnel which they are empowered by charter to construct. The efforts of the cable and surface road companies to run a line on Broadway are of such importance to a future underground road, that a reporter of THE RECORD AND GUIDE called on Melville C. Smith, president of the Broadway Underground Railway Company, to obtain his views on the matter.

REPORTER—What are the plans of the Broadway Underground Railway Company, and to what extent would a surface or cable road on lower Broadway affect your company?

MR. SMITH—As I have said on previous occasions, our company is sure to build some kind of a railway under Broadway. We should have commenced work without delay immediately after the decision of the suits wiping out the watered stock issued by our predecessors, had we not felt that it would be better for the company, for the property-owners along the line and the general public for us to so amend our charter as to utilize all of the space under that thoroughfare. The existing charter permits an excavation of 18 feet in depth and 35 feet in width, barely wide enough for four tracks of narrow gauge, with cars about the width of those now in use on the elevated roads. The bill which passed both branches of the Legislature last winter by a nearly unanimous vote would have enabled us to have built four tracks of standard gauge, with sufficient space for the passage of the widest cars, freight and passenger, through to the Battery, and also for the construction of sub-surface sidewalks, with provisions for complete ventilation and daylight for the lower street. Under the charter, as it is, we could construct an excellent railway. The road could be brilliantly lighted with electricity, and taking advantage of the experiences in the construction and operation of the London Underground Railway, and availing ourselves of the fireless engine, compressed air or electricity as a motive power, the road could be made vastly superior to any mode of city transit now in use. Electricity has all the elements of a complete motive power, and recent inventions and experiments have established its practical application beyond question. In fact, our company now has a proposition from responsible parties to construct our road on a plan adapted to its use.

REPORTER—Is it probable you will construct upon this plan?

MR. SMITH—That is the question we are now considering. Ex-Secretary Windom, who has recently returned from Europe, and others of the board of directors, regard the matter favorably.

REPORTER—Would this be a tunnel road?

MR. SMITH—It would be an arcade that would not include the sidewalks. The excavation would be only about 16 feet in depth and the roof or the present Broadway roadbed, would be supported by iron girders, the entire thickness, including the pavement, not exceeding three feet.

REPORTER—Would not the complete arcade, excavating from building to building, be more perfect and better?

MR. SMITH—I have frequently stated that the additional story which would be thus added to each building would be of great value to property owners, and the sub-surface side-walks a great advantage to the property as well as an accommodation to the general public, but I have had serious questions whether this form of construction would bring as great relative profit to the railway company. Personally it has been my desire that the city should have a perfect and scientific underground street, but I am not disposed much longer to contend for this, if opposed by those who are most interested.

REPORTER—Do you think that Governor Cleveland, should he continue in office, would approve a bill authorizing this more comprehensive plan?

MR. SMITH—I presume he would. His objections were not at all to the plan or its feasibility, but that certain clauses of the bill did not provide sufficient indemnity or security for possible delays and dangers in the construction of the work—features that could be readily changed so as to meet his objections. When our plan of action is fully determined upon we shall not hesitate to make them known through the press, with the same frankness that has characterized our company in the past.

As to a cable or surface road on Broadway Mr. Smith said: "A cable would require some 6 feet in depth of excavation, and therefore render the construction of the arcade, or at least the artificial roof or roadbed, impossible; it would also necessitate our excavation being made at least 6 feet deeper than would otherwise be required—a rather important question to those property owners who are petitioning for a cable, and who have expressed fears that even our shallow excavation would endanger the foundation of their buildings. There being no provision for the protection of the street or the accommodation of travel while the cable is being put down, Broadway would be subjected to greater interruption and obstruction than would be possible under the strict provisions in our bill, which provides for bridging over our excavation and prohibiting our stopping travel for an hour. The work would mainly be done from midnight to 4 A. M. An ordinary surface road would not require an excavation deep enough to reach the iron girders over the arcade which support the street roadbed. Some of the Broadway property owners seem to think a cable or surface road would render the construction of the arcade unnecessary. This is a very great mistake. New York was never before so much in need of additional facilities for transit as now. The elevated roads carry all told something over 90,000,000 passengers in a year. The increase of travel since these roads were projected is about 120,000,000, or nearly 30,000,000 more than they carry. The increase of travel during the past three years is over 60,000,000, or at the rate of 20,000,000 annually. Were sufficient accommodations provided the increase would doubtless be nearly 30,000,000 per annum. The capacity of a road on the surface is less than 3,500,000 passengers per mile. From the Battery to Fourteenth street—the part of Broadway in question—the distance is 2½ miles, making the capacity of such a surface road less than 9,000,000 of passengers, or about the legitimate increase of city travel for four months; this, too, on the presumption that the omnibuses remain on Broadway performing the same service as now. A cable road on a street packed and gorged like Broadway with so much cross-street travel could not safely be run faster than a horse-car, even if it could be worked effectually at all. This can easily be ascertained by taking one of the street cars on West street, where it frequently takes fifteen minutes to travel as many blocks, and where the stoppages are innumerable, owing to the crowded condition of the street. The only public conveyances that can run rapidly at all on Broadway are the stages, and this they only accomplish by continual zig-zag runs between drays, carriages and other vehicles. This the cable or street cars could not do, as they would have to run in a straight line. Of course there can be no claim of rapid transit compared with a four-track railway under ground, out of the way, free from all obstruction and therefore capable of accommodating nearly a million passengers per day, having trains of cars capable of carrying four or five hundred instead of fifty passengers per trip, and express trains going at a speed of from thirty to forty miles an hour instead of three or four miles an hour on the surface of a gorged street. A surface road could have little if any advantageous effect upon property, while a thoroughfare with the capacity of the arcade ought to add at least 50 per cent. in value to the property along its line."

Sycamore as an Interior Finish.

The use of hardwoods in the interior of houses is becoming more pronounced every day. The better class of dwellings would be incomplete without them, and their value is greatly increased by the use of the finer woods, their brilliant polish and the excellence of their figure and color being highly prized by those in search of a house which they intend to make their home. Among the various hardwoods sycamore is now beginning to take its place as an interior decoration. This wood is often referred to in Scripture, and was largely used in building the Jewish Temple by King Solomon, and by the ancient Greeks in their palaces and temples. It subsequently fell into disuse, probably on account of its mode of manufacture being among the lost arts. The sycamore is noticeable for its variegated figure and soft harmonious blending of colors, sawed-quartered in such a way as to show the medular ray, and the wavy interlaced figure so greatly admired in the once famed but now extinct San Domingo mahogany. The wood sawed in the ordinary manner through the log does not possess any of those singular marks of beauty, but when prepared by first quartering the log and sawing always directly towards the heart, it develops those distinguishing features which make it unsurpassed by the finest hardwoods extant, requiring but the finishing touches of the mechanic to fit it for the adornment of the handsomest residences.

New Publication.*

We have received another book on forestry, by Professor John Croumbie Brown, of Scotland, who has contributed so many valuable works on the subject, several of which have been reviewed in these columns during the past year. The author has shown praiseworthy industry in completing so many volumes in so comparatively short a time, all of which will stand pre-eminent in the forest literature of Great Britain. In this, the latest of his publications, the general features of a rarely-travelled and very interesting country are described. Particulars are given of the geographical distribution of forest trees in Norway, followed by discussions of conditions by which this has been determined, such as heat, moisture, soil and exposure. The effects of glacial action on the contour of the country are noticed, and descriptions are given of the existing glaciers and snow fields. We are also supplied with information about forest exploitation and the transport of timber, the export timber trade, public instruction in sylviculture and forest administration, as well as shipbuilding and shipping. The last two chapters of the book are devoted to a consideration of forest devastation and to suggestions as to remedial measures therefor. To the general reader the book contains much that is interesting about the people and the country, apart from its value as a contribution to a question which has been considerably discussed throughout the press of the United States during the past few years and which the people are beginning to recognize as a matter of first importance. The extensive destruction of forests in Europe has resulted in a diminished supply of timber and firewood, and has caused droughts, floods, landslips and sand-drifts. The same evils confront us in this country, and, as Professor Brown says, we must counteract them by the appliances of modern forest science which have proved successful—conservation, planting and improved exploitation, under the supervision of a scientific administration and management.

The Elevated Roads.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

In a suit brought by (name unkown) against the elevated road for damages was a decision rendered to the following purport? "That no judgment for damages should hold for the reason that although property on some parts of the route were damaged, others had been enhanced in value and that it would not be just to charge the companies with damages wrought without compensating them for the enhancement elsewhere."

I know or imagine that such a decision had been rendered but the fact being questioned in a discussion I would respectfully ask your kind offices to assure me or set me right. I know that the theory propounded is that held by yourself and perhaps my prejudice in favor of your opinion may have fixed a fancy as a fact on my memory. Please answer in your next and oblige A SUBSCRIBER.

There has been no decision such as our correspondent thinks has been made. While the elevated roads are liable for the damage they do they are not in any way benefited by the addition they make to public or private property. EDITOR.

Now is the Time.

"Now is the time to invest in tools and machinery," said a prominent manufacturer of tools and machines a short time ago. "We are making to lay up a stock," he said, "and are keeping our men on the prospects of future sales, instead of paying them from the profits of contracts already made." This company could afford to pay hands and store up a stock of finished work, as it had done before; but the manufacturer chose rather to sell at a low price than to pay insurance and the expense of the unavoidable deterioration of finished goods kept in stock. Lower prices and better terms—where terms are offered—can be obtained now than at any time within two or three years. Most men engaged in business requiring manufacturing machinery or machine tools can anticipate their ordinary needs for a twelvemonth hence, and so can make their preparations for the reflux tide of demand that is certain to come as is the spring to succeed to winter. Every period of depression in business has been followed by a corresponding uprising, and there is no valid reason for believing that this present season of disquietude is to sink into one of stagnation. At all events, a business, to live at all, must have the means, and there appears to be good reasons for advising the purchasing or the contracting for of machine tools and manufacturing machinery now, while in those branches there is a temporary lull.—Scientific American.

The Supreme Court of Maine, in the case of Thompson vs. Read (wherein an action was brought in 1882 on a promissory note given by defendant in New York in 1866 and payable in that State, for money lent; until 1875 the plaintiff and defendant resided continuously in New York, and defendant has lived there since; the note was barred in six years by the New York statute, and the defense of the statute of limitations was relied upon), held: "The statute of limitations is no bar to an action brought in this State on a promissory note made payable in another State, although the parties continued to reside there until any action thereon was barred by the statute of that State. It is well settled by the great current of authority that, as the statute of limitations operates mainly on the remedy, it is consequently local in its operation, and the law of the place where the remedy is sought, and not that of the place of contract, must control. Some of the States have statutory provisions allowing the interposition of the statute bar of another State where the defendant had resided the requisite period. But the statutes of this State contain no provision of that character."

Real Estate Department.

Although the market is dull the conveyances show up better than they did last year; the Deane sale last month partly accounts for this; nevertheless the business this summer will be larger than that of last summer.

The number of building plans show a large falling off, which is partly due to the strike. What is notable is the relatively large number of plans for the Twenty-third Ward. Indeed fully half the plans entered this week is for the annexed district. This is significant of what is to come in the near future.

On Thursday C. S. Brown sold on the premises at Long Branch the plot known as the Central Block, on the corner of Ocean and Chelsea avenues, 137.3x155x136x193, to S. T. Meyer, for $14,850. Mr. Meyer also purchased the Rosedale and West End cottages on Cottage place, near Ocean avenue, each about 52x145, for $5,465 and $3,400, respectively. The Ocean View cottage, also on Cottage place, was sold for $5,500 to Melville H. Regensburger. The rest of the property was withdrawn.

The following table shows the number of Conveyances and Mortgages recorded during the past week, as compared with the corresponding week last year. The number of Conveyances and Mortgages is much larger this year than last.

Out Among the Builders.

President John D. Jones, of the Atlantic Mutual Insurance Company, intends to build an elegant private residence for his own occupancy on the southeast corner of Riverside Drive and One Hundred and Second street. The dimension of the plot owned by him on the site is 102.11x172.11x100.11x153. No architect has yet been selected.

The Elite Roller Skating Rink Company are having the plans drawn for a building which will be superior to any structure of its kind in the world. It will have a frontage of 200 feet on Eighth avenue, 275 feet on Fifty-sixth and 275 feet on Fifty seventh streets. It will be three stories high, the front being of Philadelphia brick and brown stone. The first story will be occupied by six large stores, all of which are already rented, and the floors above by offices. There will be an extensive promenade on the roof, surrounded by gardens, while the interior will contain elaborate scenic arrangements representing the four seasons. The building will also have an archery, cafe, bowling alleys, gymnasium, bicycle course, &c. The cost is estimated at $150,000, the architects being J. B. McElfatrick, Son & De Baud.

William A. Martin will shortly commence the erection of a skating rink on the south side of One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, between Lexington and Third avenues. The material will be of brick and the dimension of the rink 60x135, with an extension, 16x145, "L" shape, containing an entrance on Lexington avenue. The building will contain ladies' and gentlemen's dressing rooms, &c. The cost will be about $15,000.

Charles Schildwachter will shortly commence the erection of a four-story carriage and wagon factory on the northeast corner of Fourth avenue and One Hundred and Twenty-eighth street, and a four-story tenement and store adjoining. The size of the former will be 25x76, and the latter 25x60. The material will be of brick with stone trimmings. Architect, Bart. Walther. Estimated cost of the improvement, $28,000.

The material will be of brick and Belleville stone and the dimensions 136x87. The Sunday and day-schools will adjoin the church and be about 70x40 each, the parsonage being 24x45. The style of architecture will be the early Italian Renaissance, one of the features being a spire 122 feet in height. The church, of which the Rev. H. B. Strodach is the pastor, will accommodate about 1,000 people. The estimated cost of this improvement is about $75,000. J. C. Cady & Co., of New York, are the architects; W. & T. Lamb are the masons, Bernard Gallagher being the carpenter.

Th. Engelhardt has plans in hand for a three-story frame dwelling, 20x50, to be erected on the north side of Stagg street, near Lorimer street, for H. Hoerner, at a cost of $4,700; two three-story frame tenements, each 25x52, to be erected on the south side of Jefferson street, 225 west Central avenue, for Adam Kaizer; cost, $4,700 each; and a two story frame dwelling and stable, 50x98, on the south side of Boerum street, near Ewen street, for George Peth; cost, $7,000.

The attention of architects, builders and owners is directed to the card of Mr. John F. Carr, dealer in hardwoods. He has a large stock of California redwood lumber and sycamore which is well worth inspection. His yards are at Nos. 543 to 557 West Twenty-third street.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

BRICKS.—About the only new feature as an influence upon the market for Common Hards was the rain storms. They, of course, brought all work to a dead stop, and so far as immediate consumption was concerned, absolutely no outlet for stocks existed. That, however, it is claimed, was fairly offset by the fact that the heavy storms also checked production at pretty much all points, and that ultimately one influence will balance another so far as supply may be concerned. The strike of the bricklayers has not been settled as yet, and the master masons appear to be standing out with quite as much determination as at the commencement of the difficulty, with a probability that there is no work in progress except where it is imperatively necessary. In short, taken all in all, the appearance of affairs at the exhaustive point of the market have been far from reassuring, and it will, under the circumstances, be a matter of no surprise to learn that the tone is somewhat easier. It is difficult to locate a decline of a positive character upon any one particular class of stock, but buyers claim and sellers admit that in a great many cases cargoes have changed hands at a lower figure than would have been accepted last week. Dealers in Haverstraws say the weakness is greatest on "Up Rivers," and dealers in the latter say that the first named description have given way most, while both will agree that they "think" the Jerseys must have sold pretty low, while the New Jersey manufacturers assert that they are not that kind of a fellow at all, and that all North River stock has suffered just as greatly as any other make. We notice, however, that in making quotations operators do not differ to the extent that might be expected. For Jerseys $5.00@5 50 is named and some makers flatly refuse to shade the latter figure; Up Rivers are generally quoted at $5.25@5.50, and Haverstraws $5.50@6.00, the latter getting some first rate stock, though some business has been done 25c. per M higher, and a few brands are claimed to be worth $6.50 on a special trade. From a basis of the above figures, therefore, and considering that notwithstanding the checks to consumption a pretty full daily arrival has been placed with sufficient rapidity to prevent an uncomfortable accumulation, the market does not pan out as badly as it might after all, and would possibly respond to anything in the shape of respectable stimulus. Pale Brick continue slow and uncertain, with the old wide range quotation at $2.50@3.50 per M, according to quality, delivery, etc.

CEMENT.—Manufacturers of Rosendale are in some cases doing a good business on shipping orders, and some of the "pet" brands are also meeting with a reasonably full outlet in filling calls from regular customers, but the general market is dull and prices weak. In no case can more than $1.00 now be quoted, and though several of the leading makers will "shut up shop" rather than shade that rate, others can be found who are selling all the way down to 80c. per bbl., and appear to be anxious at that. Foreign stock is nominally unchanged, but we find importers of fine grades generally reporting a comparatively steady market, and no accumulation of stock from recent arrivals.

LATH.—During the greater portion of the interval since our last there was no great change in the situation, but latterly there has been a stiffer feeling. Demand without making much display kept right along in steady volume until finally when the supply commenced to diminish both in spot offerings and cargoes to arrive, sellers found their advantages increasing through sharper and more determined bids, and the close is reported strong. About $2.15@2.20 seem to be considered fair average quotations, but some receivers claim that they would not accept these rates, especially on parcels to arrive.

LIME.—"No change from last week" is about the average report, and the market appears to show nothing of unusual interest. Supplies are small and well managed, and sellers as a rule seem to have a good general degree of faith in the situation.

LUMBER.—Demand for wholesale parcels does not increase, and receivers who might adopt the policy of waiting for customers to come to them would be very sure to remain in waiting for an indefinite period. Yard men in fact, between the good assortments already accumulated and the indifferent distribution therefrom, are without an incentive to look around for additions, and with the possible exception of a few choice hardwoods no class of stock can be said to have a natural inquiry. Yet, bad as this condition of affairs appears, there does not as yet appear to have been any serious accumulation made in first hands. Agents go poking around among the dealers and in one way or another manage to secure a place for anything that is really useful, the low prices asked and possibly additional allowances when a good customer hesitates proving an attraction to some who have available storage room and faith enough to believe that the lumber trade cannot always remain in a flat condition. This, too, is about the slowest time of the year and as nothing at primary points indicates that much will be lost by waiting a few weeks, buyers generally appear quite willing to stand off and take all the chances on such new wants as may arise later in the season.

Eastern Spruce is still reported as likely to undergo an immediate curtailment of production, consequent upon the unprofitable returns to manufacturers at going prices. There has, however, been quite enough stock received here since the first of July to more than fill all the wants of the market with something to spare, and dealers assert that they could get along very well without an additional offering for many weeks. Many of the trade are making quite a fair distribution but it is largely on old contracts, and in the way of really new consumptive demand either for early or distant use, the developments are unsatisfactory. The current line of value remains at about $11@14 for random, the inside exceptional, and the outside now and then slightly exceeded, with specials nominal but not likely to exceed $16@16.50 per M.

White Pine meets with some export demand but the calls on home account continue moderate and uncertain, and all classes of buyers move with a decided showing of indifference. The fable about small and broken assortments is occasionally repeated where it is supposed it will do the most good, but for every call made there has been an ample offering at regular dealers' hands, and no customers have found it necessary to go shopping among strange yards to satisfy their wants. Sellers who supply the export trade have probably done the fullest business since the turn into the last half of the year, but prices were not altogether satisfactory and of late shippers appear to have shown greater caution. We quote at $17@19 for West India shipping boards; $25@28 for South American do.; $14@15 for box boards, and $16@17.50 for extra do.

Yellow Pine, most dealers say, could not be in much worse condition and the effort is to keep up enough courage to hope for an improvement. This can hardly come before cooler weather, and it is doubtful if then the change will amount to more than some increase of orders without material hardening of values. Some few specials are still offered and there is a little f. o. b. trade doing, but at easy rates in most cases. We quote as follows: Randoms, $18@21 per M; Specials, $20@22 do.; Green Flooring Boards, $22@24; Dry, do., do., $23@24; Siding, $22@23 do.; Cargoes f. o. b. at Atlantic ports, $14@15 for rough, and $19@21 for dressed. Cargoes f. o. b. at Gulf ports, $13@14 for rough, and $18@20 for dressed.

Hardwoods are without open demand but really choice stock is wanted, especially in the way of ash, cherry and walnut, and such would command full rates. It may as well be again repeated that shippers who send in car lots expecting to realize the quoted rates for selected goods from yard will be disappointed and even in a wholesale way only the best quality touches outside figures. We quote at wholesale rates by car load as follows: Walnut, $65@100 per M.; ash, $33@40 do.; oak, $30@55 do.; maple, $20@32.50 do.; chestnut, $25@30 do.; cherry, $40@75 do.; whitewood, $27@35 do., do.; elm, $22@25; hickory, $45@52.50 do.

GENERAL LUMBER NOTES.

STATE.

ALBANY MARKET.

The Argus reports for week ending August 5 as follows:

There has been a fair ordinary trade, with no exceptionally large sales reported. The shipments have not been as large as those of the preceding week. Receipts continue large and the yards show a considerable accumulation, which is well assorted in size and quality. At the mills in Michigan the stock is large, and constant sawing is adding to the amount. Prices are firm on the better qualities of pine, while on coarse lots some shading is reported. Spruce and hemlock are in good stock and are in fair demand at steady prices. Shingels and lath are accumulating on the yards. Hardwoods continue to arrive by canals and rail, and the stock is very fine and well assorted. The sales are steady of seasoned lumber, and there is a large proportion fit for use.

THE WEST.

The Chicago Northwestern Lumberman as follows:

For the last two weeks we have quoted short green piece stuff at $8.25 to $8.75, and $3.25 to $8.50. We have done so in the absence of any free expression about prices from either buyer or seller, a studied reticence and "p. t." attitude having been maintained. This week a thorough sifting of evidence from all parties—though secrecy is still maintained—goes to show that $8.50 is the price for good short length green white pine piece stuff, and that $8.75 is sometimes obtained for an extra good percentage of long lengths with some pickings in it. But, if a cargo has a large proportion of Norway in it, or is at all of the scalawag order, it goes for $8.25, and even as low as $8. It is probable that within a week, under the influence of limited arrivals, a little better feeling in the yards, and the nearness of the fall trade, a trifle firmer feeling may preavail on choice dimension. For the sake of covering this probability, we will place our upper figure in the range at $8 75, making dimension stand at $8.25 to $8.75, with some very coarse, mixed and scalawag stuff selling lower than $8.25. It must also be understood that there is but very little difference this season between long and short dimension as regards price. Long timbers are another matter, and, while the demand for them is very limited, they are selling at prices between $10 and $11.

Lake freights fell off a shilling all round the latter part of last week The rate from Muskegon is now $1.12½, from Ludington $1.25, and from Manistee $1.50. There is a prevailing quietness in the demand for vessels. Charters are made from Bay City to this port at $1.75.

Quotations are as follows:

Piece stuff, green	$8 25@ 8 75
Long timbers, green	10 00@10 50
Boards and strips, No. 2, green	9 00@11 00
" medium, green	11 00@13 00
" No. 1, green	15 00@18 00
High grade	18 00@24 00

LUMBERMAN AND MANUFACTURER,
MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

There is little in the lumber world worth specially noting. A moderate consumption and a little easier money market tends to prevent any panicky feeling on the part of holders. It is becoming certain that the manufacture will be much lighter than has been talked during the early part of the season. Many mills will close early and some have shut down already in Wisconsin and Minnesota. A great quantity of logs are hung up on the streams, and this deprives many mills of a stock. The rivers are so low that operations on many are impossible and expensive on even the main river. As to lumber prices we have taken special pains to ascertain the facts and are satisfied that the bulk of the sales are about as near list as is usual in midsummer. A number of orders for round lots have gone the entire rounds of the Northwest and no satisfactory figures obtained, leaving the bills unplaced. No failures of importance are reported or even any serious embarrassment outside of a few log owners, all of which point to a steady market and confidence in present prices. The only market glutted with logs seems to be Minneapolis, where large lots are offered at $4.50 to $6, woods scale. A number of sales are reported on the St. Croix and the raft movement continues in spite of low water

The mills of Minneapolis are being greatly embarrassed by low water and the month's cut will fall far below last month's figures.

ENGLAND.

The London Timber Trade's Journal reports business dull at pretty much all points and prices generally easy. In the report upon hardwood the journal says:

Cedar seems to be a bit quiet just now, and really good logs are obtainable at very moderate prices. Export trade seems rather more active than home consumption.

American Black Walnut.—The last few parcels landed seem to be rather an improvement upon some recent arrivals, and if shippers would only be a little more particular in what they send forward, there is no reason why such prices as we have recently had to note should be repeated.

American Whitewood.—The prime parcel of wide planks to which we have before referred, is, we see, in catalogue for Wednesday next, when we should think it ought to sell well. This trade, though extending, has scarcely yet expanded in proportion to recent arrivals.

CUBA.

This week's mail from Havana reports:

No improvement reported in the demand, prices still ruling nominal for both white and pitch pine, of which the market continues abundantly supplied, owing to continuous receipts.

METALS.—COPPER—Ingot continues to sell about as for some time past. Buyers in nearly all cases refuse to go beyond immediate wants, and this keeps most orders in light form, but the aggregate movement foots up fairly and commands previous rates. Lake is sold at 14c. and "outside" brands at 13@13¼c. Manufactured Copper has been rather dull and some irregularity on prices is hinted at but asking figures remain as before. We quote as follows: Brazier's Copper, ordinary size, over 16 oz. per sq. foot, 22c. per lb.; do. do. do., 16 oz. and over 12 oz. per sq. foot, 24c. per lb.; do. do., 10 and 12 oz. per sq. foot, 27c. per lb.; do., do., lighter than 10 oz. per sq foot, 29c. per lb.; circles less than 24 inches in diameter, 25c. per lb.; 24 inches in diameter and over, 28c. per lb.; segment and pattern sheets, 25c. per lb.; locomotive fire-box sheets, 23c. per lb.; Sheathing Copper, over 12 oz. per sq. foot, 20c. per lb., and Bolt Copper, 23c. per lb. IRON—Scotch Pig is without improvement. Most of the arrivals find their way into consumption, but the importation is closely gauged to the wants of the market and only small parcels realize outside figures. We quote at $19.00@22.00 per ton, according to quality and brand. American Pig meets with a continued conservative demand, but the volume of business has increased somewhat of late and prices are firmer. Occasional rumors of low sales are reported but all standard brands are held for full former rates. We quote $20.00@20.25 per ton for No. 1 X foundry, $18.50@19.00 for No. 2 X do. do., and $17.00@18.00 for gray forge. Old Rails have been fairly active, and efforts to reduce the line of value show no success. Scrap Iron is also meeting with a little more attention and holders gain confidence accordingly. We quote at $18@19 for tee rails, $20@21 for double heads, $20.00@20.50 for No. 1 wrought scrap ex ship, $21@23 for selected do., $16.50@17.50 for old car wheels, and $19.00@20.00 for crop ends. Steel Rails show some further shading on cost, but the demoralization talked of in some quarters is not fully apparent. A few contracts have been made at pretty low figures, but as a rule the tendency is to resist a further decline. We quote at $28 00@30.00 per ton for heavy sections, according to delivery, etc. Manufactured Iron presents no new features. Some fair deliveries are making on contracts for local consumption, but new orders are not plenty and general business at the moment has a dull tone. Store trade is light. We quote Common Merchant Bar, ordinary sizes, at 2.0@2.10c. from store, and Refined at 2.10@2 45c.; Rods, round and square, 2.20@2.35c.; Bands, 2.50@2.60c.; Norway Nail Rods, 5¼@6c., and domestic sheet on the basis of 2.80@3.10c. for common Nos. 10@16. Other descriptions at corresponding prices, with 1-10c. less on large lots from cars. LEAD—Domestic Pig not very active, but a little more interest appears to have been shown of late, and holders display a slight increase of firmness in consequence. Supplies fair. We quote at about 3⅝@3¾c. per lb., according to brand and the size of invoice handled. The manufactures of lead are steady and quoted: Bar, 5c.; pipe, 6¼c.; and sheet, 7¼c., less the usual discount to the trade; and tin-lined pipe, 15c.; block tin pipe, 45c., on same terms. TIN—Pig is neglected by speculators, but on the influences of a steady average consumptive demand, a good statistical position and favorable accounts from abroad, the market is held with much firmness. We quote at 18¾@19c for Straits, 19@19¼c. for Australian, 19¼@19⅝ for English, and 21@20½c. for Banca. Tin Plates show very little positive variation. Charcoals are about steady and cokes quite firm, the small supply of the latter acting as a stimulant to holders The movement fair on ordinary outlets. We quote I. C. Charcoal, third class assortment, $5.15@5.35 for Allaway grade, and $5.75@5 87½ for Melyn grade; for each additional X add $1.25 and $1.50 respectively; I. C. Coke, $4 90@4.95 for B. V. grade; $4.95@5.00 for J. B. grade; Charcoal terne, $4 75@5.00 for Allaway and Dean grades 14x20; $9.75@10.00 for do. 20x28; Coke terne, $4.55@4.60 for Glais grade 14x20, and $9.50@9.55 for do. 20x28—all in round lots. Spelter has an ordinary trade demand, but shows no special animation, and former rates are quite generally accepted. We quote at 4½@5c. for domestic and foreign, according to brand, quantity, etc. Sheet Zinc meeting with some little sale on about usual form, and held steadily for small lots. We quote at 5⅞@7c., according to quality, quantity, etc.

NAILS.—The movement of supplies is still dependent largely upon such irregular calls as may be obtained from exporters, and the moderate uncertain wants of the home trade. All outlets opened, however, find a ready supply available, and sellers as a rule in humor to accept easy terms rather than lose a good order. Some Western made goods have come in direct competition with the product of Eastern mills, but do not show quite such good quality. Quotations range at $2.30@2.45 per keg for 10d to 60d, according to quantity.

PAINTS, OILS, ETC.—With the exception of some further moderate increase in the amount of trade doing there does not appear to be much, if any, change in the market since our last. Holders have a fair stock to offer both as to quantity and assortment and are generally willing to accept former figures. Linseed Oil selling as usual and ruling steady at 55@56c. for domestic, and 58@59c. for foreign. Spirits Turpentine in light demand and a shade easier, at 32@33½c. per gallon, according to quantity, package, delivery, etc.

PITCH AND TAR.—Buyers call for about ordinary trade lots, and obtain what they require on the payment of former rates. We quote: Pitch, $2.25@2.30 per bbl.; Tar, $2.50@2.00, according to quantity, quality and delivery.
